VIGOROUS SENATE ATTACKS ON MORGENTHAU

EUROPEAN IN CAR SMASH

MR. P. YOUNGHUSBAND BADLY INJURED

SUDDEN SWERVE

Mr. P. Younghusband, living at 264, Prince Edward Road, was rather severely injured as the result of a motor smash at Kowloon at 10.30 last night.

He was driving his car, No. 3890, into the junction of Nathan and Waterloo Roads when for some reason it swerved, and mounted the side walk between the verandah pillars of the President Apartments.

Mr. Younghusband was injured in the head and hands when the vehicle collided, it is thought, with the wall of the building.

He was taken by a passing motorist to the Kowloon Hospital where his injuries were attended to.

The car was badly damaged.

BELGRADE CRISIS

PREMIER RESIGNS

DISAGREEMENT ON FINANCE

Belgrade, Jan. 25.

The financial difficulties of Yugoslavia have caused a Cabinet crisis and King Alexander has accepted the resignation of the President of the Council (Premier), Dr. Milan Stiskitch, from the Cabinet.

The Premier was unable to agree with his colleagues regarding the financial programme.

Dr. Uzunovitch, the President of the National Party, has been asked to form a new government.

He has frequently been Prime Minister in the past, his record being established in 1928 when he formed no fewer than six governments within a period of three months.—Reuter.

CHANG HSUEH-LIANG RUMOURS

Defence Commission For North-West Frontier

Nanking, Jan. 26.

The Nanking Government maintains reticence in regard to the decision, which is officially admitted to have been taken, concerning the future in the Government of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang.

A crop of rumours are in circulation, one of them to the effect that he has been offered the post of Defence Commissioner on the North-west Frontier.—Central News.

SHENSI-CANTON AIR LINE

COMMENCEMENT NEXT MONTH

Shanghai, Jan. 26.

It is announced that an air mail line running from Shensi to Canton will be inaugurated in mid-February by the Eurasian Aviation Corporation. This air line will have stopping stations at Shanvinn, Hsankow, Changsha, and Canton, but will not carry passengers at the outset.—Central News.

STEADY UPWARD TRADE

British Railways Give Recovery Pointer

London, Jan. 25.

In addition to a substantial increase in retail sales recorded by the Board of Trade this week, further evidence of the steady recovery in British trade and industry is provided by the continued rise in railway receipts.

For the first three weeks of the year these totalled £7,709,000—£525,000 more than in the corresponding period of last year. Goods traffic receipts alone increased by more than eight per cent.—British Wireless.

CHINA TREATY REVISION

U.S. GOVERNMENT APPROACHED

COMMERCIAL PACT

Washington, Jan. 25.

Early negotiations between the United States and China for the conclusion of a new commercial agreement are expected to develop from approaches made by the Nanking Government.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, who has just returned from the Pan-American Conference at Montevideo, told pressmen to-day that the Nanking authorities had made representations to the United States Minister in China, Mr. Nelson Johnson, seeking the revision of the existing commercial treaty.

He added that the United States is ready to discuss the matter as soon as definite suggestions are made by the Chinese Government.—Reuter.

FOUR NEW MOTOR LIFEBOATS

FOR BRITISH COAST WORK

London, Jan. 25.

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution has laid down four new motor lifeboats, which will be ready for service in the late summer.

The boats will each carry a crew of seven, with accommodation for thirty passengers, and will be stationed at Cromer (Norfolk), Muryport (Cumbria), Coverack (Cornwall), and Flamborough (Yorkshire).

At present there are 120 motor lifeboats and 54 sailing lifeboats round the British and Irish coasts.—British Wireless.

FURNESS CO. GETS ORDER

TANKER FOR U.S. COMPANY

London, Jan. 25.

The Furness Shipbuilding Company, of Middlesbrough, booked to-day an order for a five-thousand-ton tanker for the Standard Shipping Company of New York.

The vessel is for work on Argentine rivers and coast.—British Wireless.

LIKELY TO LOSE LOT AND HIS SHIRT!

CRISP COMMENT

MONETARY BILL HELD UP

Washington, Jan. 25.

The qualifications of Mr. Henry Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury Department, for handling the huge sum to be used as an Exchange Stabilisation Fund, were the subject of further uncompromising comments in the Senate to-day.

The debate on President Roosevelt's monetary bill again waxed fierce.

It was bitterly attacked by Senator Hastings (Rep.) who declared that the bill legalised robbery and that it penalised self-denial and thrift.

He asserted that if Congress ever received a report on the operations of the Stabilisation Fund, it would probably show that the British had taken the whole of the two thousand million dollars—and Mr. Morgenthau's shirt with it! (Laughter).

SILVER PLAN DOOMED.

Senator Borah has admitted that the strength of the independent wing of the Senate (composed of both Republicans and Democrats) was insufficient to compel the adoption of the proposed amendments for the redemption of silver, or compulsory currency inflation.

In the course of a spirited argument, the conservative Republicans, including Senator Austin and Senator Reed, disputed whether it was constitutional to give the President authority to regulate the gold value of the dollar.

VOTE ON SATURDAY.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, who is steering the bill through the Senate, claimed that it was quite legal.

Senator Borah, who moved his inflation amendment, later abandoned it.

Owing to the number of speeches still to be delivered, the final vote on the bill is not likely before Saturday.—Reuter.

CHINA'S PRESIDENT TO TAKE OATH

Nanking, Jan. 26.

In accordance with a resolution adopted by the Fourth Plenary Session of the Kuomintang selecting him President of the National Government of China, Mr. Lin Sen, the aged Kuomintang leader, is taking the oath of office at 8.30 this morning with due ceremonial at the Central Government headquarters.

Mr. Wu Tsz-hui, Member of the Central Supervisory Committee, will officiate and present the President with the official seals on behalf of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang.—Central News.

PRESTON MUDDOCK DIES

NONAGENARIAN WRITER OF THRILLERS

ADVENTURES IN CHINA

London, Jan. 25.

One of the most popular writers of thrillers of the bygone generation, J. E. Preston Muddock, died to-day at the age of ninety years.

He wrote over seventy books including about fifty detective stories under the name of Dick Donovan.

His life was one long series of adventures. Originally intended for military engineering, he went out to India when very young, where his father was then stationed, and entered the Government Gun Foundry at Coimbatore. It was during the exciting times of the Indian Mutiny, and it fell to his lot to go through many thrilling scenes. At the close of the Mutiny he returned to England in a troopship, his intention being to return to India, but the sudden death of his father altered all his plans, and he became a wanderer on the face of the earth.

REBEL IN CHINA.

He next directed his steps to China at the time of the great Taping rebellion of 1860, and, sympathising greatly with the rebels, he tried on two or three occasions to join them, when he would have found himself in opposition to his distinguished fellow-countryman, General Gordon, who led the imperial troops.

After many narrow escapes in China, he became financially interested in a beche-de-mer fishing vessel, in which he went down to the South Seas, and had a glorious time among the coral reefs, the cannibals, and the denizens generally of those little-known regions, New Guinea and the Solomon group of islands.

MENACE OF JAPANESE COMPETITION

HIGH TARIFFS NOT ADEQUATE

London, Jan. 25.

The Dominions are increasingly feeling the menace of Japanese competition, according to the New Zealand High Commissioner in London, who indicated that action had to be taken.

Mr. Parr, in an interview with Reuter, said that the Japanese threat to New Zealand's trade was extremely serious.

Japanese goods were pouring into the country at prices which made it impossible for New Zealand to meet on a competitive basis, and that in spite of the high tariff.

He said that the New Zealand Government was now in close touch with the British Government on the matter.

COTTON NEGOTIATIONS.

Meanwhile, the Japanese cotton delegation in London has received its long-awaited instructions from Tokyo to open negotiations with Lancashire.

The next step will be for the Japanese delegates to set into touch with the Lancashire committee, after which the two sides will meet to frame the agenda.—Reuter.

Orders for Plant Placed in England

London, Jan. 25.

In connexion with the decision of the Persian Government to make the country as far as possible independent of foreign produce, specifications have been sent from Teheran to British engineering firms for the supply of plant, particularly for the manufacture of textile piece-goods.

Apart from government schemes, orders have already been booked in Lancashire for equipping cotton spinning mills at Shiraz, Isfahan, and Yazd.—Reuter.

NOTHING LESS THAN FAIR PLAY

London, Jan. 25.

The President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman to-day began his short tour of the Lancashire cotton centres.

This morning, he had a lengthy meeting with the special committee of the Lancashire cotton trade dealing with Japanese competition.

When the Committee laid before the Minister the difficulties faced during the negotiations undertaken, at the instance of the Government, with representatives

WATER FAMINE PERIL

INDIA EARTHQUAKE AFTERMATH

SURVEY OF THE DISASTER

London, Jan. 25.

With the information now available it is possible to form a closer appreciation than has hitherto been possible of the magnitude of the Indian earthquake of 15th January.

It now appears that the loss of life, although grave, has been much smaller than was at one time feared, the death toll being apparently not greatly in excess of 7,500.

Considering the widespread damage to house property and to crops this figure is remarkably small. This may have been due to the fact that the earthquake occurred when the majority of the population was out of doors.

The towns suffering the most material damage were those of north Bihar, where at least half the brickbuilding houses were ruined; and the town of Monghyr, where the hospital was destroyed and hundreds of lives were lost in the collapse of the bazaar, now a heap of ruins.

In Muzaffarpur, the houses of the judges and civil servants were destroyed, the jail and bank were damaged and some 300 lives lost.

In Darbhanga, another 300 lives were lost and all brick buildings were destroyed.

GREAT DAMAGE.

Motihari was completely isolated and largely destroyed. As regards other towns in Bhagalpur, buildings were extensively damaged.

At Jamalpur, there was very great material damage and a loss of some 200 lives.

In Pusa, the famous Agricultural Institute was badly damaged, in Chapra, residences and public buildings were wrecked and the hospital rendered useless.

In Patna, 50 lives were lost, hundreds injured and over 4,000 buildings either damaged or destroyed. Outside the towns, the destruction of house property has been on a much smaller scale.

GENERAL COLLAPSE.

The more obvious signs of the earthquake are broken and obliterated roads, widespread floods and great cracks in the ground from which mud, sand and water have been erupting a devastating slimy deposit over the fields and crops.

In addition there has been a general collapse of road and railway bridges, making ordinary communications impracticable over a large part of the affected area.

The gravest menace to the rural population which reached its peak in an unusual density of over 300 to the square mile is the damage to agriculture, including the destruction of the sugar mills.

WATER CRISIS.

Moreover, many wells have been ruined and the problem of securing a supply of healthy drinking water both in the towns and villages is most acute. The disaster has affected all classes. The townsfolk lost their houses and possessions and the agriculturists their crops and markets.

In Bihar alone, damage estimated at many crores of rupees was caused. Very large relief funds will be required.

In Britain the High Commissioner for India is receiving contributions towards the fund started by the Viceroy, and the Lord Mayor of London, at the request of the Secretary for India, is to co-operate.—British Wireless.

DRESSING TO PERSONALITY

By A Paris Correspondent

In "Le Messager," M. Bernstein's new play at the Gymnase, Mlle. Gaby Morlay illustrates the charm of dressing to personality. She wears quiet clothes of real charm.

It is Lucile Paray who makes her clothes for this play, and she has succeeded in giving just the simplicity which the character demands. In one act Mlle. Morlay wears a pale blue frock, with a soft white collar and a belt of the same material as the dress. It is simply to follow the lines of the figure, and has no fuss about either the sleeves, which are long, or the neck. Her dark hair is bobbed and waved, and she wears no jewels.

In another act she has a black evening dress with puffed sleeves and a jade green capelet. In the last act her dress is navy blue; its white roll collar is longer at one end than the other. There are a few sparkles on this dress—paillettes, sparsely sewn on the sleeves near the wrists and about the front of the bodice. The cut has the same simple elegance as the other two dresses.

Gallant.

Maggy Rouff is always daring and original. She likes to give to her dresses a merry, gallant aspect. She plays skilfully with basques, trains, capes, and sleeves, and gets a silhouette which is very Parisian in the traditional sense.

There is in her work a touch of the lightness of Chéret, which the retrospective exhibition of his work in the Autumn Salon shows clearly; and Chéret, in his turn, carries us back to the grace of Watteau—the French spirit which does not die—gay and audacious.

Her trains are shaped like a fish tail. Some of her sleeves are bell shaped, with the cuff turned back. The basques on evening dresses start out in panner style from the hips. Little capes and slit cape sleeves are among the many arm and shoulder draperies.

She uses a lot of pale grey, and in a long pale grey cape in which are arm slits no sleeves, she faces the front with black velvet.

A beige coat has a band of fur about the hips, and a wide collar about the shoulders to maintain the style. A brown suit of skirt and coat has four pockets on the coat, which are trimmed with metal rings, which Maggy Rouff prefers to buttons. Fur pockets are added to a coat with a full fur collar.

Faille, moire, velvet, lame, black lace, and organdie are used in different colours, in black, and in white, for the evening. Green with gold, grey with silver, and a purple lame are among the outstanding combinations and colours of her collection.

It is clear that the neck-line, the hips, and the back of skirts are points of special interest in the new models for full winter and early spring in the South.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

A distinctive style for mature figures, this smart model can be made in printed silks, crepe, velvet, or sheer woollen. It is designed in nine sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 46 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch material plus 1-4 yard 7 inches wide for the vestee in contrast. To finish the sleeve and neck edges requires 1 3/4 yards of 1 1/2 inch bias binding.

So many morning skirts have fuller backs in the form of inset pleats, set in just below the knee-line, and the greater number of evening dresses have trains, some starting from the waist, some much lower down. These may be pointed, double-pointed, or rounded.

The panner and basque fashion gives to the hips an interest which they have not had for some time. It is no longer essential to look entirely hipless.

As to the neck and shoulders, they are open to all sorts of treatments. With the hood, the cowl, the cape, flat, draped, or ruffled, and perhaps with the horse-collar flung back, the burden of the shoulders is not light.

It may be that this fashion is brought in to hide what excessive slenderness sometimes causes—a round back and stooping shoulders. You see this fault in some of the slim and lovely young women who act as professional mannequins, and at a theatre it is frequently apparent in the dresses which are made without backs.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Beauty Costs

By Alicia Hart

Diligent budgeting of beauty treatments and cosmetics is one way of making sure that you are beautifying yourself within your income.

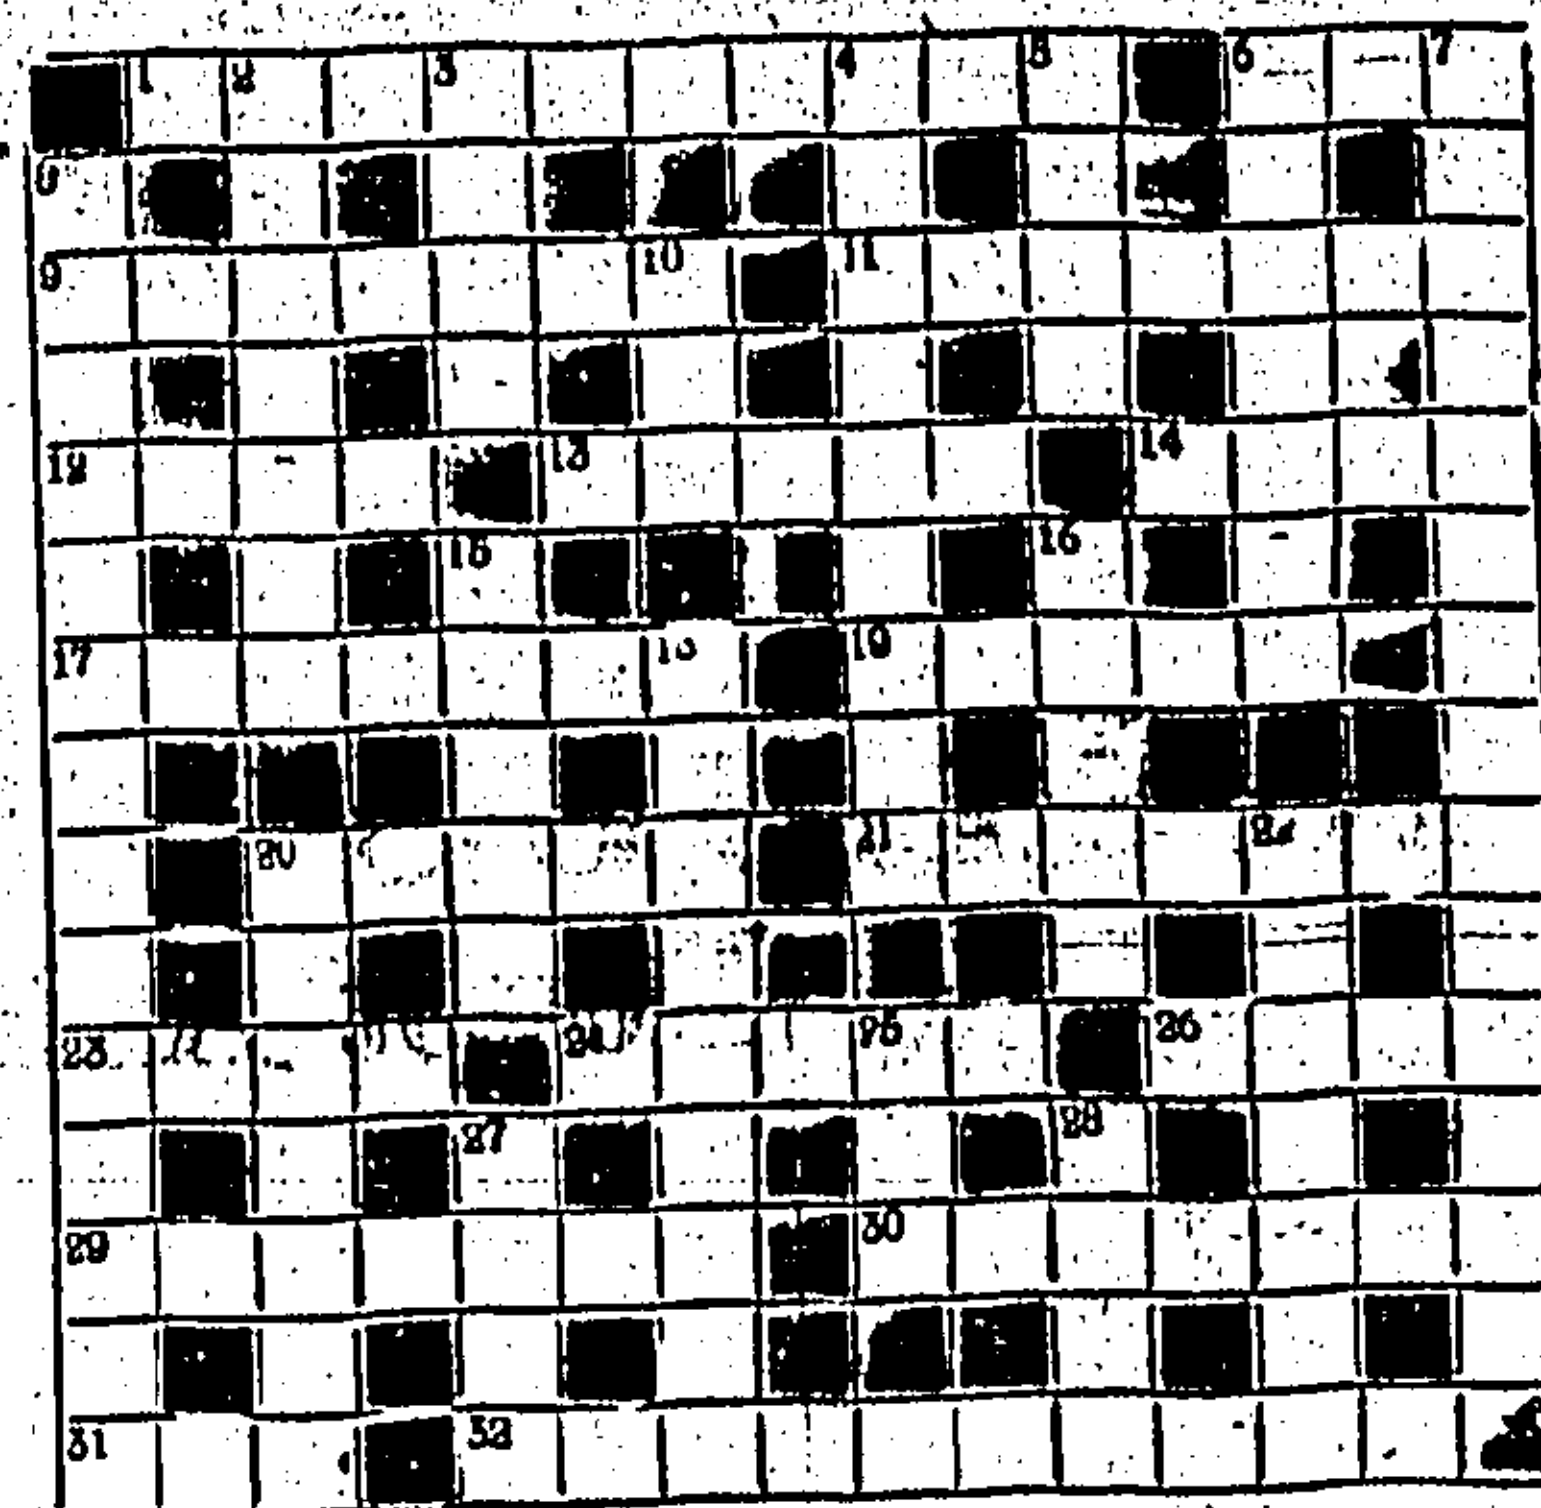

For instance, if you feel that you can spend money for only one treatment each week, decide immediately just what you're going to sacrifice on alternate weeks.

Shampooing your own hair is one money-saver. You can make a good, inexpensive liquid shampoo by mixing odd little pieces of bathroom soap in a bottle of water.

One week you might shampoo and set the wave in your hair instead of going to a beauty shop to have it done. That week, then, it will be possible to get a good facial treatment in a salon. The following week your hair gets a turn and you give yourself the facial.

Hot oil treatments at home save quite a few pennies. Apply hot oil at night, massage it into the scalp, and go to sleep with a clean towel wrapped around your head. Shampoo the next morning, put on a little wave set lotion before your hair starts to dry and then put in a finger wave. You've saved enough money to enable you to get a professional facial treatment that week.

"Sure, I knew we'd understand each other. He's got an awful big head and that worries me."
"A balloon—head—and a glib tongue," said the Professor. "Some people call that cockiness, but in the ring it's colour. The kind of colour to help bring in million dollar gates."
"All right. You're the boss. We'd better give up the flat, hadn't we?"
"You want Stephen to win this fight, don't you?"

CHAPTER V

CUPID'S KNOCKOUT

Belle Forber did not show up at the Cabaret El Ryanno the next day and Willie Ryan kept the telephone hot trying to get trace of her. Belle's maid could tell him little: the dress she had worn the night before was on the floor, her travelling dress, gone; two bottles of beer had been opened but left untasted. Willie ordered his henchmen to bring in the Professor, to tour the Boston Post Road, search all the lodges and inns, watch the railroad stations. He slammed down the phone as two huskies pushed the Professor into his office.

"Where's the fighter of yours?" he snapped, pouncing on the Professor.

"You know as well as I do! I haven't seen him since the night he fought. Every time you get an up-and-coming boy some female starts turning him into putty before you can—"

"He'll turn into hamburger if I get hold of him!"

"You can't blame my boy! How about your side of the case?"

"I'll attend to that, too, when she gets here!"

"She's here, Willie," said Belle's voice, and Ryan whirled upon her as she walked into the group.

"Maybe you'd like to tend to it alone?"

"Where's my boy?" demanded the excited Professor. "Look here, girl!"

"Better than he ever was. He's over in your office, waiting for you."

The Professor started to protest, but at Willie's savage: "Get out!" he gulped and darted out of the office. At Willie's nod, the Adopted

Son and the two huskies went out. Willie paced back and forth in front of Belle, seated on top of his desk.

"Is it that hard to begin, Willie? Want me to?"

He stopped pacing. "What happened to your head? Were you drunk? Are you on the junk? What happened to you?"

"Something very beautiful... Something swell..."

"You call it that—with a guy like that!"

"I knew you wouldn't understand, Willie. That's the only thing that hurts."

"Understand? How do you think I'd feel? My girl stealing away from me—running off like a Hester street tramp with a—"

Belle got off the table. "Don't talk that way, Willie!"

"What am I going to do? Take you back?"

"No, Willie."

"Do you know what I feel like doing?" Willie was actually trembling. She nodded that she understood. He continued: "You're made me the biggest laugh of the year."

"Is that all you are thinking about?"

"No, I'm thinking about you."

His voice went higher. "Of you and—him. Where you've been... what you've done." He grabbed her by the throat. "I'll have you both dropped out of sight! I'll give him a kerosene bath!"

"No you won't Willie."

"What's going to stop me?"

She spoke calmly and simply "I married him this morning."

Willie's face grew purple. He took his hand from her throat and backed away and stared at her.

"Why?" he demanded at length.

"I love him—want him." She turned out the contents of her bag upon the table. "There's everything, Willie. And the key—"

He poured himself a drink. "You can keep them."

"No, starting from scratch. Clothes would come in handy though."

"Okay."

She went to him, tears in her eyes. "Good-bye, Willie Ryan. I'm always going to think swell things about you. Will you think 'em about me?" At his slow nod, she kissed his cheek and ran out of the room.

He stared after her, even after the Adopted Son and the two huskies returned. "She married him," he muttered half to himself. At his words the Adopted Son's hand went to his pocket, he nodded to the two men and they started quietly out.

"Hey! called Willie. "I'm not mad and you can't get mad until I do. But if he ever gives her an unhappy moment you can spill his guts over any alley you pick out!"

For several weeks the Professor had trouble to keep Steve from breaking off in the middle of training to make love to his wife. They had taken a ground flat in Flatbush and the Professor insisted upon daily training to get into shape for another fight. He regarded Belle with hostility and she was ready to meet him more than half way. One day while Steve had been punching the bag with his right arm bound to his side in order to develop his left, he saw Belle hanging out some clothes and called a halt to go in and get a drink. He didn't return and the Professor followed.

"Now that you've had the glass of water you can go back to work."

Steve hugged Belle. "I've got about ten more minutes, honey. A reformed drunk always loses his sense of humour!"

"Please remember that a fighter has office hours," said the Professor. "He's a business man."

Belle resented his tone. "I thought you were supposed to be the business man. Why aren't you out seeing about another match instead of sitting around here? There's just a dollar and ten cents left of that sixty."

"Then as long as you're here why can't you and I be a little more civil to each other? Really, Professor, what have I done to—"

A ring at the door bell interrupted. Belle went to the door. A shrewd, sporting type of man stood there. The Professor, in a hallway door, recognized him as a Mr. Black, representing Mr. Carey of Madison Square Garden, and came quickly forward.

"Well, Black, glad you dropped round. I'll get the boy."

The Professor returned with Steve and when they had been introduced Steve asked, genially: "Hi, what's the idea? Thinking of putting on a real fight at the Garden?"

Black laughed at Steve's cockiness. "How'd you like to pick up two hundred bucks three weeks from to-morrow night? Six rounds prellim with Ray Harrigan?"

Steve poked the Professor in the ribs. "There, did young Gaffney get five hundred bucks for his first fight?"

"A year or two from now they'll be offering you many times five hundred dollars for a fight. But now they don't care if you can't fight your way out of a paper bag. They're only out to buy you as a front-page box office draw. The customers'll come to see the man who married Willie Ryan's girl, that's all." He turned to Black.

"And because the whole town will want to see him, he's a bargain at a thousand."

"I guess you're still the same old Professor!" laughed Black. "Okay. A thousand top. Five hundred for him...and five hundred for Mrs. Morgan to sit ringside. Drop in to-morrow and we'll sign the deal."

"And a couple of hundred in advance," said the Professor, accompanying him to the door.

"Okay," agreed Black. "This is a new angle in the fight game."

When the Professor re-entered the room, Steve was saying cockily: "What round do you want me to knock him out in, honey?"

"It's the beginning Steven," said the Professor. "We'll have to find training quarters. Gus Martin ought to let me come up to his place in the Catskills reasonably."

"And we can take a little cottage," said Belle. "A honeymoon in the Mountains."

"Take your shower, Stephen. Your wife and I've got plans to make."

Steve kissed Belle and left. "It's about time you and me had a talk," said the Professor.

"You think I hit the back of my head on the floor just because a lot of muscle and big chest told me to," said Belle. "And you think as soon as I'm bored I'll go back to Willie Ryan and the Jewellery. I fell for a pair of eyes—and a little boy in back of them. That's why I married Steve."

"You win the first round, my

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The secret of many a child's success on the stage is revealed in "Stage Mother," drama of theatrical life recently filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, which is showing at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday. Adapted from an original story by Bradford Ropes, author of "42nd Street," the picture deals with a little known side of the theatre—the intense ambition that causes "stage mothers" to drive their children to success. The heartbreaks and laughs that are encountered by the youngsters being "herded" on their way is brought vividly to the screen. Alice Brady scores even a greater triumph than in "When Ladies Meet" in her portrayal as the ambitious mother who will stop at nothing to further the career of her daughter. She is sensational in pathos and comedy alike. Maureen O'Sullivan has the best role of her screen career to date and puts every effort into an outstanding performance. Franchot Tone adds more laurels to his notable portrayals in such pictures as "To-day We Live," "The Stranger's Return" and "Midnight Mary." He is seen as Miss O'Sullivan's youthful lover. Phillips Holmes as Lord Aylesworth, who wants to marry Miss O'Sullivan to save her from the designs of her mother, is convincing in a mature role. Ted Healy is the "surprise performance" of the picture, deserting his madcap brand of "stodge" comedy to play several dramatic scenes. Supporting roles are capably filled by C. Henry Gordon, Alan Edwards and Ben Alexander. Charles Brabin, who scored recently with "Washington Masquerade" and "The Secret of Madame Blanche," handled the direction with a strong sense of scene values.

"Falling For You"

and dialogue by Claude Hulbert. Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of timing, his fascinating, rhythmic dancing and his method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements, essentially his own. When he is paired with Cicely Courtneidge there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. In "Falling For You" they are rival partners, and peculiar specimens, too.

"Cracked Nuts"

Nothing but a mythical kingdom jockey and could have framed such a side-splitting, wholly delectable comedy as the Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey un-vehicle, "Cracked Nuts." The laugh-feeat, produced by Radio Pictures, will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. Dorothy Lee, electric little comedian who has been seen with the team of comic comedies in all of their vehicles, captured opposite Wheeler. "The mythical kingdom background or some other setting equally fantastic, doubles the mischief of the comedy. If the spectators of his comedy, if the spectators of a comedy have a sense of a too great realism of backgrounds in talkies, they see some of the enjoyment of the heart healthful nonsense and hysterical fun of such a sound-celloid caricature of life. "With the sky the limit for realism, as it is in the mythical kingdom setting, there is also no limit to the amount of fun a comedy can contain." An unusually charming little love story between Wheeler and Miss Lee is woven in with the countless laughs of "Cracked Nuts." Others in the cast include such comedy favourites as Edna May Oliver, Leni Stengel, Stanley Fields and Harvey Clark.

"Tiger Shark"

Edward G. Robinson's record of consistent hits has been rewarded by his producers, Warner Bros., with another long-term contract, following the completion of "Tiger Shark," the epic of the "beast" in the Pacific Ocean, which is having its final showings to-day and to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre with Richard Arlen, Zita Johann, J. Carroll Nash and a strong supporting cast. In "Tiger Shark," Robinson is seen as a Portuguese fishing boat captain who is elemental and childlike in the tempestuous love, hate and other emotions he displays. Turning the gauntlet of human emotion, Robinson sums up in "Tiger Shark" all of the great talents which brought him the new contract with Warner Bros., and an assignment in "Silver Dollar," which will be his next picture after "Tiger Shark." The new Warner Bros.-Robinson contract is said to run for several years and under its terms the great actor will bring to the screen at least three pictures every year.

"I Was A Spy"

Mrs. Martha McKenna, whose experiences as a nurse and a secret service agent in Belgium during the Great War are the basis of the film "I Was A Spy," saw the picture "giving" its London run. "I am sorry," she said, "but the film is no beautiful. It has brought back to me all the sad days, there are many more things to tell, but the film has told all that could be told. It could not have been more wonderfully done. "I think it is the most lovely film I have ever seen, and all the payers are as true to life as it is possible to imagine." "I Was A Spy" is now showing at the King's Theatre. Don't miss it!

"Gold Diggers of 1933"

Guy Kibbee was somewhat startled when Director Mervyn LeRoy ordered him to take Aline MacMahon in his arms and whisk her around to the strains of a lively dance for a night scene in "Gold Diggers of 1933." "Warner Bros. musical and dramatic spectacle which will be the first attraction for the new Alhambra Theatre. "But I don't know how to dance," he exclaimed with a note of pathos in his voice. "If I've got to do anything like that, you'll have to hold up the production while I take a few dancing lessons!" "That's all right, Guy," said Mervyn. "We won't have to hold up the picture and you won't have to take any lessons. You're not supposed to know how to dance. You're an ultra-conservative Boston lawyer, who has never been in a night club in his life. Especially as you're supposed to be a bit light-headed with champagne." The party kisser then demonstrated how much he didn't know about dancing by putting on a hilarious impersonation of a slightly inebriated gentleman on a crowded night-club floor. "Gold Diggers of 1933," carries an all-star cast including Warren William, Joan Blondell, Rudy Kooler, Dick Powell, Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Ginger Rogers and Ned Sparks. Busby Berkeley was in charge of the dance and choral ensembles, in which 200 beautiful show girls appear. The picture is an adaptation by David Boehm and James Seymour of a play by Avery Hopwood.

"The Silver Cord"

Starring Irene Dunne, "The Silver Cord," showing at the Central Theatre, unravels elemental emotions that rapidly accelerated the pulses of mothers, fathers, wives, sweethearts, sons and daughters in last night's audience. The theme courageously invades the heretofore sacred precincts of mother love. Here it discovers hiding in the pure white folds of affection the destructive elements of selfishness and hypocrisy. Irene Dunne is superb. Her role gives her magnificent opportunities for her dramatic gifts. Laura Hope Crews is splendid in her characterization of the mother, a difficult role which she plays with masterly confidence. Joel McCrea as David adds a new triumph to his ever-growing list of hits. Eric Linden and Frances Dee contribute excellent performance.

SINGAPORE NAVAL TALKS

In view of the present tense situation in the Pacific, it is not to be wondered at that the British Naval Conference now sitting in Singapore should be the subject of considerable speculation, or that it should give rise to a crop of rumours regarding its possible outcome. There have been similar conferences held before, a fact which provides the Admiralty with the reply that the present talks are merely routine in character. But the point which dominates all others is that the present gathering is being held at a time when there is open talk of a possible clash in the near future. In this connexion, Japan's policies cannot be overlooked; they have aroused a measure of suspicion in all parts of the world which will not easily be lulled. Whilst it would be stretching the facts to suggest that the Singapore Conference has been specifically called because of current apprehensions of trouble, it is only reasonable to assume that the present situation and its possible future developments will figure largely in the discussions which are taking place. Singapore is the gateway from the West to the Pacific, and the naval base there has been specifically designed as a vital strategic point from which British shipping and other interests may be protected in case of need. Since it was first begun, work on the base has not been pushed forward with as much celerity as might be wished, due in part to the suspension of activities when the Labour Government first came into office. Later, however, even the Labourites appear to have been convinced of the desirability of proceeding with the scheme, and there is now no question, with another Government in power, of any further interruption with the project. Indeed, the tendency is all in the other direction. And it is well that this should be so. The necessity for a strong base at Singapore was never greater than it is to-day. There are so many possibilities ahead that risks cannot afford to be taken. Preparedness for all eventualities is the only sound attitude. Happily, we may rest assured that this feeling will dominate the Singapore Conference as the keystone of British naval policy. India, Malaya, Hongkong and Australasia are keenly interested in the deliberations now taking place, and although secrecy regarding its decisions may prevail, we may feel that the situation in all its implications will be fully explored and such measures resolved upon as will ensure the adequate protection of Britain's immense interests in this part of the world.

NOTES OF THE DAY

DANGEROUS EXPEDIENT

Austria's protest to Germany is so dangerous an expedient in the present state of feeling in Europe that it is difficult to regard the move in any other light than as a wilful provocation of a crisis. Dr. Dollfuss is demanding of Herr Hitler "satisfactory assurances that Germany's active support of the Nazi campaign in Austria will cease, and threatens an appeal to the League. Here lies a very real peril. It would be foolish to deny that there is a cause for complaint, but paradoxical though it may seem that fact only renders the situation doubly dangerous. It is scarcely possible to imagine a more inopportune moment for an appeal for League protection against Germany, which has already virtually deserted the League labouring under a sense of disillusionment—the moment when everything depends upon an improvement in the European atmosphere for a pacificatory settlement of the disarmament problem.

GENEVA'S PROBLEM

That Geneva shirks the issue is not surprising; even though it may be a confession of weakness. The Austro-German dispute, if it develops along the lines forecasted, is certain to place a severe strain upon the goodwill structure of the still youthful Geneva organisation, following as it will so rapidly upon the stresses of the Manchuria imbroglio. And it is because Dr. Dollfuss is as well aware of the perils of the situation as anyone else that the proposed appeal must be looked upon with some suspicion. It is not insignificant that Austria's sudden change of policy coincided with the visit to Vienna of the Italian Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. And it is no secret that Italy is dissatisfied with League methods and the system by which it carries out its functions.

TRAP FOR LEAGUE

Putting two and two together, the answer seems to be a considered attempt to discredit the League, by placing it in the almost impossible position of refusing to take action upon a presumably justified complaint or of authorising measures well knowing that they can only make things trebly worse. For it is taken for granted everywhere, in perfect confidence, that Germany will decline to give the requested guarantees.

AMERICA'S NAVAL PLANS

And the darkening shadows in Europe are not accompanied by compensating brightness elsewhere. Quite careless of the reactions in Japan and of growing anxiety in Britain (for other reasons) the United States indicates that the Vinson Bill is to be expedited and one hundred and twenty new fighting ships are to be built. The arguments submitted in justification would be almost amusing did not the matter raise issues of extreme gravity. If there is one certain method of increasing the grip of the Japanese militarists and their naval collaborators upon the politics and diplomacy of Japan, it is surely that of giving the supporters of the positive policy; weapons to foil the Export Steamship Corporation, buyer of eighteen vessels from the Shipping Board, received in three years upward of $4,000,000,000 or more than the vessels cost—in payments for mail carrying. The poundage on which these payments were based, showed that the cost in 1929 averaged $60,000 per pound of mail carried. Shipping men offer the explanation that the number of pounds is not significant, as the payment for mail carried is merely a legal pretext to permit payment of direct subsidies. This is just the trouble with subsidies, according to their critics. They are covered in justification and partly without, so that the taxpayer, who foots the bill, seldom knows what he is paying for or what he is getting.

SHIPPING SUBSIDIES

The justice of British complaints against shipping subsidies is vividly brought home in the record of the inquiry into the affairs of the U.S. Shipping Board. The report shows that the Export Steamship Corporation, buyer of eighteen vessels from the Shipping Board, received in three years upward of $4,000,000,000 or more than the vessels cost—in payments for mail carrying. The poundage on which these payments were based, showed that the cost in 1929 averaged $60,000 per pound of mail carried. Shipping men offer the explanation that the number of pounds is not significant, as the payment for mail carried is merely a legal pretext to permit payment of direct subsidies. This is just the trouble with subsidies, according to their critics. They are covered in justification and partly without, so that the taxpayer, who foots the bill, seldom knows what he is paying for or what he is getting.

GENTLE ART OF TREASURE HUNTING

By H. de VERE STACPOOLE

THE other day I received an invitation to go to the Sea of Sulu to hunt for treasure, on the strength of a treasure chart—I know something about treasure charts. In Havana you can buy a treasure chart for a few pesetas. If you look like a prosperous English or American tourist it is most likely that before you have been more than a day in Cigar Town your sleeve will be plucked by a gentleman with rings in his ears and a great grandfather whose brother was Morgan's boatswain. He is starving (the gentleman with earrings). Gastados, and the chart, a family possession long lost and only just turned up, he will sell you for a hundred pounds; well, then, he will sell it for twenty pesetas, if you will promise to give him a quarter share of the treasure when found. The funny thing is that he must sell his charts. You would not find a man peddling oranges in a city whose inhabitants had no mouths with which to suck oranges—in a city destitute, to put it crudely, of suckers. But I'll wager he does not sell them to the Spaniards, but to the English-speaking races, brought up on the "Gold Bug" and "Treasure Island" and the father of all treasure tales, "Monte Cristo."

In my experience every treasure hunt in real life, with one exception to which I am coming, has always proved to be a case of cherchez l'autre—generally some lying old shell-back with a romantic complex, or some plain crook, each working, of course, on ground tilled and fertilised by Poe, Stevenson, Dumas, and Co. One example in this special connection will do.

A friend of mine named Smith, staying at Gergenti, sitting one day in front of his hotel, was accosted by a gentleman with exceptional manners and a black beard. The bearded one, after some general conversation about the weather and the olive crop, became at once mysterious and informative. Leaning forward in his basket chair he told Mr. Smith that he knew of a treasure in the vicinity that was only waiting to be dug up; he was unable to do the digging himself owing to an injury to his right arm, and was in need of an assistant. Would Smith do the digging on a fifty-fifty basis?

Smith said he would. There seemed no snag in the business, no money was asked for, and the bearded person was evidently a gentleman—of the Italian school. The cache, it seemed, lay half a mile beyond the olive groves to the right of the hotel, and the moment was now. "But if people were to see me digging?" objected Smith. "If they did they would take you for an antiquarian," replied the other with a laugh, "and not for what you are. I can borrow a shovel and pick from the landlord of the hotel to dig for Roman remains; people are always doing it. Wait for me."

He came back in a few minutes with the pick and shovel, and they proceeded to the terrazza.

The place was sufficiently desolate, and the "spot" was evidently well-known to the bland and bearded one. He marked out an oblong area seven feet by four, and Smith, taking off his coat, began to dig.

It was hot work; the place had once been an olive grove, and the ground was full of old roots. As he laboured something occurred to his mind. What did the stranger mean by those words. "They would take you for an antiquarian, and not for what you are?"

He looked up out of the pit at the black-bearded one, outlined against the blue Sicilian sky, and was about to ask the question when he saw a pistol in the hand of the U.S.O. said the latter, "your disguise did not deceive me, in the least, and now that you have dug your grave here in my garden of Antiquity. At this moment asylum attendants burst on the scene and secured the Count of Monte Cristo, who had escaped, not from the Chateau d'If, but the maison de sante at Palermo."

"For whom did he take you?" asked the head attendant of the saved one.

"He called me Villefort," said Smith.

"Then," said the other, "you may thank your God he didn't take you for Caderousse. In that case he would have knifed you on the spot without bothering to make you dig your grave."

I give this true story as an acute example of the romantic lunacy that inspires the treasure hunter—for Smith, falling in with such a proposition was as big a lunatic in his way as the proposer. I told it the other day to one of the hardest-headed men in London and he said, "All the same, and even if you are right about the Romanticists, treasure, as a thing to be sought for, isn't dead."

Then he went on: "My friends, the Smiths, of Surbiton, were married, and would have been happy only that they hadn't quite enough money. Mrs. S. was nearly driven distracted by servant worries and the other res angustia domi, she wanted to live in a hotel or service flat, but she hadn't the money. One day her husband found her in great excitement.

"You remember that dream I had the other night," said she, "after I'd been reading of the Cocos Island Expedition. It's brought luck, I believe I've got the indication of—well, read this letter." She handed him a letter written in a curious, old-fashioned hand.

"Rubbish," he said. "I don't believe it; there's no such thing, you are being fooled."

"All the same," said she, "you've got to go and try and find out about it."

"And, grumbling at her stupidity—as it seemed to him—off he went. The first indication pointed to an old house in Hampton, where he interviewed an old lady; she was reserved in manner but kindly; they talked for ten minutes; then he rushed from the house, called a taxi and drove to a house in X-street. Here he met an old-fashioned looking General, almost Victorian in appearance, who, after an interview, went upstairs and had fetched down two heavy boxes locked and corded. Two minutes later the General and the boxes accompanied him into the taxi and sitting side by side they started for Waterloo Station and Surbiton. Smith almost surprised that an hallooing mob was not chasing them, rob him of his treasure. A real treasure: a General who disliked cinemas, had a ten years' character to dig.

The Very Idea!

PANTOMINING

By Edward Kelly, Prospector

FOR the information of the charming young lady who, in the Y.M.C.A. Pantomini last night, played the part of Robin Hood, and who, during the First Act, asked "Where's Old Kelly," we wish to state that we can be found in the Telegraph office any morning between 11.55 a.m. and noon, or any afternoon between 2.30 and 3 p.m.

Furthermore, we are at this moment heart free, it's pay day on Monday, we have a ducky little two-seater car, and appointments may be made by arrangement.

The other people who sang that particular song, being all males, can mind their own business.

Actually, we went to the pantomine under a false impression. We thought it was "The Babes in the Wood," and a skit on the local nudist Colony.

There were three acts, including the acts with which Bob Salk was going to cut off the heads of the Babes. In the second act there was scene one, scene two and scene three. We have often scene double, but never scene three before.

The plot moved on. In Act I Robin Hood made love to Maid Marion, but found she was the Marlon kind.

The Babes were led into the woods to be slaughtered by the robbers, and presently squalls off-stage informed us that the slaughter was taking place.

Closer investigation, however, showed that it was merely the pipers piping in the haggis at the Scottish do on the other side of the harbour.

Someone at the back of the hall fell off their seat. The excitement was growing intense.

The villain strode on to the stage.

"Foiled!" he muttered. "Wood'n the Babes?" someone in the audience asked.

"Bah!" he shouted. "Everyone started shouting, so we went out and shouted ourself a glass of milk."

Act II. We came in. The lights went out. The audience quivered with excitement.

Nymphs and fauns nipped and fawned around the sleeping Babes. Somewhere an owl howled, and Robin Hood shivered (Don't interrupt us, we're beginning to like doing this). The bad Uncle laughed scornfully.

"To-night, when the clock strikes twelve, the Babes will be murdered!" he hissed.

"No!" shouted Robin bravely. "Yes!" he snarled. "Yes!" "Yes!"

"Yes!" (Alright, alright, we're telling this story)

Maid Marion dashed into Robin's arms.

"Ho shall not harm you!" she panted. (Panted is the right word. Make no mistake about it, we are now in the Y.M.C.A.)

Robin placed his arms around her.

"There, there," he whispered tenderly, "be not afraid, old pal o' mine." Or was it pal o' mine? Pal o' mine! Pant o' mine? YES! (Which reminds us, we must get that button sewn on to-morrow.)

The two robbers rushed on to the stage, women screamed and strong men in the audience fainted. The milk we had drunk during the interval curdled.

"Robber!" shouted Robin. "Robin!" screamed Marion. "Who's robbin'?" asked the robbers.

"I am!" said Robin. "Liar! We are!" "Robbing what?" "You!"

"Yes, I said I was!" "You're what?" "Rob."

Editorial Note: It is regretted that this stirring story ends here. The author was discovered this morning lying unconscious across his typewriter, with the unfinished manuscript still in it. Readers may rest assured that this lapse will never be repeated, as Mr. Kelly has undertaken not to drink milk again.

tor was warranted never to fight with housemaids, only wanted $35 a year and could cook—a cook-general, in fact, of the old type in this world of Brigadier-Generals.

I believe this was a true story. But the point is, if I were to peddle treasure charts round London to-morrow indicating the position of a treasure like this, I would not sell one in a month of Sundays. I would be working on a public mind untrilled by the Romanticists—the public would not believe that such a treasure existed—and may be the public would be right.

"I was born right up there somewhere."

ON ALIBIS

THOUGHTS ON A.D.C. PRODUCTION

There is much magic in an alibi. It is such a simple and yet so potent a weapon if effectively wielded. To the untutored mind of the ordinary malefactor it is almost a necessity. His first idea in nine cases out of ten when gripped by the arm of the law is to cry aloud "I didn't do it. I couldn't have done it. I wasn't there." "Well," said Mr. Weller to his son Sam, "Now I suppose Mr. Pickwick will want some witnesses to speak to his character or perhaps to prove an alibi. I've got some friends who'll do either for him but my advice, 'ud be this here—never mind the character but stick to the alibi. Nothing like an alibi, Sammy, nothing." This advice was given before the famous breach of promise action "Bardell v. Pickwick" which ended in judgment for the plaintiff with £700 damages. On hearing the news Mr. Weller asks sadly of his son "Oh, Sammy, why weren't there an alibi?"

The weak point about Mr. Weller's idea of an alibi was his apparent conviction that it could only be established by the evidence of witnesses who would be ready to swear falsely that the defendant was elsewhere at the time of the wrong-doing. The greater subtlety of an alibi manufactured by the wrong-doer himself was beyond his ken. Witnesses who he may be caught out, but circumstances, says the old legal adage, cannot lie. Hence the really perfect though false alibi is one which every circumstance of the case seems to establish and which is at the same time supported by the evidence of unimpeachable witnesses who have been themselves misled by the apparent circumstances.

It is such an alibi that Colin Derwent manufactured for himself in "Ten Minute Alibi" which the A.D.C. is playing at the Naval Canton Theatre between February 17th and 24th. He is the one person who must inevitably be suspected of the morally justifiable murder which he has committed, yet he is able to make it appear by circumstantial and by direct evidence that he could not have been present at the time of the murder. And he gets away with it, and carries the sympathies of the audience with him. Booking opens at the Anderson Music Co. on February 7th.

travelling on foot right across China into Russia; and having enlisted the sympathies of another youngster, he began to make preparations for this truly remarkable journey, when his friend, either through fear or some other cause, backed out, and the scheme fell to the ground.

He returned to England, and having received an invitation from a journalistic friend in Melbourne, he went out and joined the staff of a new paper which his friend had just started. The thirst for roaming, however, not having been quenched, he soon packed up his luggage, which consisted of little more than a pipe and a toothbrush, and made his way to Sydney, where unexpectedly falling in with an old school companion who had run away from his ship and was penniless, while he was the possessor of the magnificent sum of £4, he agreed to share it with him, and they set off in search of more gold. After tramping through many parts of Australia, including the Blue Mountain Range and many other districts, during which he was stock-driver, gold-digger, lumber, and many other things, he came back to Sydney with 1½d. in his pocket.

IN A TYPHOON.

To China again in a coal barge, which was dismasted in a typhoon in the China Sea. He saw the rising in New York, he was in Washington when President Lincoln was assassinated. He was once accused by the editor of a paper of being an armchair traveller. He ventured to remind him that his wanderings had led him over many of the beaten tracks of the globe and not a few of the unfrequented ones; that a man who had doubled the Cape twelve times, had been twice round the Horn, had sailed nearly every known sea, and had hobnobbed with cannibals in the Pacific Ocean, been nearly frozen to death in Polar cold, had been four days without water in the Australian desert, suffering the unspeakable agonies of thirst under a broiling sun, could scarcely, with any regard for veracity, be described as an "armchair traveller."

He bought a paper, which he edited for some years, in South London. Finding journalistic work not sufficiently remunerative, he essayed a serial story which attracted the attention of William Tinsley in 1873. It gave him his start in novel-writing and they came out in steady quantity afterwards.—Router and Special.

Exchanges were fairly even for a time, but after twenty minutes, Lt. Cheyne put the Olympus further ahead. Upon resumption, the Olympus continued their attacks, but an accident occurred to Warner of the Pandors within the next few minutes. In attempting to tackle Graham, he made a mistake and received the full force of the ball, which necessitated him leaving the field for about ten minutes. During his absence, Lt. Cheyne broke through to pass to Lt. Comdr. Hill, who scored with a good shot into the corner of the net.

The end came with the Olympus winners by three goals to nil. B. Air for the winners was outstanding, while Lt. Cheyne was in fine shooting form. Warner played well for the losers, while Johnson played a staunch defensive game at back.

The following lined up under S. P. O. Douglas:—

H.M.S. Olympus:—Barber, Carly, White; Lt. North, Blair, Graham; Lt. Comdr. Hill, Richardson, S/Lt. Cheyne; Norman and Davies.
H.M.S. Pandors:—Bennett; Frampton, Johnson; Brown, Warner, Robson, Thomas, Swann, Ford, Tupper, Thornhill.

EXCITING RUGBY Berwick Beat Tamar and Small Ships

An exciting rugby match took place at Lumpy Valley yesterday afternoon between the Berwick and the Tamar and Small Ships, the Berwick emerging victors by nine points to nil.

Mudford, Corp and Nicholls scored, but Masters could not convert. The following represented the Berwick: Meek, Richards, Parker, Masters, Thomas, Mudford, Jones; Dunblon, Corp, Stout, Cadywold, Martell, Nicholls, Jeffries, Crowman.

"BURNS NIGHT"

DINNER HELD LAST NIGHT

Under the auspices of the Hongkong St. Andrew's Society, "Burns Night" was celebrated by a dinner at the Roof Garden of the Hongkong Hotel last night. Mr. A. L. Shields, President of the Society, presiding. The toast of "The Immortal Memory" was proposed by Sir William Hornell, who delivered an eloquent address extolling Scotland's national bard and analysing his works. Mr. K. MacKenzie proposed "The Lassies," and Mr. R. R. Campbell replied. During the evening, a presentation, in the form of a silver salver, was made to Mr. David Gow, one of the oldest members of the Society, who is shortly retiring. A most enjoyable evening was spent, the speeches being interspersed with Scottish musical items.

Australian music, national and bush songs and stories will be given by Madame Lottie Gordon, Mrs. Lyle Wilcox, Miss Geneva Li Sun and Miss Vera Clark. Booking at Moutrie and Helena May.

SOME REMARKABLE RIDING FEATS

horsemen established a wonderful record, as the Cannons won 3,800 races.

In 1873 H. Constable defeated F. Archer by three points for the Jockeys' championship. Then when Archer came into fame Constable was the runner-up in each of the five years up to 1878.

During the last eight years Archer was riding, from 1870, the still-living Charlie Wood was second seven times, and Fordham was second in 1880. In 1882, when Wood was runner-up he won 182 races, and rode 183 winners in 1883.

Charlie Wood won 1,350 races with in ten years, and after the death of Archer he was on top of the list in 1887. Fred Barrett secured the laurels in 1888, when Wood was standing down; and for several years during this period George Barrett and John Watts finished in the first three.

J. Watts, who won the Epsom Derby four times, won 1,412 races in all, and with a shorter period in the saddle George Barrett rode 1,370 winners.

OTTO MADDEN'S REIGN.

TOM LOATES defeated G. Barrett for the leading position in 1889 and after standing down for a couple of seasons T. Loates defeated M. Cannon in 1893. In this year Loates had 867 mounts, and he rode 222 winners, and when he retired he had won 1,426 races.

Sam Loates' cannon won upwards of 1,800 races, and his record was only surpassed by F. Archer and G. Fordham. Having been head of the list in 1891 and 1892, he was again champion four times in succession from 1894, and in each of two seasons he won upwards of 180 races.

Otto Madden followed Cannon in his splendid career. He was champion again in 1901, 1903, and 1904. Madden was riding during the war, and he has ridden over 1,600 winners. Sam Loates defeated Madden for the coveted position in 1899, and in the following year the American, Lester Reiff, displaced Sam Loates. This was the first American year for five Yankee jockeys finished in the first ten. They were L. Reiff, J. Reiff, Sloan, Rigby, and J. H. Martin.

William Lane finished on top in 1902 to break the Madden spell, and in 1905 Madden was second to the apprentice E. Wheatley. William Higgins was then champion twice, and he was succeeded by D. Maher in 1908.

It was in 1908 that Frank Wootton finished second with 129 wins, and Wootton was then a boy who reached his fifteenth birthday in the December. Frank Wootton won the highest honours in four successive years from 1909, and he then finished second to Danny Maher in 1913.

BALLANT DANNY MAHER. MAHER's record was exceptional. He settled here in 1900, and in addition to leading twice he was "placed" nine times. He was top on percentages eight times, and he won 1,421 races in England.

Stephen Donkhuu followed Maher as champion jockey in 1914, and was never beaten for ten seasons. Donkhuu has won more than 1,000 races. E. C. Elliott was first on the list in 1924, and Gordon Richards defeated all his rivals in 1925.

T. Weston was on top in 1926, and Richards secured the honours in 1927 and the two following years.

Fred Fox led in 1930, when he rode one more winner than Richards. Gordon was champion in 1931, 1932, and for the seventh time in the season recently closed.

Leaving the flat-race jockeys, the remarkable record of George Stevens is worthy of mention.

Stevens rode in fifteen Grand Nationals between 1852 and 1871, and never came to grief.

He rode five winners in Freeholder in 1856, Emblem in 1863, Emblematic in 1864, and The Colonel twice in 1869 and 1870. He was also third on Emblematic in 1865, fourth on Marla Agnes in 1866, sixth on Orkosta in 1869, sixth on The Colonel in 1871, and eighth on Tennyson in 1867.

All volunteer workers who attend the Shelter of the Street Sleepers Society, are asked to make an attempt to be on duty at 5.45 p.m. sharp each evening.

Professor G.A. Middleton Smith will give an address on "Waste—The Old Savage in the New Civilization" at a general meeting of the Engineering Society on Thursday, February 8, at 8.30 in Room "K" at the Union.

NO BATTLE SQUADRON FOR HONGKONG

London, Jan. 25. The persistent rumour, believed to have emanated from Hongkong, that a British battle squadron would leave for the Far East in the spring, and in addition that the whole of the Rainbow Class of submarines would take post on the China Station, is dismissed as baseless by official quarters.—Router.

THE BOOKSHELF

WARD, LOCK'S NEW FICTION

Light fiction of the most entertaining kind is included in the latest issues of Ward, Lock and Company's Colonial Library series. "Crumpled Lilies," by Carlton Davis, is another of the "Leather-mouth" stories and deals chiefly with a kidnapping incident. Thrill follows thrill and there are many exciting episodes before the hero is eventually rescued. There is plenty of romance in the story, and we can thoroughly recommend this novel to those in search of a well-written story.

When one sees a novel by Charman Edwards one naturally expects something good and in "Drink No Deeper" there is no disappointment. It is an excellent character story of John Leroux who starts his career in the old shipping firm of Leroux, Standish & Co, but who eventually goes to sea. The reader must be left to learn for himself of the gruelling and tragic events which follow, and of the pathetic and wistful ending. There is only one woman character throughout the book, but that does not detract in any way from its interest. To lovers of Charman Edwards this novel should not be missed.

Another story of the sea is "Red Invader," by Harry Edwards. It is the tale of a retired naval officer who is persuaded into joining an old shipmate on a cruise on a ten-ton sailing cutter. It is an excellent yarn, full of excitement and hair-breadth escapes, and very breezily told—a real man's story.

In "This Yellow Slave" by Lynn Durie, there is never a dull moment. It is an adventure novel set in Arabia, and grips the attention from start to finish. John Gray, a woman-hater, is the hero, and how he defeats the schemes of some Arabs in a series of violent crimes, perpetrated against society, makes most thrilling reading. A shipwreck episode is very graphically described. Altogether a most entertaining story.

thrilling story. To lovers of cattle country stories we advise "Tall Grass" by E. Murray Campbell. Rose Hand, the daughter of a former owner of a ranch out West, finds her former home in the hands of an unscrupulous villain, when she turns up in answer to an advertisement. She is tricked into an odious marriage and flees to Kent Dayton on a neighbouring ranch for protection. Many dangerous adventures befall the pair before they are eventually married. The picturesque country settings help to make this thrilling tale a most enjoyable one.

SLOW WORK BY SUBSCRIPTIONS AND AUSTRALIANS

DERBY CANDIDATES
MORE IMPRESSIVESOLDIER OF CHINA PROVES TO
BE GENUINE STAYERHEM STABLE'S STRING OF PONIES
NOT YET UP TO FORMDERBY GRIFFINS DO MUCH STRONGER WORK

(By "Captain Foster")

I was hoping to confine myself this week entirely to the Subscription griffins and Australians but unfortunately their work, on the whole, has been on the slow side and uninteresting, and I fear that what little I have to say concerning them would have bored my readers intensely, not being in a position to enlighten them very much on the chances the various Stables have of winning at the Annual Meeting.

Suffice it to say that Chesterfield still continues to please, and that I was very much taken with the style in which he cantered a mile and a half last Tuesday afternoon. He came home nicely in a tick over 32 and the watch registered 3-35 4/5 for the entire distance.

Both Cavalcade and Young Chap came down the straight well with in 31 4/5 in a gallop of three quarters of a mile which took 1-42 4/5. In Good Time showed up well by covering a mile in 2-16 3/5, last half in 1-06 3/5, and last quarter in 33 1/5.

A NON-STAYER.

Sarabande—a pony which I once rated highly—is, I fear revealing himself as a non-stayer, his finishing quarter's are always poor, and in no instance have I seen him come home in under 33 sec.

As regards the Derby griffins, much stronger work has been done, and the outstanding gallop of the week undoubtedly belongs to Soldier of Britain. The most critical cannot possibly cavil at his performance of Wednesday last when he faultlessly galloped a mile in 2-12 2/5; the last three quarters of a mile was accomplished in the very excellent time of 1-31 2/5; last half in 1-01 2/5 and final quarter in 30 2/5. He was unaccompanied. To me, the pony appears to possess "speed" and not "stamina"; and I think that time will eventually show him to be a "nailer" up to a mile—possibly a mile and a quarter.

On the other hand, Soldier of China can definitely be put down as a genuine stayer, and that he will be very, very dangerous when he strips for the Derby. He impresses me with each outing. In these animals, Mr. L. Shiu-pang owns two high class ponies who will run prominently at the Meeting.

His Soldier of Germany, although eclipsed by the two greys, is no mean performer and will repay following.

KING'S WARDEN SHAPING WELL.

Mr. Dynasty's King's Warden is shaping well and on his recent gallops will, I think, be dangerous wherever he starts, and Mrs. Pearce's Trowbridge is coming nicely to hand. Both these ponies went an easy three quarters last Wednesday in 1-38, and finished strongly. The last half mile was done in 1-03 2/5, and final quarter in 30 4/5.

Mr. Li Tse-fong galloped his Derby candidates last Sunday morning and, although High Speed returned a time of 3-24 for the mile and a half, the final (35 sec.) was not impressive enough to run him as being up to classic standard.

Messrs. HEM galloped their string of griffins last Saturday morning. I was unimpressed with their performances and feel that they will have to show very great improvement before they can be considered serious contenders for classic honours. Herod and Bayardo, in particular, undoubtedly show quality, but their gallops on the course, so far, are not in keeping with their looks. I am very much afraid that the accepted phrase "handsome is as handsome does" does not apply to them.

The Dunbar stable have done faster work during the past week. Oak Bay did not appear to me to have a finish as he took 33 sec. for the final quarter in a three quarter mile spin in 1-38 3/5. Chief Seattle did a fast gallop of a mile and the "riding boy" apparently was out to do time, as the first quarter was done in 31 3/5 sec; the first half mile in 1-04; the first three quarters in 1-36 1/5, and the time for the full distance was 2-09 3/5.

MR. HARRIMAN SHOULD BE PLEASED.

Mr. Harriman has, popped the question, and his Zar's answer should please him immensely. The

ROOTY
HILL DERBYSOLDIER STABLE STILL LEADS

(By "Capt. Foster")

The Third Call Over last night was without any change in the Rooty-Hill Derby and will remain so until Princess Angeline has been stretched. This mare (by Valiant, dam Dewberry) is considered in some quarters as the best Australian Sub-Griffin and her sister Just That, just out of the Walking List is now attracting attention. High Finance and Racing Heart can be placed at 5/1. No enquiries for the Valley Stakes.

Soldier of Britain's gallop of last Wednesday, namely, 2-12 2/5 for a mile and 1-31 2/5 for the last three quarters has enlivened the market and at 3/1 supporters held off, but a level bet (even money) has done in favour of King's Warden against Soldier of Britain.

Prima Donna has supporters at 10/1 but has shortened to 8/1. The market is firm at 4/1 for the Dynasty and Star Stable. 5/1 against Trowbridge cannot attract business and Dunbar stable is now quoted at 10/1 with no response, and the same figure for Chief

SUNDAY'S RACE MEETING
AT FANLINGTWO LOCAL RIDERS MAKING
DEBUT OVER STICKSLIKELY WINNERS INCLUDE MARQUIS

THE LADIES' RACE

(By "Captain Foster")

Sunday next should again see a very large number of enthusiastic race-goers wending their way to Kwant' to enjoy a pleasant afternoon's racing under National Hunt Rules.

An attractive card has been drawn up and racing, on the whole, should be keenly contested and well worth going to see.

Two local riders in Messrs. Deitz and Fung will be making their debut over "sticks" at Kwant'. The former, I understand, has ridden in many Steeplechases and Hurdle races in Shanghai, but the latter is making his first appearance over obstacles. Good luck to them both and, perhaps, they may encourage other local riders to emulate them in the near future.

All will be made most welcome and I feel sure that once they experience the thrills of chasing they will become staunch supporters of the "lepping" game.

I fear I have somewhat wandered away from the path of weighing up the prospects of the ponies competing, but before dealing with them, I would take this opportunity of reminding owners and riders that they must have their nominations made out by 2 o'clock for the first race, and forty five minutes before each subsequent event. Forms for this purpose will be found in the Weighing Room, and when completed, should be handed in to the Official in Charge there.

UNITED SERVICE HURDLE RACE.

At least ten ponies will face the Starter here, but I think Celerity, Gallant Fox, and The Quail will be concerned with the finish. On past Seattle and the Redshank. The View Stable is now at 12/1 but rail birds are holding to 15/1. Against what is Chance. HEM neglected.

The call over is as follows:

3/1	for the Soldier Stable
4/1	"Dynasty"
4/1	"Star"
5/1	"Trowbridge"
10/1	"Dunbar"
10/1	"Chief Seattle"
10/1	"The Redshank"
12/1	"View Stable"

Mr. Deitz, who, I understand, will be his pilot in this instance, and puts his heart into the race, he is good enough to win.

Christmas Belle is a fine hurdler but I fear she will be out-classed in this field. Wembley Stag can gallop and will run well. The two ponies I like best are Orlando and Stickypast, and I think the issue will be between them. My fancy, however, is Orlando; he is very fast and, I gather, jumps well.

THE "DIANA" CUP.

The Ladies race is always a popular event and usually a good betting race. On his Happy Valley performances, No Fear, who will be ridden by Miss Lois Fearon, will, I imagine, carry the bulk of the money, and I think he will win. Golden Star, with Mrs. Peter Williams in the saddle, is dangerous and Glen Shee, who will be handled by Miss Pamela Scott Harston, will also be in the picture.

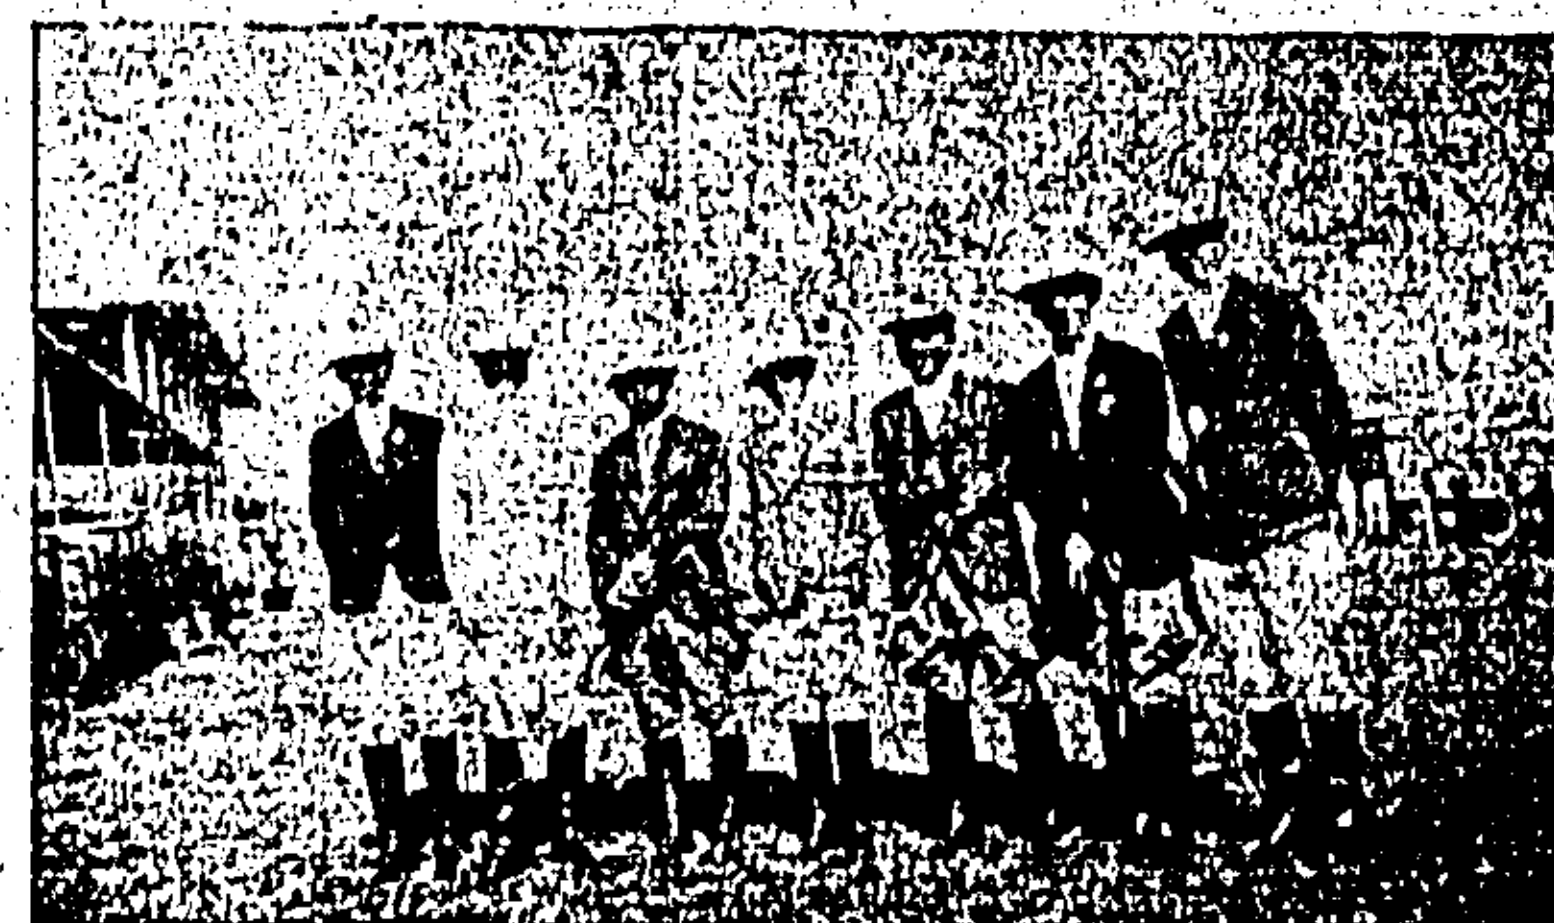

I cannot see any of the other starters displacing these three ponies unless it is Tim, who will be ridden by Miss Beryl Fair. Her sister, Miss Betty, will be badly missed from the field on account of illness, as she is a very keen rider, and I am very glad to hear that she is expected to leave the hospital very soon now.

THE JANUARY COUNTRY CUP.

I understand that both Winchester Stag and Tom Cobley will come under the Starter's order for this country event of approximately two miles and, although the latter will be carrying a penalty of 7 lbs. I expect to see a very fine finish between them. I have a leaning towards Winchester Stag who I think will win, but it is certain that the race will be very close and fast.

Red Leaves should fill the third position. My final selections will appear tomorrow.

TO-DAY'S BIG HOCKEY
TRIAL MATCHINTERPORT TEAM TO BE CHOSEN
FROM THE PLAYERSMY PEN PICTURES OF PROBABLES AND POSSIBLES

(By "Bully-Off")

The final trial in preparation for the Interport tournament between Hongkong and Macao during the Chinese New Year holidays takes place on the H.K. Club ground at King's Park this afternoon, bully-off at 5 p.m. I am publishing below pen pictures of the two teams and have indicated who, in my opinion, should find themselves in the representative Colony side.

PEN PICTURES OF THE POSSIBLES.

R. H. Wong (St. Andrew's): A safe choice for goalkeeper and should be the final selection for the Hongkong team. Not by any means a spectacular custodian. He is safe though slightly slow in clearing. Uses his feet well with fast shots, and is never flustered.

Blackburn (Police): Played rather well at right back for the Colours in the first trial. He is not a hard hitter, and does not excel the qualities of Rodrigues.

J. Rodger (Club): A definite left back for the Colony team. By far one of the best players in the defence category. Though slow in recovery his rock-like steadiness and anticipatory powers cover that fault. He should also make an able skipper of the eleven.

J. Gonzales (Recreio): A good tackler. Works hard, but is too fond of clearing with scoop shots. He proved to be a "find" in the first trial when he kept Archer, on the left wing, in good check. I think, though, that he cannot displace W. Reed.

Lieut. Sinclair (H.M.S. Medway): A centre-half of mediocre calibre. His clearances are slow. I should have preferred to have seen Lowe instead in to-day's match.

N. Whitley (C.B.A.): A likely candidate for interport honours if he would only use his head a bit more when clearing. He tackles well. Was not too impressive, though, in the trials.

N. A. E. Mackay (St. Andrew's): Perhaps only the Selectors know why he is being given another trial. I certainly don't. The answer probably is that there is a dearth of right wings. He failed at right wing and, as I have said before, he was out of place and invariably offside in that position on Sunday. He is definitely an inside forward.

T. S. D. Whitley (C. B. A.): A brilliant player who can claim inclusion. Possessing clever stick work, he follows up well. He impressed very much in the first trial. His form this afternoon may be a deciding factor.

Avtar Singh (Radio): Another player with good stick work. A splendid centre-forward but he is slightly below the standard of Gurbachan Singh—at least, as a goal-getter certainly. He combines well.

Kalwant Singh (Radio): His inclusion to partner Gurbachan Singh should be seriously considered. Their combination is of a high standard, and should prove a definite asset to the Colony attack. He is also a reliable forward.

Lal Singh (Punjabia): No better choice for a left wing. He is tricky, speedy and wields the reverse stick pass with no mean accuracy.

—AND THE PROBABLES.
Pte. Hollingsworth (Lincolns): Although he had little chance in the first trial to show the selectors his true worth the way he responded ed to the calls made on him secured his inclusion in the final trial. I have seen him playing in the Regimental team and the Army XI and although more spectacular than Wong will, I think, take second place to him. Wong is safer.

A. J. M. Rodrigues (University): One of the surprises of the trials. He commands a strong hit and covers well. I would place confidence in Rodrigues and Rodger as the two backs for the Colony against the Portuguese team.

Sub. Taj Mohamed (Punjabia): Is not in the same class as Rodger or left back position. He is a mediocre player and is inclined to give sticks too often. The matches against the Macao eleven will probably be played on grass and here Taj Mohamed will be at a further disadvantage, being used on a sand or a mud field.

W. A. Reed (Club): A certain choice. There is no right half in the Colony to touch him for class and constant form. As I have said before, he would probably secure a place in an international trial if not in an international side.

Halford (C.B.A.): A much better selection than Lieut. Sinclair for the pivotal position. I would rather see H. J. D. Lowe in the centre and Halford at left-half, but the selectors have, in their wisdom, seen fit to include Lowe only as a reserve half. Under the circumstances Halford should be the final selection.

E. V. Reed (Club): Will probably be favoured for the left half position to N. Whitley. He plays a good destructive game (and places his passes to the forwards with more accuracy than his rival. Has an extraordinary strong hit and seldom uses the flick shot.

The Donald-Eden wing (H.M.S. Medway): It is impossible to take these two players separately. Where the name of one appears in hockey the other is not far away. They are almost certain to constitute the right flank of the attack. Donald is the fastest forward in the Colony, and with Eden inside to him, is equal to any situation. Eden is also fast and a very pushful forward. I think the latter will get into the side in preference to T. Whitley.

G. Singh (Radio): Has been playing inside right for the Radio this season, but will get his place in the representative side at centre-forward. He is fast, commands good control of the ball and is deadly in the circle. He cannot be left out.

Lieut. C. C. Garthwaite (R.A.): The selectors made a big mistake in including him in the previous trial at right inner. He is essentially a left flank man. Plays a hard game, but I think Kalwant Singh will get into the side.

S. C. Archer (Club): Is a hard worker and gets in some useful centres. As was evidenced in the trials he is an onsy man to cover. Tackling is however rather a weak point with him. I doubt if he will get a place.

Some Remarkable Riding Feats

FORDHAM CHAMPION FOURTEEN YEARS: THE GREAT
AMERICAN YEAR OF 1900

IT is not an easy matter to imagine a more colourless spell of a sporting journalist's career than when cooling his heels waiting for the Stewards' for a race meeting to take place.

Some of us experienced this at Gatwick and Esher the other week, when "standing by" writes an English racing correspondent.

I was inveigled into numerous arguments connected with racing records and statistics, and as a result, I have spent many hours since looking up old issues of "Bell's Life," "Races Past," issued by Messrs. Weatherby, and more recent copies of "The Sporting Life."

FOUR-MILE HEATS.

MOST racing men were of the opinion that Gordon Richards had beaten all records when riding twelve consecutive winners—one at Nottingham and eleven at Cheltenham.

Gordon's feat stands so far as the record books show, but here and there I came across references to the famous George Heron.

George Heron, like Archer and Richards, was the rider of his day, but in his time races were run in a series of heats.

Heron rode as many as nineteen consecutive winners in heats, mostly of four miles.

Heron was killed when riding at Hull on July 20, 1900.

There is a footnote under the details of the race in the "Calendar," which reads:

"Gipsy threw her rider, George Heron, twice before the race, and again immediately after starting. We are concerned to state that the latter proved fatal to him."

Heron's death was responsible for races at Hull being abandoned for some considerable time.

THE LATE CAPTAIN
R. E. SASSOON.

NAME TO BE PERPETUATED.

His many friends here and in China, particularly in Shanghai, will be interested to hear that the name of Captain R. E. Sassoon is to be perpetuated at Hurst Park. His mother, Mrs. Meyer Sassoon, has presented a Gold Cup to be competed for annually, commencing next month.

The race, worth £350 in addition to the Gold Cup, is to be known as The R. E. Sassoon Challenge Cup, confined to amateur riders, and run over three miles and one hundred and eighty yards.

The Cup is to be held by the owner of the winner of the race for one year, and the Hurst Park executive give a cup value £25 to the rider of the winner.

H.A.V.I.N.G.—beaten one of Fred

Archer's famous records, Richards will, no doubt, set about some others, but he has a long way to go. Fordham was champion fourteen times between 1865 and 1871. Archer held the distinction for thirteen successive years from 1874; and Donoghue an unbroken run of ten years from 1914 to 1923.

It is remarkable that Donoghue completed his sequence when he divided the honours with E. C. Elliot in 1923; and exactly the same thing happened in 1871, when Fordham "dead-heated" with G. Maidment. The score in 1871 was 80 each, and 80 each have won several English riders have won more races in their time than Gordon Richards. These include the still living ex-champions, M. Cannons, S. Donoghue, C. Wood, and O. Madden.

Fordham was champion five times, when the handicap minimum was down to 4st. All through Archer's career the minimum was 5st 7lb. and for the last eight years from 1870 Archer's weight was given in "Ruff's Guide" as 8st 7lb.

Archer rode upwards of 200 winners in eight different seasons, and although he made the record of winning 240 races in 1885, he had also won 241 races in 1884, when he had only 577 mounts.

OVER 8,000 MOUNTS.

DURING his riding career from 1870 to 1880, Archer had 8,054 mounts under Jockey Club Rules, and he rode 2,746 winners. In addition, he won many races in various countries in Europe.

Fordham won 2,510 races, and he with C. Maidment. The score in 1871 1893. He was close-up second to S. Kenyon in 1890, and second to J. Grimshaw in 1894. He had been champion in 1895, and the only time he was beaten before 1872 was when W. Gray was on top in 1870.

Tom Cannon was the leading jockey in 1872, and during his long spell from 1880 to 1891 he rode 1,544 winners. Tom Cannon was the father of some brilliant sons, and together these

CRICKET CLUB LACKS ENTERPRISE AGAINST ARMY

MAKE AN ULTRA-CAUTIOUS DECLARATION

And Lose Opportunity of Winning A Very Good Game

RODRIGUES AN INTERPORTER IN THE MAKING

(By R. Abbit)

The Club have only their own lack of enterprise to thank for the fact that they failed to win their match against the Army on Saturday last. They won the toss but did not put their opponents in.

It is generally held now that this is the best thing to do if one is all out to force a win. Still it may be arguable. But, after having agreed to draw stumps at 5.45 p.m.—five minutes before the proper time by the way—they did not declare until five minutes to four, and thus gave the Army a hundred minutes to get two hundred runs. When the strength of the Club bowling is considered this is of course ultra-cautious, especially in view of the fact that the only real quick scoring bat in the Army team is Captain Williams.

Had the Club declared a quarter of an hour or more before, say with a hundred and seventy on the board, it is most probable they would have won as the Army fall is very collapse and the earlier batsmen with a more reasonable proposition to face would have gone all out for the runs—and most likely would not have got them.

Apart from the question of tactics however it was a good game to watch. Hayward opened very confidently and seems infinitely more at home this season. Last year his shots were very stiff and cramped. He looked like getting a lot until he mistimed a shot from Elvin—who still suffers from the Scorer's refusal to write him down with the correct spelling. He should recollect Mr. Weller Senior's advice and "put it down with a 'v', my Lord."

Anyway Walker took a pretty hot one high above his head at mid-off. Up to this point Owen Hughes had not seemed comfortable but he settled down later and proceeded to score very fast except for Garthwaite. I think however that with any luck Elvin might have had his wicket early on.

THE CLUB BAT TOO LONG.

Alec Pearce was bowled by a long hop which kept very low and T. E. did not stay very long. Harley however stopped in, though he is a wretched starter.

Then runs began to come very fast. Owen Hughes was at his best and executed his favourite square cut and leg hitting to the full.

He was unfortunate to be run out when five short of his century. It looked a safe run but Whitely from fine third-man on the boundary threw the wicket down with a very fast and accurate return. There were incidentally some good bits of work in the field individually but on the whole the ground fielding was poor—though no doubt the old weather accounted for much of the fumbling. After his dismissal the later Club batsmen laid about them. The curious feature of this portion of the game was the way in which Harley failed to get the bowling. He received one ball in five overs during one period. In the end a belated declaration found him thirty-nine not out.

A COMFORTABLE DRAW.

Set with two hundred to get in just under a hundred minutes the Army had little chance of a win. Mitchell and Bill Williams started soundly and looked as if they were there for keeps, when the latter got a nasty one on the glove from Beck, and the ball rolled on to the off stump before he could stop it.

Garthwaite settled down though the wicket was a beast and Beck was rather dangerous. He had Mitchell caught smartly at third slip by McInnes off one that kicked up, and then Captain Williams came in.

I had been looking forward to seeing the duel between these two. It did not last very long unfortunately as Beck was taken off but I think the bat was—that time away! I now look forward to their next meeting in the United Services match.

There was no playing for a draw in the Army Skipper's knock. He hit the ball good and hard, and as usual his hooking was delightful.

As usual, too, he got out trying to do it too often, and failing to remember the way the ball is apt to kick up suddenly. He thus skied one from Redmond very high to Owen Hughes at backward square leg. It was as high that Dunkley went for it also, each man assuring the other in loud tones that it was his catch.

Owen Hughes won, but frankly I expected to see them both laid out as once happened when R. Hancock and Hopper went for a high one under the circumstances it was a marvel Owen Hughes held it. The game ended tamely in a draw.

I was interested to see Ballard batting. To be frank I don't think he has much defence, but he swings his bat very hard and will make a lot of runs against weak bowling. He is by the way a left hander.

I thought Redmond during his second spell bowled well—his first consisted mostly of full-tosses. Beck was on the short side and bowled too much to leg. Pearce did not come off, though I expected the wicket to help him. Peter Williams hit him for a beautiful six, straight, but he bowled one perfect ball that completely beat Peter and did everything except hit the sticks.

THE UNIVERSITY'S FIRST GAME

At Pokfulam the bat beat the ball. The home side in their first League encounter batted very well, though of course the absence of Omar weakened the Craigengower attack. Rodrigues showed that his batting has in no way fallen off. He was good last year, and I hear that he played some good knocks in October last, though as I was out of the Colony, I did not see them.

The absence of Anderson throws a good deal of responsibility on his shoulders and this may do him good. If he remains in the Colony and sticks to cricket I am pretty sure he will develop into an Interport player before very long.

Craigengower made a gallant attempt to get the hundred and ninety-three required and, thanks to Ernie Zimmerman largely, got within fifteen runs of them. I feel more and more convinced that E. Zimmerman is an opening batsman. Both sides lost five wickets and honours were even.

THE SECOND DIVISION.

Recreio were again held to a draw, though they had the best of the game. A. P. Pereira had five for thirty-six and Lawson for the Club second six for forty-seven. The latter is very variable and has a long way to go before he can attain the form of his father, Dr. Jim, who was in his day one of our best Interport bowlers. Some of my readers will recall that Dr. J. Lawson was one of the only two survivors of the Interport team which was lost in the wreck of the Johhara.

The Civil Service second maintained their recent improvement when they much the best of a draw with the Police who were saved by Carey Craigengower were all over University second. I have not the League figures before me but, subject to correction I think that this puts them level with the I.R.C. second team at the head of the table. Recreio have dropped back.

TO-MORROW'S GAMES.

There is only one League fixture down for to-morrow. Craigengower are at home to the Army. It should be a good and even game with the odds slightly on the Army. Stocker makes his first appearance this season, and I fancy their batting will be strong enough to win, provided Garthwaite and Elvin are in reasonable form with the ball.

I don't know if Tinker Lee is going to bowl to Captain Williams with his usual leg-trap field. I trust not. I cannot afford any wreaths at the moment!

H.K.C.C. go to Pokfulam for a friendly game where they should win. K.C.C. are at home to the Civil Service—unless there is snow lying on the ground.

In the Junior Division I fancy that R.C. II at home will be too much for the R.A.M.C. unless Bonavia comes off. It is impossible to say these days what sort of a team the Navy can turn out, but even though they are playing at home, they will have to have a good day to beat Recreio.

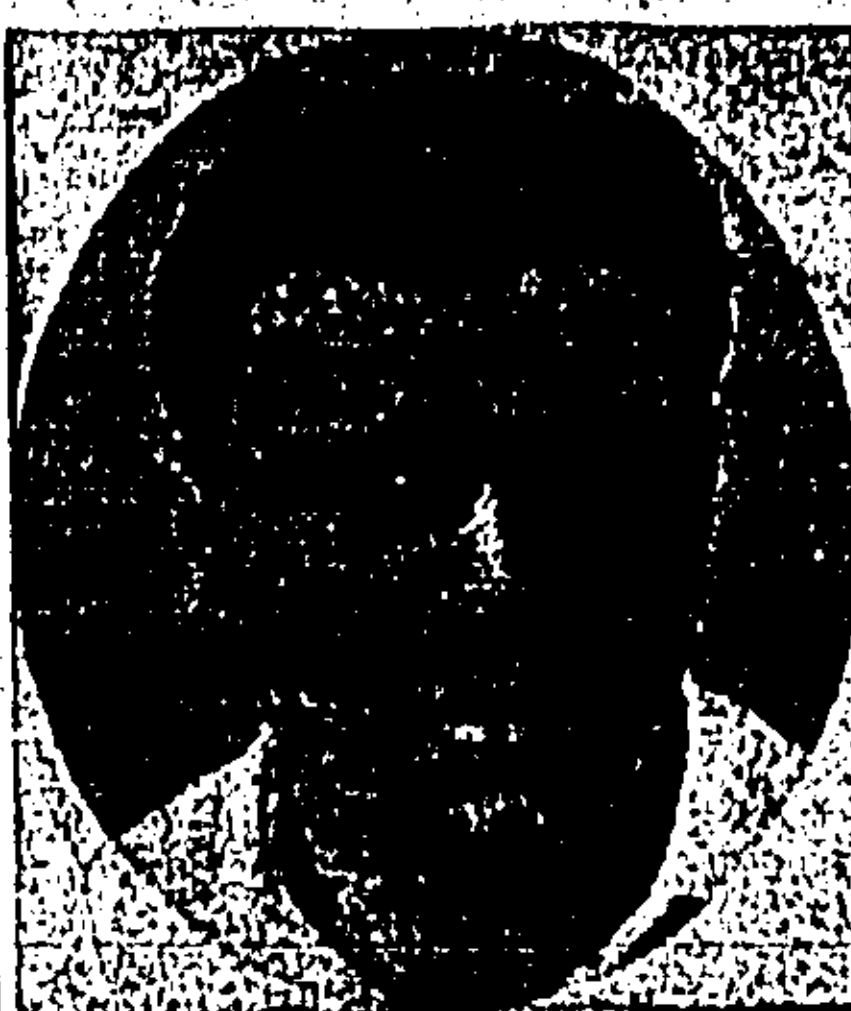

The Civil Service are lucky to find Whitely and (I think) Ballard playing for the Army. Even so I doubt if they can do more than draw with the R.A.S.C. The Club and Police are at home respectively to University second and K.C.C. second in friendly games.

WILLIE SMITH TO PLAY AT THE K.C.C.

Demonstration to be Given on Friday

Willie Smith, one of the world's leading billiards players, now in Hongkong in the course of his Far East tour, will make his first appearance this evening, when he will play in an exhibition match at the South China Athletic Association.

On Friday next, he will be at the Kowloon Cricket Club, where he will give a demonstration, but will not oppose any local players.

MAX SCHMELING.

Schmeling Says He Is A World-Beater

AFTER CARNERA AND BAER

New York, Jan. 20.

Herr Max Schmeling arrived today from his native Germany, full of a lot of hopes and big ideas about pugilistic prospects in the next few months.

The former world heavyweight champion said he was hopeful of fighting big Primo Carnera, present wearer of the world crown, and more hopeful of meeting Max Baer, of California. He can whip either one, said Herr Max.

Schmeling expressed the opinion that Tommy Loughran, though outweighed about 70 pounds, may knock the crown from the Irish Man Mount-in's brow in the forthcoming battle of the palms Feb. 22 at Miami, Fla.

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

St. Andrew's Beat Kowloon Indians

Playing in a friendly hockey match yesterday, St. Andrew's defeated the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club by three goals to nil. The Saints fielded nine men, while the Indians had ten. In the first half Guest gave the Saints the lead early in the game while Bliss added the second before the interval.

After the change over the Indians played well but could make no headway against the Saints' defence. Bliss eventually gave his side the third goal with a well directed shot. Guest for the Saints was outstanding both in attack and defence.

NAVY LOWER DECK ELEVEN.

The following have been chosen to represent the Navy Lower Deck Hockey eleven in a match against the Incoignitos to be played at Happy Valley on Saturday commencing at 4.15 p.m.: McMeeken (Berwick), Steers (Medway) and Cliff (Berwick), Morley (Cumberland), Maudon (Berwick) and Hodge (Medway); Burdett and Hetherington (Cumberland) Sumption and Tarr (Medway) and Walls (Cumberland). Reserve: Coulter (Herald) and Boughflower (Cumberland).

HINTS TO UMPIRES.

(By "Bully-Off")

NO. 2.

Although the rules state that all players must be five yards from the ball when a free hit is taken do not deprive a player of the advantage of getting hit in quickly even if there is an opponent standing too close to him. It may be that the opponent is loitering there until his own side have time to get back. In the circle however make all players keep their distance. If the striker mis-hits remember that he can take no further part in the game until some other player has touched the ball. Penalize him if he baubles the opponent.

R.A.S.C. BEAT R.A.O.C.

MUCH THE BETTER TEAM

The R.A.S.C. defeated the R.A.O.C. at Happy Valley yesterday by three goals to one and were full value for their victory.

Swain and Fuller (twice) scored for the Service Corps whilst Redlidge netted for the Ordnance from a melee in front of the Service Corps goal.

Alva and Crawford were always conspicuous for the winners whilst Gormey and O'Brien were tireless workers for the losers.

H.M.S. BERWICK CLAIM CHINA FLEET FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

FINISH LEVEL PEGGING WITH H.M.S. KENT

DEFEAT CUMBERLAND IN THEIR LAST ENCOUNTER

As a result of a smart win against the Cumberland yesterday, H.M.S. Berwick succeeded in finishing their programme in the first division of the China Fleet Football League on level terms with H.M.S. Kent at the top of the table.

The Berwick, however, enjoy a slight goal-average advantage, and in view of the absence of the Kent, are applying to the Sports Committee for recognition as champions. The Kent is now on her way home to England, and the usual play-off will be impossible.

Yesterday the Berwick won by three clear goals, and were fully deserving of the success.

The Cumberland won the toss, and elected to play with the wind behind them. Tong and Skinner, both Navy League team players, were outstanding, and it is entirely due to the lack of support received that these two did not manage to find the net.

The play for the majority of the time was in the Cumberland's half, although occasionally the losers broke away, but Harman, the Cumberland's goalkeeper, played a splendid game, clearing every time.

The first goal came through Langmead, who took a pass from the wing to give Harman no chance. This was scored in the first minute of the game, and for the rest of the first half, both goals remained intact.

After the change over, Morrison obtained possession and scored within thirty seconds of the restart. Play after this was even, but towards the end, the Berwick were awarded a penalty, and Hambley made no mistake with the kick.

Jenkins and James played well in defence for the Berwick. The following lined up under C.P.O. Dibb: H.M.S. Berwick—Funnell; Jenkins, James; Counsell, Thomas, Kennedy; Jones, Morgan, Langmead; Worthington, Hambley. H.M.S. Cumberland—Harman; Grant, Burdon; Welsh, Ward, Keeford; Spencer, Tong, Graham, Potts, Skinner.

LEAGUE POINTS FOR OLYMPUS

PANDORA BEATEN IN A GOOD GAME

A good game was witnessed at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon between the Pandora and the Olympus in the Submarine Football League.

From the kick off, the Olympus were on the attack and within two minutes were a goal up. Lt. Cheyna giving Bannett no chance with a good shot from within the penalty area.

KOWLOON WEDDING.

YOUNG AMERICAN COUPLE MARRIED

When the President Coolidge arrives in port this morning, she will have on board as passengers Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Chace Grover, returning from their honeymoon spent at Baguio.

They were married last Friday evening at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, the Rev. W. Walton Rogers officiating. The bride looked charming in a shell-pink crepe gown over which she wore a delightful brown velvet coat. Her picture hat was carried out in pink crepe and trimmed with little brown blossoms. Her slippers were of brown velvet.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Peninsula Hotel, and the happy couple later left for their honeymoon on the boat which sailed for the Philippines that night.

The bride, who was Miss Esther Louise Turner, is the only daughter of Mrs. Marshall Turner of Mobile, Alabama, now residing at the Peninsula Hotel. She is a member of a very prominent Southern family and has a large circle of friends in Mobile with whom she is exceedingly popular. The bridegroom hails from Santa Cruz, California, and is connected with the American Express Co. He is the only son of Mrs. Frederick Hale and has been residing in the Colony for the past three years.

BRITISH MINISTER

SIR A. CADOGAN LEAVES LONDON

London, Jan. 25.
The Hon. Sir Alexander Cadogan, Minister-designate to China, received a great send-off to-day, when, with Lady Theodosia Cadogan and his three daughters, he departed for Marseilles where he will join the P. and O. liner Chitral for the voyage to Shanghai. Sir John Simon, Foreign Minister, bid the new Minister farewell at the station, as well as a large number of diplomats, including Sir Percy Loraine, Sir John Maffey, Sir William Malkin and a great number of the Foreign Office staff. Dr. Chen, of the Chinese Legation, represented the Chinese Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Mr. Quo Tai-chi, who is ill in a nursing home after an operation for an ulcer. Dr. Chen presented Lady Theodosia Cadogan with a beautiful bouquet of roses and daffodils on

MIDSHIPMAN TIMMS

London, Jan. 25.
H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, as Master of the Merchant Navy, yesterday commended Midshipman Timms, who displayed exceptional bravery and endurance on the Blue Funnel liner Phenix, which was recently for five days at the mercy of a hurricane in the Caribbean Sea. So violent was the wind that hatch covers were ripped off and the 30-ton funnel was lifted bodily out of vessel's decks.

Timms' head was cut open during the storm while he was working alone in the scuppers. He poured oil in a steady volume on the water beneath the vessel's bow. The Captain declared that failure to do this would have meant almost certain disaster as 1,200 tons of water poured in through the open hatches.—British Wire-

BRITISH CAR DRIVERS IN MONTE CARLO CLASSIC

Monte Carlo, Jan. 25.
Unshaven and exhausted, but delighted, four British motor-drivers brought to Monte Carlo cars thickly plastered with mud, having reached their goal after 2,352 miles of most hazardous driving from Athens for the Monte Carlo Motor Rally.

The British motorists, and a few foreign competitors, established a record in getting through within the scheduled time of four days. They averaged 625 miles a day for the journey.

A record number of 143 competitors arrived out of a total of 160 entries. Competitors in the race contended with ice, snow, fog,

AQUITANIA RUNS
AGROUND

London, Jan. 25.
Four persons have been killed and hundreds injured in traffic collisions during the worst fog experienced in England for many years.

The fog enveloped a wide area from Yorkshire to Sussex, reducing railway and road traffic to chaos.
Three railway accidents have been reported, while hundreds of cars, buses and lorries have been left derelict on the road-side or abandoned in ditches.

The giant Cunard liner
Aquitania, while bound for New York, went aground on Calshot Spit. She was refloated after two hours with the aid of tugs.

A complete black-out occurred in North London districts, owing to the temporary failure of electric light and power.

The last three days of frost have curtailed sporting fixtures, but skating has begun in the Fen country.—Reuter.

Signals Hidden.

London, Jan. 25.
Fog was so dense, to-day in south-western suburbs that in one case a railway engine driver found it necessary to climb a signal post to see what the signal indicated.
On the road there were many crashes and four persons were injured in accidents. Around Wimbledon it became necessary to discontinue train and bus services in the evening and many private motorists found it necessary to abandon their cars for the night.

SALVATION ARMY

COMMISSIONER MAPP IN THE COLONY

An interesting visitor to the Colony is Commissioner Henry Mapp, Chief of Staff and Second-in-Command of the British Salvation Army, who arrived here yesterday morning on the Dutch steamer Tjisandane from Java.

Commissioner Mapp left England some months ago, and has been on an extensive tour of the Dutch East Indies in connexion with Salvation Army matters. He will leave here to-day by the P.
and O. liner Rawalpindi for Shanghai, en route for Peking, where he is to open the forthcoming
Salvation Army Congress.

While in the Dutch East Indies, it is understood that the Netherlands Government handed over to the Army a leper colony larger than the four that are already here. It was one of Commissioner Mapp's duties to negotiate with the Dutch authorities in connexion with this matter, while on his present tour.

After the Salvation Army Congress at Peking, Commissioner Mapp will pay a visit to Man-chukuo to arrange the future work of the Army there, which at present is controlled from Peking headquarters, but for which the Japanese branch desires to take over responsibility.

Although Commissioner Mapp's stay in Hongkong has been too short for him to take part in any activities connected with the Army, he will address several meetings in Shanghai before proceeding to Peking.

Accompanying the Commissioner are Colonel Goro and Adjutant Ware, high officials of the Salvation Army Headquarters in London.

MANY INJURED, HUNDREDS
LEFT HOMELESS

Peking, Jan. 25.
No lives were claimed by the earthquake, which was felt on January 23 over a wide area in the North China provinces, but scores have been injured, some seriously.

Most of the casualties occurred when straw-thatched dwellings collapsed in the Wuyuan district, leaving the inmates exposed to the rigours of the bitter winter.
Earlier reports stated that many deaths had occurred as a result of the earthquake, and it may be some time before the correct position is known.—Reuter.

SOVIET UNIMPRESSED BY TOKYO PEACE TALK

THE CURRENCY WAR NO CONFIDENCE IN MR. MORGENTHAU LIKELY TO LOSE HIS SHIRT!

Washington, Jan. 25.
The qualifications of Mr. Henry Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury Department, for handling the huge sum to be used as an Exchange Stabilisation Fund, were the subject of further uncomplimentary comments in the Senate today.
The debate on President Roosevelt's monetary bill again waxed fierce.
It was bitterly attacked by Senator Hastings (Rep.) who declared that the bill legalised robbery and that it penalised self-denial and thrift.
He asserted that if Congress ever received a report on the operations of the Stabilisation Fund, it would probably show that the British had taken the whole of the two thousand million dollars—and Mr. Morgenthau's shirt with it! (Laughter).
SILVER PLAN DOOMED.
Senator Borah has admitted that the strength of the independent wing of the Senate (composed of both Republicans and Democrats) was insufficient to compel the adoption of the proposed amendments for the redemption of silver, or compulsory currency inflation.
In the course of a spirited argument, the conservative Republicans, including Senator Austin and Senator Reed, disputed whether it was constitutional to give the President authority to regulate the gold value of the dollar.
VOTE ON SATURDAY.
Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, who is steering the bill through the Senate, claimed that it was quite legal.
Senator Borah, who moved his inflation amendment, later abandoned it.
Owing to the number of speeches still to be delivered, the final vote on the bill is not likely before Saturday.—Reuter.

SUN TIEN-YING CHECKED NINGSHA PROVINCE FIGHTING

Peking, Jan. 26.
Telegraphic communication between Peking and Ningsha has not been interrupted as was earlier reported.
The latest telegraphic advice from Ningsha indicates that though Sun Tien-ying's forces are threatening the city of Ningsha, the Government defenders have repulsed every onslaught hitherto.
Likangpo, some distance to the north of Ningsha, which was for some time occupied by Sun Tien-ying's troops has been recaptured by the Ningsha Government forces.
The arrival of a large number of troops from Chungking to reinforce General Ma Hsing-kwei is responsible for the turn of the tide.—Central News.

STEADY UPWARD TRADE British Railways Give Recovery Pointer

London, Jan. 25.
In addition to a substantial increase in retail sales recorded by the Board of Trade this week, further evidence of the steady recovery in British trade and industry is provided by the continued rise in railway receipts.
For the first three weeks of the year these totalled £7,709,000—£525,000 more than in the corresponding period of last year. Goods traffic receipts alone increased by more than eight per cent.—British Wireless.

FLOOD DISASTER YELLOW RIVER TRAGEDIES HUNDREDS PERISH OF COLD

Peking, Jan. 26.
The sudden rise of the Yellow River has jeopardised huge areas and many lives have been lost, some of them by drowning and others by exposure.
The dykes have given way in the Changyuan district in Southern Hopei, where thirty-eight villages have been inundated already and more are threatened.
Some of the villages are under ten feet of water.
Hundreds of villagers rendered homeless by the devouring waters have perished from cold and hunger.
The present flood is declared to be worse than that of last year, in which Changyuan also suffered very severely.—Reuter.

NAVAL CONFERENCE AT SINGAPORE VITAL TO ALL OF FAR EAST

Washington, Jan. 23.
American observers to-day forecast that the British Empire naval conference, which opened at Singapore on Tuesday is likely to have a vital effect on Britain's future Far Eastern policy.
Reports from London indicate that despite the government's decision not to proceed on construction at the Singapore Base, on the score of the need for economy, that the Base nevertheless will be completed in 1938 or 1939.
This indicates anxiety in London, Australia and New Zealand, it is believed, over Japanese ambitions.
British naval leaders want to strengthen British friendship with Japan, believing that only thus may the peace of the Pacific be ensured.
They also apparently hold the opinion that the Japanese Navy is superior to the United States Navy in fighting strength.
A majority of the British Cabinet, however, are inclined to swing towards the United States, although they do not want to impair Britain's friendship with Japan.

FURNACE CO. GETS ORDER TANKER FOR U.S.

NO SIGN OF CHANGE IN EXPANSION POLICY MR. HIROTA'S SPEECH SOVIET PROOFS OF SINCERITY

Moscow, Jan. 26.
A sharp denial of Japanese complaints that the Soviet has been endeavouring to create unpleasant relations is contained in an article in Izvestia, which comments on Mr. Koki Hirota's speech.
The Soviet's pacific policy has been sufficiently proved over and over again, says the writer.
By offering a non-aggression pact to Japan, by agreeing to the formation of a Soviet-Japanese-Manchukuo Frontier Commission and by agreeing to the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Soviet Union has amply proved its readiness to secure the solid maintenance of peace in the Far East.

Izvestia stresses that the Soviet peaceful policy will not be changed unless the Japanese Government carries on its aggressive plans.
NO SIGN OF CHANGE.
It adds that unfortunately neither Mr. Hirota's speech, nor the appointment of General Hayashi to succeed General Araki as War Minister can be taken to indicate that the Japanese Government is resolved to end the strained relations with the Soviet created by the policy of Japanese military circles.—Reuter.

CHILD SLAVERY REVELATION VICTIM CHANGES HANDS MANY TIMES PARENTS FINED

How a three-year-old Chinese girl had been bought and sold "like a pound of meat" was described by Detective-Inspector Elston before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning when Liu Hing-yee, married woman, Pun Sam, alias Pun Yau-tsun, her husband, and another woman, So Luk, were charged in connexion with the transaction.
The third defendant said he paid $40 for the child. The first and second defendants pleaded guilty.
Inspector Elston produced the Attorney General's consent to the prosecution. He said the first and second defendants were husband and wife, and on January 10, they sold their daughter to the third defendant, who was a kept woman in West Point. He produced the "receipt of sale." The couple went to see the purchaser a few days ago and asked back for their child. She refused and they threatened her with prosecution and now they were "in the soup" themselves. The child was not found, having been either sold or given away by the third defendant. The child had changed hands several times since leaving her proper parents.
He added: "To use the S.C.A.'s words, 'The child has been sold and bought like a pound of meat.'"
A fine of $100, or two months' hard labour, was imposed on each defendant.

EUROPEAN IN CAR SMASH MR. P. YOUNGHUSBAND BADLY INJURED SUDDEN SWERVE

Mr. P. Younghusband, living at 264, Prince Edward Road, was rather severely injured as the result of a motor smash at Kowloon at 10.30 last night.
He was driving his car, No. 3890, into the junction of Nathan and Waterloo Roads when for some reason it swerved, and mounted the side walk between the verandah pillars of the President Apartments.
Mr. Younghusband was injured in the head and hands when the vehicle collided. It is thought, with the wall of the building.
He was taken by a passing motorist, Cpl. Ponsford, R.M., of H.M.S. Tamar, to the Kowloon Hospital where his injuries were attended to.
The car was badly damaged.

PRESTON MUDDOCK DIES NONAGENARIAN WRITER OF THRILLERS ADVENTURES IN CHINA

London, Jan. 25.
One of the most popular writers of thrillers of the by-gone generation, J. E. Preston Muddock, died to-day at the age of ninety years.
He wrote over seventy books including about fifty detective stories under the name of Dick Donovan.
His life was one long series of adventures. Originally intended for military engineering, he went out to India when very young, where his father was then stationed, and entered the Government Gun Foundry at Calcutta. It was during the exciting times of the Indian Mutiny, and it fell to his lot to go through many thrilling scenes. At the close of the Mutiny he returned to England in a troopship, his intention being to return to India, but the sudden death of his father altered all his plans, and he became a wanderer on the face of the earth.

REBEL IN CHINA He next directed his steps to China at the time of the great Taiping rebellion of 1850, and, sympathising greatly with the rebels, he tried on two or three occasions to join them, when he would have found himself in opposition to his distinguished fellow-countryman, General Gordon, who led the imperial troops.

After many narrow escapes in China, he became financially interested in a beche-de-mer fishing vessel, in which he went down the South Seas, and had a glorious time among the coral reefs, the cannibals, and the denizens generally of those little-known regions, new Guinea and the Solomon group of islands.

WATER FAMINE PERIL INDIA EARTHQUAKE AFTERMATH SURVEY OF THE DISASTER

London, Jan. 25.
With the information now available it is possible to form a closer appreciation than has hitherto been possible of the magnitude of the Indian earthquake of 15th January.
It now appears that the loss of life, although grave, has been much smaller than was at one time feared, the death toll being apparently not greatly in excess of 7,500.
Considering the widespread damage to house property and to crops this figure is remarkably small. This may have been due to the fact that the earthquake occurred when the majority of the population was out of doors.
The towns suffering the most material damage were those of north Bihar, there at least half the brickbuilding houses were ruined; and the town of Monghyr, where the hospital was destroyed and hundreds of lives were lost in the collapse of the bazaar, now a heap of ruins.
In Muzaffarpur, the houses of the judges and civil servants were destroyed, the jail and bank were damaged and some 300 lives lost. In Darbhanga, another 300 lives were lost and all brick buildings were destroyed.
GREAT DAMAGE.
Motihari was completely isolated and largely destroyed. As regards other towns in Bhagalpur, buildings were extensively damaged.
At Jamalpur, there was very great material damage and a loss of some 200 lives.
In Pusa, the famous Agricultural Institute was badly damaged. In Chapra, residences and public buildings were wrecked and the hospital rendered useless.
In Patna, 50 lives were lost, hundreds injured and over 4,000 buildings either damaged or destroyed. Outside the towns, the destruction of house property has been on a much smaller scale.
GENERAL COLLAPSE.
The more obvious signs of the earthquake are broken and obliterated roads, widespread floods and great cracks in the ground from which mud, sand and water have been spreading a devastating almy deposit over the fields and crops.
In addition there has been a general collapse of road and railway bridges, making ordinary communications impracticable over a large part of the affected area.
The gravest menace to the rural population which reached in places an unusual density of over 900 to the square mile is the damage to agriculture, including the destruction of the sugar mills.
WATER CRISIS.
Moreover, many wells have been ruined and the problem of securing a supply of healthy drinking water both in the towns and villages is most acute. The disaster has affected all classes. The townsfolk lost their houses and possessions and the agriculturists their crops and markets.
In Bihar alone, damage estimated at many crores of rupees was caused. Very large relief funds will be required.
In Britain the High Commissioner for India is receiving contributions towards the fund started by the Viceroy, and the Lord Mayor of London, at the request of the Secretary for India, is to cooperate.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

By A Paris Correspondent

In "Le Messager," M. Bornstein's new play at the Gymnase, Mlle. Gaby Morlay illustrates the charm of dressing to personality. She wears quiet clothes of real charm.

It is Lucile Paray who makes her clothes for this play, and she has succeeded in giving just the simplicity which the character demands. In one act Mlle. Morlay wears a pale blue frock, with a soft white collar and a belt of the same material as the dress. It is simply to follow the lines of the figure, and has no fuss about either the sleeves, which are long, or the neck. Her dark hair is bobbed and waved, and she wears no jewels.

In another act she has a black evening dress with puffed sleeves and a jade green capelet. In the last act her dress is navy blue; its white roll collar is longer at one end than the other. There are a few sparkles on this dress—paillettes, sparsely sown on the sleeves near the wrists and about the front of the bodice. The cut has the same simple elegance as the other two dresses.

Gallant.

Maggy Rouff is always daring and original. She likes to give to her dresses a merry, gallant aspect. She plays skilfully with basques, trains, capes, and sleeves, and gets a silhouette which is very Parisian in the traditional sense.

There is in her work a touch of the lightness of Cheret, which the retrospective exhibition of his work in the Autumn Salon shows clearly; and Cheret, in his turn, carries us back to the grace of Watteau—the French spirit which does not die—gay and audacious.

Her trains are shaped like a fish tail. Some of her sleeves are bell shaped, with the cuff turned back. The basques on evening dresses start out in pannier style from the hips. Little capes and slit cape sleeves are among the many arm and shoulder draperies.

She uses a lot of pale grey, and in a long pale grey cape in which her arm slips no sleeves, she faces the front with black velvet.

A beige coat has a band of fur about the hips, and a wide collar about the shoulders to maintain the style. A brown suit of skirt and coat has four pockets on the coat, which are trimmed with metal rings, which Maggy Rouff prefers to buttons. Fur pockets are added to a coat with a full fur collar.

Faillie, moire, velvet, lame, black lace, and organdie are used in different colours, in black, and in white, for the evening. Green with gold, grey with silver, and a purple lame are among the outstanding combinations and colours of her collection.

It is clear that the neck-line, the hips, and the back of skirts are

A distinctive style for mature figures, this smart model can be made in printed silks, crepe, velvet, or sheer woollen. It is designed in nine sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 46 requires 5½ yards of 39-inch material plus 1-4 yard 7 inches wide for the vestee in contrast. To finish the sleeve and neck edges requires 1 3-4 yards of 1 1-2 inch bias binding.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Beauty Costs

By Alicia Hart

Diligent budgeting of beauty treatments and cosmetics is one way of making sure that you are beautifying yourself within your income.

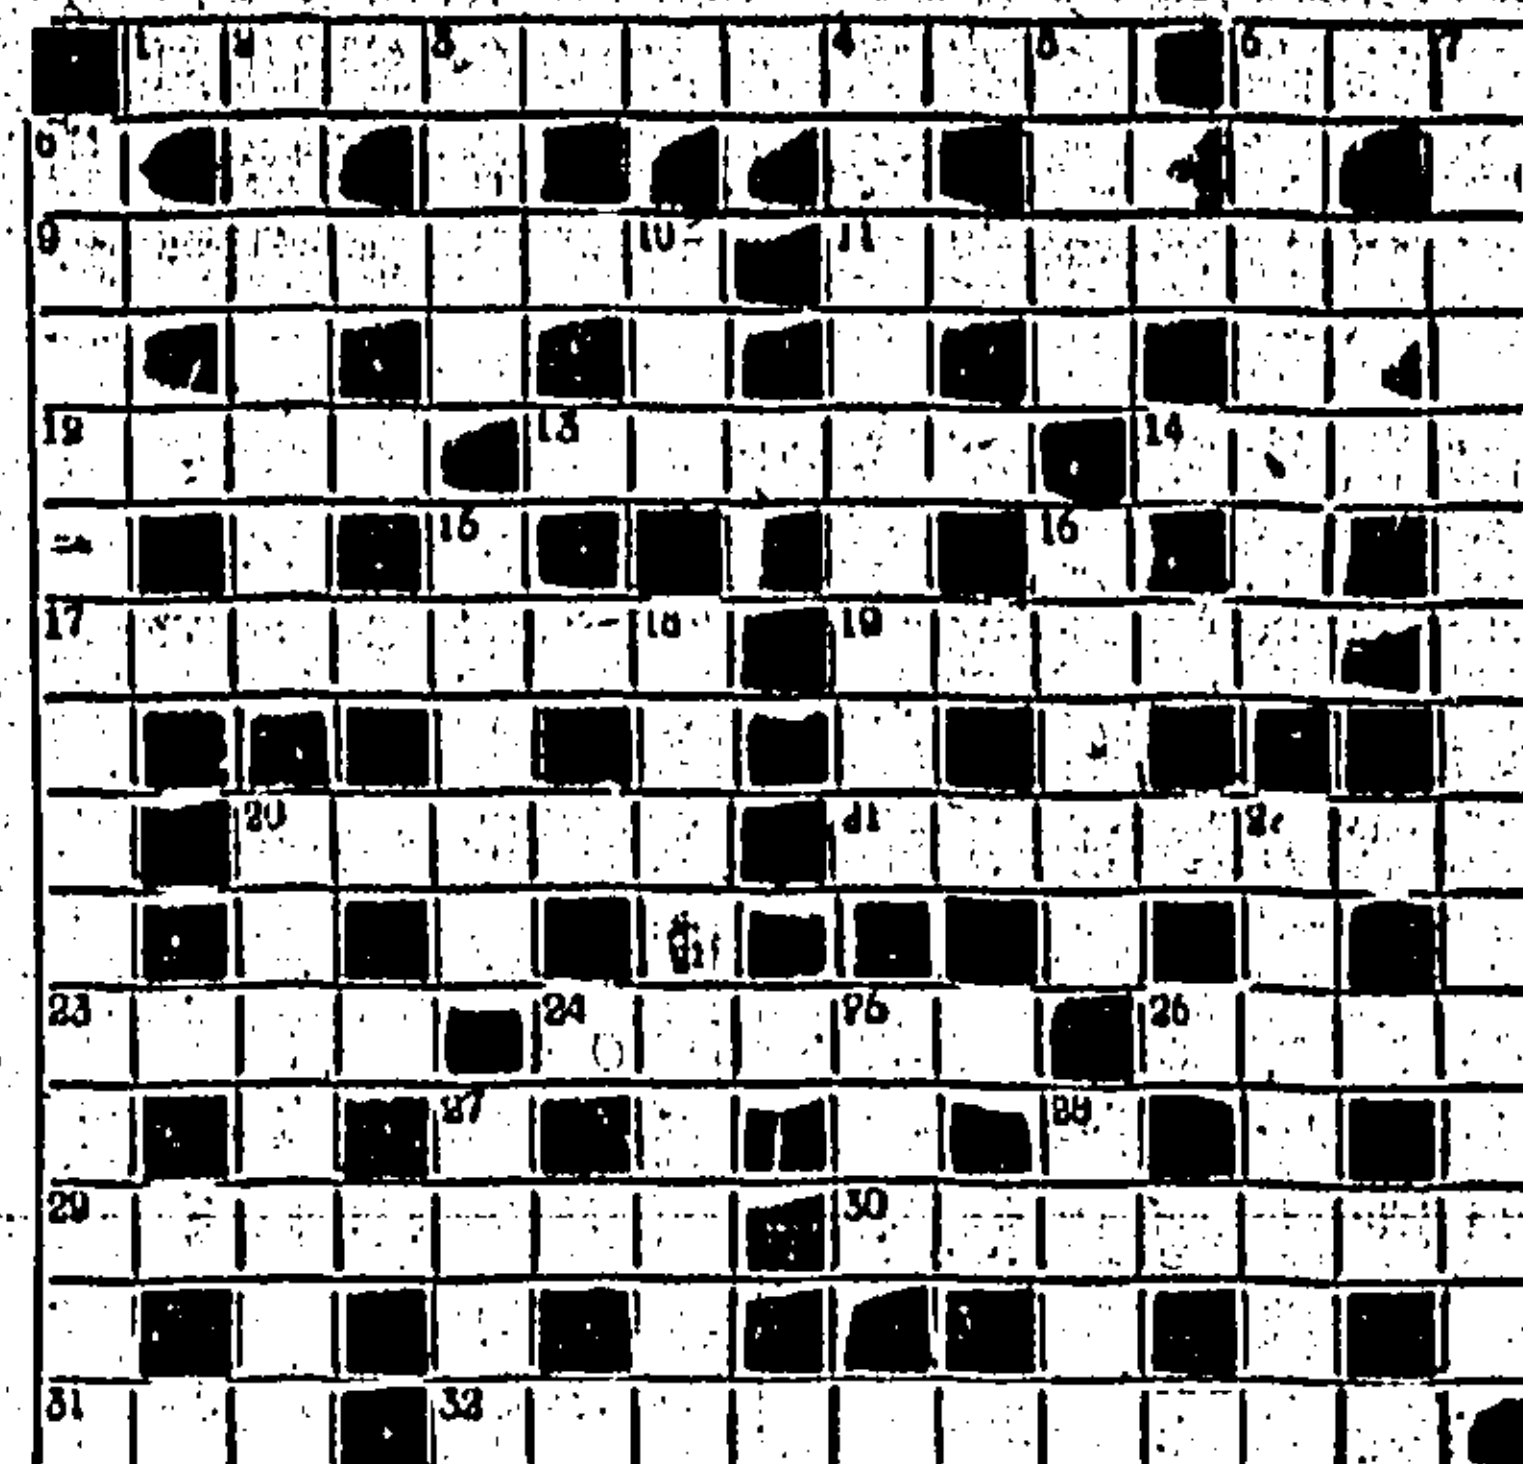

For instance, if you feel that you can spend money for only one treatment, each week, decide immediately just what you're going to sacrifice on alternate weeks.

Shampooing your own hair is one money-saver. You can make a good, inexpensive liquid shampoo by mixing odd little pieces of bathroom soap in a bottle of water.

One week you might shampoo and set the wave in your hair instead of going to a beauty shop to have it done. That week, then, it will be possible to get a good facial treatment in a salon. The following week your hair gets a turn and you give yourself the facial.

Hot oil treatments at home save quite a few pennies. Apply hot oil at night, massage it into the scalp, and go to sleep with a clean towel wrapped around your head. Shampoo the next morning, put on a little wave set lotion before your hair starts to dry and then put in a finger wave. You've saved enough money to enable you to get a professional facial treatment that week.

"That's all I want to know. Will you forgive me?"

"Sure, I knew we'd understand each other. He's got an awful big head and that worries me."

"A balloon head and a glib tongue," said the Professor. "Some people call that cockiness, but in the ring it's colour. The kind of colour to help bring in million dollar gates."

"All right. You're the boss. We'd better give up the flat, hadn't we?"

"You want Stephen to win this fight, don't you?"

"Why, of course."

"My dear, honeymooning and training don't mix. At times like this figures' wives become training camp widows. Wives promise to co-operate, and invariably break their promise. You'd do the same. And I wouldn't blame you."

"Gosh, Professor, I probably would! A month... All right, I'll stay behind." "Lot of mother in you, I like that." He lifted her chin and smiled at her.

CHAPTER V CUPID'S KNOCKOUT

Belle Forber did not show up at the Cabaret El Ryanno the next day and Willie Ryan kept the telephone hot trying to get trace of her. Belle's maid could tell him little: the dress she had worn the night before was on the floor, her travelling dress, gone; two bottles of beer had been opened but left untasted. Willie ordered his henchmen to bring in the Professor, to tour the Boston Post Road, search all the lodges and inns, watch the railroad stations. He slammed down the phone as two huskies pushed the Professor into his office.

"Where's the fighter of yours?" he snapped, pouncing on the Professor.

"You know as well as I do! I haven't seen him since the night he fought. Every time you get an up-and-coming boy some female starts turning him into putty before you can—"

"He'll turn into hamburger if I get hold of him!"

"You can't blame my boy! How about your side of the case?"

"I'll attend to that, too, when she gets here!"

"She's here, Willie," said Belle's voice, and Ryan whirled upon her as she walked into the group. "Maybe you'd like to tend to it alone?"

"Where's my boy?" demanded the excited Professor. "Look here, girl!"

"Better than he ever was. He's over, in your office, waiting for you."

The Professor started to protest, but at Willie's savage: "Get out!" he gulped and darted out of the office. At Willie's nod, the Adopted

Son and the two huskies went out. Willie paced back and forth in front of Belle, seated on top of his desk.

"Is it that hard to begin, Willie? Want me to?"

He stopped pacing. "What happened to your head? Were you drunk? Are you on the junk? What happened to you?"

"Something very beautiful... Something swell—"

"You call it that—with a guy like that!"

"I know you wouldn't understand, Willie. That's the only thing that hurts."

"Understand? How do you think I'd feel? My girl stealing away from me—running off like a Hester street tramp with a—"

Belle got off the table. "Don't talk that way, Willie!"

"What am I going to do? Take you back?"

"No, Willie."

"Do you know what I feel like doing?" Willie was actually trembling. She nodded that she understood. He continued: "You're made me the biggest laugh of the year—"

"Is that all you are thinking about?"

"No, I'm thinking about you." His voice went higher. "Of you and—him. Where you've been... what you've done." He grabbed her by the throat. "I'll have you both dropped out of sight! I'll give him a kerosene bath!"

"No you won't Willie."

"What's going to stop me?"

She spoke calmly and simply "I married him this morning."

Willie's face grew purple. He took his hand from her throat and backed away and stared at her. "Why?" he demanded at length.

"I love him—want him." She turned out the contents of her bag upon the table. "There's everything, Willie. And the key—"

He poured himself a drink. "You can keep them."

"No, starting from scratch. Clothes would come in handy though."

"Okay."

She went to him, tears in her eyes. "Good-bye, Willie Ryan. I'm always going to think swell things about you. Will you think 'am about me?' At his slow nod, she kissed his cheek and run out of the room.

He stared after her, even after the Adopted Son and the two huskies returned. "She married him," he muttered half to himself. At him words the Adopted Son's hand went to his pocket, he nodded to the two men and they started quietly out.

"Hey! called Willie. 'I'm not mad and you can't get mad until I do. But if he ever gives her an unhappy moment you can spill his guts over any alley you pick out!'"

For several weeks the Professor had trouble to keep Steve from breaking off in the middle of training to make love to his wife. They had taken a ground flat in Flatbush and the Professor insisted upon daily training to get into shape for another fight. He regarded Belle with hostility and she was ready to meet him more than half way. One day while Steve had been punching the bag with his right arm bound to his side in order to develop his left, he saw Belle hanging out some clothes and called a halt to go in and get a drink. He didn't return and the Professor followed.

"Now that you've had the glass of water you can go back to work."

Steve hugged Belle. "I've got about ten more minutes, honey. A reformed drunk always loses his sense of humour!"

Belle resented his tone. "I thought you were supposed to be the business man. Why aren't you out seeing about another match instead of sitting around here? There's just a dollar and ten cents

"Then as long as you're here why can't you and I be a little more civil to each other? Really, Professor, what have I done to—"

A ring at the door bell interrupted. Belle went to the door. A shrewd, sporting type of man stood there. The Professor, in a hallway door, recognized him as a Mr. Black, representing Mr. Carey of Madison Square Garden, and he quickly forward.

"Well, Black, glad you dropped round, I'll get the boy."

The Professor returned with Steve and when they had been introduced Steve asked, genially: "Hi, what's the idea? Thinking of putting on a real fight at the Jordan?"

Black laughed at Steve's cockiness. "How'd you like to pick up five hundred bucks, three weeks from to-morrow night? Six rounds prelim with Ray Harrigan?"

Steve poked the Professor in the ribs. "There, did young Gaffney get five hundred bucks for his first fight?"

"A year or two from now they'll be offering you many times five hundred dollars for a fight. But now they don't care if you can't fight your way out of a paper bag. They're only out to buy you as a front-page box office draw. The customers'll come to see the man who married Willie Ryan's girl, that's all." He turned to Black.

"And because the whole town will want to see him, he's a bargain at a thousand."

"I guess you're still the same old Professor!" laughed Black. "Okay, A thousand top. Five hundred for him...and five hundred for Mrs. Morgan-to sit ringside. Drop in to-morrow and we'll sign the deal."

"And a couple of hundred in advance," said the Professor, accompanying him to the door.

"Okay," agreed Black. "This is a new angle in the fight game."

When the Professor re-entered the room, Steve was saying cockily: "What round do you want me to knock him out in, honey?"

"It's the beginning Steven," said the Professor. "We'll have to find training quarters. Gus Martin ought to let me come up to his place in the Catskills reasonably."

"And we can take a little cottage," said Belle. "A honeymoon in the Mountains."

"Take your shower, Stephen. Your wife and I've got plans to make."

Steve kissed Belle and left. "It's about time you and me had a talk," said the Professor.

"You think I hit the back of my head on the floor just because a lot of muscle and big chest told me to?" said Belle. "And you think as soon as I'm bored I'll go back to Willie Ryan and the jewellery. I fell for a pair of eyes—and a little boy in back of them. That's why I married Steve."

"You win the first round, my

"BURNS NICHT"DINNER HELD LAST NIGHT

Under the auspices of the Hongkong St. Andrew's Society, "Burns Night" was celebrated by a dinner at the Roof Garden of the Hongkong Hotel last night. Mr. A. L. Shields, President of the Society, presiding. The toast of "The Immortal Memory" was proposed by Sir William Hornell, who delivered an eloquent address extolling Scotland's national bard and analysing his works. Mr. K. MacKenzie proposed "The Lassies," and Mr. R. R. Campbell replied.

During the evening, a presentation, in the form of a silver salver, was made to Mr. David Gow, one of the oldest members of the Society, who is shortly retiring. A most enjoyable evening was spent, the speeches being interspersed with Scottish musical items.

DANGEROUS JOURNEY.BRITISH CAR DRIVERS IN MONTE CARLO CLASSIC

Monte Carlo, Jan. 25. Unshaven and exhausted, but delighted, four British motorists brought to Monte Carlo cars thickly plastered with mud, having reached their goal after 2,852 miles of most hazardous driving from Athens for the Monte Carlo Motor Rally.

The British motorists, and a few foreign competitors, established a record in getting through within the scheduled time of four days. They averaged 625 miles a day for the journey.

A record number of 143 competitors arrived out of a total of 160 entries. Competitors in the race contended with ice, snow, fog, cold, dust and mud. Many points are to be considered before the result of the race is announced.—Reuter.

There will be a tea dance at Repulse Bay Hotel on Sunday, 28th inst., at 4.30 p.m.

MILK FACTORY ACTIONPLAINTIFF AWARDED $4,903

The action brought by George Fowler Allen, of Claremont Hotel, Kowloon, against the New Zealand China Trading Co. of the Bank of China Building; and Chow Yat-kwong, merchant of Shouson Hill, resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff.

Addressing the court for the defence, Mr. Potter said his client felt the utmost sympathy for plaintiff who had been brought from New Zealand on such an unprofitable venture, but he hoped to show the court that he was never employed by, or intended to be employed by, this Chinese partnership.

In 1932 a Miss Imrie and Kurt Offenburg came to Hongkong and became acquainted with Mr. Li and Mr. Lo. No business was discussed and Offenburg appeared to be interested only in China and the state of things here. The two left the Colony, returning about the end of 1932, when the friendship was renewed. About that time Miss Imrie and Offenburg intimated that they might be able to get agencies to import tinned goods to Hongkong and, in fact, when they returned to the Colony again they conducted a stall of New Zealand goods at the Empire Fair. It was then that they suggested for the first time to Li and Lo (not to Chow who was only slightly acquainted with them) the formation of a small partnership to finance the importation of these products. Mr. Li who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Chow spoke to him of the project, and at his request Chow put in $1,000. Li and Lo put in a similar amount and a partnership was formed though no books were kept.

No Thought of Factory.

The production of reconstituted milk never entered into their minds. They had no need of Allen and if he ever was employed by Offenburg for the partnership he had no authority to do so.

At the time that Offenburg and Allen met in New Zealand and the former said he was representing Chinese interests, no partnership had ever been contemplated. Allen must have appreciated that the interest which was to employ was a limited company. The idea behind the formation of a limited company by the three Chinese gentlemen was to take over the partnership if it were successful. It was over the refusal of Offenburg to alter the articles that the company broke up.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, who reports that he may be appointed Defence Commissioner on the North West Frontier. He is shown with Mr. Wu Tieh-chen, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, who accompanied him to Nanking to attend the Fourth Plenary Session of his Kuomintang.

Mr. Potter, continuing, submitted that Allen believed he was employed by a limited company and that in fact if he had any contract at all it could not have been the partnership. It was incredible that a partnership with $3,000 should engage an expert at $520 per annum and build a factory, etc., at an estimated cost of $7,000. It was strange, too, that plaintiff should be satisfied with $1,000 from Li and Lo, and claim $3,000 from Chow.

Counsel's Objection.

His Lordship said it appeared that the plaintiff's case was that Offenburg's offer was made as an agent for a company about to be formed, namely the limited company.

Mr. Potter asked that his objection to this plea, as not being indicated in the pleadings, be recorded.

Chow, who described himself as assistant to the local agents of the Kailan Mining Administration, said he was surprised when he was told of the proposal of his brother-in-law to start a partnership with Offenburg, as he thought the latter was "only a journalist." However he agreed to join under the impression that Offenburg held a number of New Zealand agencies. No mention was made of reconstituted milk or of building a factory. He was at home ill for some weeks and did not know how matters were going with regard to the limited company which had been discussed, but he was told that an expert in milk had been cabled for. He objected to this but was told that Allen was on his way.

Cross-examined, witness said Offenburg must have engaged Allen himself as he had no other authority. Offenburg kept no books for the partnership and the other partners had no control over him. It was for this reason that he dissolved the partnership in October.

Li Denies Liability.

Li Chor-chi, secretary of the China Overseas Banking Corporation, said he knew Offenburg and Miss Imrie first as a German journalist and a "representative of the League of Nations, interested in women and children's welfare," respectively. He was very friendly with them and fell in with the suggestion of the partnership.

He authorised Chow's name to appear as a director of the limited company. He had not consulted Chow but he thought he would have no objection. Examined as to his reason for compromising with plaintiff, witness said Lo told him that he had settled plaintiff's claim because he was afraid an action might jeopardise his position in the office, and he advised witness to do the same. Witness accordingly did so in a letter in which he stated that he did not admit liability. Evidence was also given by Lo Pui-yin, accountant at the Bank of China.

Questions to Jury.

The following list of questions was then put to the jury:

1. Were the five persons composing the defendant partnership in May and June, 1933 preparing, as part of their business, to promote a commercial company for the purpose of manufacturing and marketing reconstituted milk in Hongkong?

2. Was Offenburg's cable sent on June 27, 1933, sent in pursuance of this purpose?

3. Did the plaintiff intend to be employed by persons unknown to him whom he supposed to be Offenburg's principals for the formation of such a company, or did the plaintiff intend to contract in the first instance with the limited company?

4. Was there an offer by defendant of employment and was the acceptance by plaintiff of that offer an acceptance of employment?

5. Was this employment entered upon by plaintiff?

6. Was employment in breach of this contract?

7. If any, the amount of damages?

Mr. Potter objected to question No. 3, stating that it seemed to suggest that the partners as part of their business were promoting a limited company.

The objection was over-ruled. After a retirement of more than 45 minutes, the jury returned and with one dissentient in each case answered the first six questions in the affirmative except the second part of No. 3, which was unanimously answered in the negative.

As regards Question No. 7, six members of the jury awarded damages at H.K.$4,903, to be as to ten months' salary, passage money and a nominal bonus. Legal arguments will be heard on Wednesday next at 2.30 p.m.

SINGAPORE NAVAL TALKS

In view of the present tense situation in the Pacific, it is not to be wondered at that the British Naval Conference now sitting in Singapore should be the subject of considerable speculation, or that it should give rise to a crop of rumours regarding its possible outcome. There have been similar conferences held there before, a fact which provides the Admiralty with the reply that the present talks are merely routine in character. But the point which dominates all others is that the present gathering is being held at a time when there is open talk of a possible clash in the near future. In this connexion, Japan's policies cannot be overlooked; they have aroused a measure of suspicion in all parts of the world which will not easily be lulled. Whilst it would be stretching the facts to suggest that the Singapore Conference has been specifically called because of current apprehensions of trouble, it is only reasonable to assume that the present situation and its possible future developments will figure largely in the discussions which are taking place. Singapore is the gateway from the West to the Pacific, and the naval base there has been specifically designed as a vital strategic point from which British shipping and other interests may be protected in case of need. Since it was first begun, work on the base has not been pushed forward with as much celerity as might be wished, due in part to the suspension of activities when the Labour Government first came into office. Later, however, even the Labourites appear to have been convinced of the desirability of proceeding with the scheme, and there is now no question, with another Government in power, of any further interruption of the project. Indeed, the tendency is all in the other direction. And it is well that this should be so. The necessity for a strong base at Singapore was never greater than it is to-day. There are so many possibilities ahead that risks cannot afford to be taken. Preparedness for all eventualities is the only sound attitude. Happily, we may rest assured that this feeling will dominate the Singapore Conference as the keystone of British naval policy. India, Malaya, Hongkong and Australasia are keenly interested in the deliberations now taking place, and although secrecy regarding its decisions may prevail, we may feel that the situation in all its implications will be fully explored and such measures resolved upon as will ensure the adequate protection of Britain's immense interests in this part of the world.

NOTES OF THE DAY

DANGEROUS EXPEDIENT

Austria's protest to Germany is so dangerous an expedient in the present state of feeling in Europe that it is difficult to regard the move in any other light than as wilful provocation of a crisis. Dr. Dollfuss is demanding of Herr Hitler satisfactory assurances that Germany's active support of the Nazi campaign in Austria will cease, and threatens an appeal to the League. Here lies a very real peril. It would be foolish to deny that there is cause for complaint, but paradoxical though it may seem that fact only renders the situation doubly dangerous. It is scarcely possible to imagine a more inopportune moment for an appeal for League protection against Germany, which has already virtually deserted the League labouring under a sense of disillusionment—the moment when everything depends upon an improvement in the European atmosphere for a pacificatory settlement of the disarmament problem.

GENEVA'S PROBLEM

That Geneva shirks the issue is not surprising; even though it may be a confession of weakness. The Austro-German dispute, if it develops along the lines fore-shadowed, is certain to place a severe strain upon the goodly structure of the still youthful Geneva organisation, following as it will so rapidly upon the stresses of the Manchuria imbroglio. And it is because Dr. Dollfuss is as well aware of the perils of the situation as anyone else that the proposed appeal must be looked upon with some suspicion. It is not insignificant that Austria's sudden change of policy coincided with the visit to Vienna of the Italian Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. And it is no secret that Italy is dissatisfied with League methods and the system by which it carries out its functions.

TRAP FOR LEAGUE

Putting two and two together, the answer seems to be a considered attempt to discredit the League, by placing it in the almost impossible position of refusing to take action upon a presumably justified complaint or of authorising measures well knowing that they can only make things trebly worse. For it is taken for granted everywhere, in perfect confidence, that Germany will decline to give the requested guarantees.

AMERICA'S NAVAL PLANS

And the darkening shadows in Europe are not accompanied by compensating brightness elsewhere. Quite careless of the reactions in Japan and of growing anxiety in Britain (for other reasons) the United States indicates that the Vinson Bill is to be expedited and one hundred and twenty new fighting ships are to be built. The arguments submitted in justification would be almost amusing did not the matter raise issues of extreme gravity. If there is one certain method of increasing the grip of the Japanese militarists and their naval collaborators upon the politics and diplomacy of Japan, it is surely that of giving the supporters of the positive policy weapon to flail the masses with in propaganda describing warlike preparations aimed against Japanese interests. There may not be a word of truth in any such allegations; but appearances are against the nation that actively promotes a naval armaments race when the only menace to Japan can come from the sea.

SHIPPING SUBSIDIES

The justice of British complaints against shipping subsidies is vividly brought home in the record of the inquiry into the affairs of the U.S. Shipping Board. The report shows that the Export Steamship Corporation, buyer of sixteen vessels from the Shipping Board, received in three years upward of $4,000,000,000—or more than the vessels cost—in payments for mail carrying. The poundage on which these payments were based, showed that the cost in 1929 averaged $66,000 per pound of mail carried. Shipping men offer the explanation that the number of pounds is not significant, as the payment for mail carried is merely a legal pretext to permit payment of direct subsidies. This is just the trouble with subsidies, according to their critics. They are covered in grants made partly with economic justification and partly without, so that the taxpayer, who foots the bill, seldom knows what he is paying for or what he is getting.

GENTLE ART OF TREASURE HUNTING

By H. de VERE STACPOOLE

THE other day I received an invitation to go to the Sea of Sulu to hunt for treasure, on the strength of a treasure chart—I know something about treasure charts.

In Havana you can buy a treasure chart for a few pesetas. If you look like a prosperous English or American tourist it is most likely that before you have been more than a day in Cigar Town your sleeve will be plucked by a gentleman with rings in his ears and a great grandfather whose brother was Morgan's boatwain.

He is starving (the gentleman with earrings). Goaded, long lost, and only just turned up, he will sell you for a hundred pounds; well, then, he will sell it for twenty pesetas, if you will promise to give him a quarter share of the treasure when found. The funny thing is that he must sell his charts. You would not find a man peddling oranges in a city whose inhabitants had no mouths with which to suck oranges—in a city destitute, to put it crudely, of suckers. But I'll wager he does not sell them to the Spaniards, but to the English-speaking races, brought up on the "Gold Bug" and "Treasure Island" and the father of all treasure tales, "Monte Cristo."

In my experience every treasure hunt in real life, with one exception to which I am coming, has always proved to be a case of cherchez l'autre—generally some lying old shell-back with a romantic complex, or some plain crook, each working, of course, on ground tilted and fertilised by Poe, Stevenson, Dumas, and Co. One example in this special connection will do.

A friend of mine named Smith, staying at Girgenti, sitting one day in front of his hotel, was accosted by a gentleman with exceptional manners and a black beard. The bearded one, after some general conversation on the weather and the olive crop, became at once mysterious and informative. Leaning forward in his basket chair he told Mr. Smith that he knew of a treasure in the vicinity that was only waiting to be dug up; he was unable to do the digging himself owing to an injury to his right arm, and was in need of an assistant. Would Smith do the digging on a fifty-fifty basis?

Smith said he would. There seemed no snag in the business, no money was asked for, and the bearded person was evidently a gentleman—of the Italian school.

The cache, it seemed, lay half a mile beyond the olive groves to the right of the hotel, and the moment was now.

"But if people were to see me digging!" objected Smith.

"If they did they would take you for an antiquarian," replied the other with a laugh, "and not for what you are. I can borrow a shovel and pick from the landlord of the hotel to dig for Roman remains; people are always doing it. Wait for me."

He came back in a few minutes with the pick and shovel, and they proceeded to the terrain.

The place was sufficiently desolate, and the "spot" was evidently well-known to the bland and bearded one. He marked out an oblong area seven feet by four, and Smith, taking off his coat, began to dig.

It was hot work; the place had

He looked up out of the pit at the black-boarded one outlined against the blue Sicilian sky, and was about to ask the question when he saw a pistol in the hand of the B.O.

"Villefort," said the latter, "your disguise did not deceive me in the least, and now that you have dug your grave here in my garden of Autoulli—At this moment asylum attendants burst on the scene and secured the Count of Monte Cristo, who had escaped, not from the Chateau d'If, but the maison de sante at Palermo."

"For whom did he take you?" asked the head attendant of the saved one.

"He called me Villefort," said Smith.

"Then," said the other, "you may thank your God he didn't take you for Caderousse. In that case he would have knifed you on the spot without bothering to make you dig your grave."

I give this true story as an acute example of the romantic lunacy that inspires the treasure hunter—for Smith, falling in with such a proposition was as big a lunatic in his way as the proposer. I told it the other day to one of the hardest-headed men in London and he said, "All the same, and even if you are right about the Romanticists, treasure, as a thing to be sought for, isn't dead."

Then he went on: "My friends, the Smiths, of Surbiton, were married, and would have been happy only that they hadn't quite enough money. Mrs. S. was nearly driven distracted by servant worries and the other res angustia domi, she wanted to live in a hotel or service flat, but she hadn't the money. One day her husband found her in great excitement.

"You remember that dream I had the other night," said she, "after I'd been reading of the Cocos Island Expedition. It's brought luck, I believe I've got the indication of—well, read this letter." She handed him a letter written in a curious, old-fashioned hand.

"Rubbish," he said. "I don't believe it; there's no such thing, you are being fooled."

"All the same," said she, "you've got to go and try and find out about it."

"And, grumbling at her stupidity—as it seemed to him—off he went. The first indication pointed to an old house in Hampstead, where he interviewed an old lady; she was reserved in manner but kindly; they talked for ten minutes; then he rushed from the house, called a taxi and drove to a house in X-street. Here he met an old-fashioned looking General, almost Victorian in appearance, who, after an interview, went upstairs and had fetched down two heavy boxes locked and corded. Two minutes later the General and the boxes accompanied him into the taxi and sitting side by side they started for Waterloo Station and Surbiton.

Smith almost surprised that an hooling mob was not chasing them to rob him of his treasure. A real treasure: a General who disliked cinemas, had a ten years' character, and was a real treasure.

The Very Idea!

PANTOMIMING

By Edward Kelly, Prospector

FOR the information of the charming young lady who, in the Y.M.C.A. Pantomimi last night, played the part of Robin Hood, and who, during the First Act, asked "Where's Old Kelly," we wish to state that we can be found in the Telegraph office any morning between 11.55 a.m. and noon, or any afternoon between 2.30 and 3 p.m.

Furthermore, we are at this moment heart free, it's pay day on Monday, we have a ducky little two-seater car, and appointments may be made by arrangement.

The other people who sang that particular song, being all males, can mind their own business.

Actually, we went to the pantomime under a false impression. We thought it was "The Bares in the Wood" and a skit on the local nudist Colony.

There were three acts, including the acts with which Bob Selk was going to cut off the heads of the Babes. In the second act there was scene one, scene two and scene three. We have often scene double, but never scene three before.

The plot moved on. In Act I Robin Hood made love to Maid Marion, but found she was the Marion kind.

The Babes were led into the woods to be slaughtered by the robbers, and presently squeals off-stage informed us that the slaughter was taking place.

Closer investigation, however, showed that it was merely the pipers piping in the haggis at the Scottish do on the other side of the harbour.

Someone at the back of the hall fell off their seat. The excitement was growing intense.

The villain strode on to the stage.

"Folled!" he muttered

"Wood'n the Babes?" someone in the audience asked

"Bah!" he shouted.

Everyone started shouting, so we went out and shouted ourselves a glass of milk.

Act II. We came in. The lights went out. The audience quivered with excitement.

Nymphs and fauns nipped and fawned around the sleeping Babes. Somewhere an owl howled, and Robin Hood shivered (Don't interrupt us, we're beginning to like doing this). The bad Uncle laughed scornfully.

"To-night, when the clock strikes twelve, the Babes will be murdered!" he hissed

"No!" shouted Robin bravely

"Yes!" he snarled

SAFETY-FIRST ADVICE TO GOVERNMENT

EXAMPLE AS WELL AS PRECEPT

READER SURVEYS THE FIELD

A reader writes:—
Sir,—All good citizens will aid in making the present campaign as successful as possible but a good number of people with whom I have discussed various aspects of the movement have expressed the opinion that a little more practice on the part of certain Government departments would be worth a considerable amount of the precept with which the Colony is now flooded. Here are some points for the consideration of the Powers that be:—

Sanitary Dept.—Refuse collection carts perambulate the main roads of the Colony in the middle of the day when traffic is at its peak. Can they not collect at dawn or dusk? Further, is it necessary for them almost invariably to choose a corner whenever they stop? In any case cannot the present practice of marshalling householders with their refuse bins in the centre of the road in advance of the lorries (so that the latter can be loaded on both sides simultaneously) be suppressed? Incidentally, it is this very practice which the L.G.P. asked people to avoid when waiting for buses and trams, in his speech on Tuesday at the Rotary Tiffin!

DRAIN CLEARANCE.

It is frequently necessary to clear drains under the main roads (particularly Queen's Road) by means of chains passed from one man-hole to another. This necessitates temporary obstructions as most of the man-holes are in the centre of the road. Cannot this be done in the early hours of the morning, as is the invariable custom in any civilised community? P.W.D.—Will this department refrain from adding to road hazards by ceasing to scatter loose sand inches thick on any repair job undertaken?

As a case in point, these last few days it has been almost impossible from this cause to negotiate the junction of Nathan and Kimberley Roads however slowly one drives, without getting into a skid, however slight. Per contra, it is surely the duty of this department to have supplies of gravel ready to scatter on main roads at least, in muddy and greasy weather. At present the China Bus Company performs this public service on its route through town, but I am unaware of any other roads being provided for.

ROAD UP!

Again, whenever it is necessary to have a road opening (and alas! how frequent that is!) cannot it be arranged to have the warning notices set some distance in advance of the obstruction? The present procedure is to stick the notices not more than a half dozen yards from the obstruction itself and this is particularly dangerous at corners.

Police and Fire Departments.—All fire appliances and police vans should be forbidden to sound sirens or bells unless actually proceeding to a fire or on route to an emergency. The public would then obey the signals much more readily than they do now, when everyone knows that while there might be a call, probably it is a practice trip. Similarly, ambulances should only sound their bells while en route to a call, or conveying a casualty.

Single policemen on patrol should be instructed to use the pathways, where these exist, and not the roadways. I have made a special point of noting this since the "Safety First" campaign was inaugurated. This more especially applies to the quieter streets, e.g. Austin and Kimberley Roads, Mody Road, etc. on the mainland.

SOLID TYRES.

If the government will put its own house in order, then assuredly the public will follow suit. If not—then why waste money on such a campaign as that now in force? Let the public ponder this. Some years ago, the government introduced prohibitive taxation on solid-tyred vehicles on the ground that they caused enormous damage to road surfaces. To-day, almost all solid-tyred vehicles are owned by the Government—which does not have to pay road taxes.

CITIZEN.

The m.v. Chinese Prince, from New York, sailed from Shanghai on the 25th instant and is expected here tomorrow afternoon.

AMERICANS GO BACK TO JAIL

HOPE FOR FREEDOM DASHED

Madrid, Jan. 22.
The four Americans convicted a few days ago by the supreme court for attacking a civil guard at Palma, in Mallorca, last year, have been granted pending completion of negotiations for pardons by the government.
Mr. Bowers, the American Ambassador, was informed that the government hopes to issue pardons shortly.
The imprisonment order caused surprise in American circles as officials had assured the Ambassador Mr. Bowers that they would not be held until the formal decision of the Supreme Court had been announced. The foreign minister has promised the Ambassador he will investigate.

It was learned unofficially that the Americans were ordered to prison on the strength of a rumour that they planned an escape.
Though they had previously been acquitted by a court martial at Palma, the supreme court imposed sentences of six months and a day each on Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, Roger Mead and Edmund W. Blodgett, but acquitted Rutherford Fullerton. The court's decision was on the military code provision of punishment for a spoken insult against the Spanish armed forces.
The Americans were held in jail without trial for weeks at Palma until diplomatic representations were made last June. They were members of the foreign artist and tourist colony at Palma.

CORONATION DELAY?

PU PU MAY WAIT FOR BIRTHDAY, MARCH 13

Peking, Jan. 25.
Unconfirmed Chinese reports state that the enthronement of Mr. Pu Yi, as the Emperor of Manchukuo, may be postponed until March 16. It is suggested he may desire to celebrate his birthday.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

WHERE THERE IS NO CHOICE, WE GO TO WELL TO MAKE NO DIFFICULTY.—George MacDonald.

The Messageries Maritimes s.s. Co. advise that the Athos II, which was scheduled to leave Hongkong on Sunday at 3 p.m., will leave at 6 a.m., the departure being thus accelerated.

We are asked to draw attention again to the announcement of the Repulse Bay Hotel management, that there will be no dinner dance at the hotel to-morrow night, owing to the Rotary Club dinner-dance which is being held at the Hongkong Hotel.

Charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with possession of 30 tins of prepared opium and 12 tins of raw opium in Connaught Road West, Leung Kan, a travelling trader, was fined $3,000 or twelve months and $360 or three months, concurrently. Revenue Officer Grimmett said the opium was strapped round his legs.

Last night, Mr. J. D. Bush made a broadcast appeal from ZBW studio on behalf of the Building Fund of the Victoria Home for Orphan Girls, an institution which does a wonderful work locally. Donations, however small, will be welcomed by Mr. John Bentley, of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, or by Mr. Tang Shu-kin, of the Tang Ping Fuk Bank, 11, Queen's Road Central.

Three weeks' hard was imposed on Lo Ngau by Mr. Balfour in the Central Magistracy this morning for stealing a piece of telegraph chain which was being used for repairs on the Blue Puntel steamer Tison at Taikeo Dock. Detective-Sergeant Goodwin said defendant was employed at the Dockyard as a cooper. He was seen attempting to sell the chain at a marine hawker's store in Gilman's Bazaar.

Mr. Wu Tez-hui, Member of the Central Supervisory Committee, will officiate and present the President with the official seals on behalf of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang.—Central News.

FOUR NEW MOTOR LIFEBOATS

FOR BRITISH COAST WORK

London, Jan. 25.
The Royal National Lifeboat Institution has laid down four new motor lifeboats which will be ready for service in the late summer.
The boats will each carry a crew of seven, with accommodation for thirty passengers, and will be stationed at Cromer (Norfolk), Maryport (Cumberland), Covenack (Cornwall), and Flamborough (Yorkshire).
At present there are 120 motor lifeboats and 64 pulling and sailing lifeboats round the British and Irish coasts.—British Wireless.

Australian music, national and bush songs and stories will be given by Madame Lottie Gordon, Mrs. Lyle Wilcox, Miss Geneva Li Sun and Miss Vera Clark. Booking at Moutrie and Helena May.

The police are sceptical regarding a report of an armed robbery reported to them as having occurred at 7.30 last night at the village of Tin Lul, near Tai Po. The allegation contained in the report is that four men, armed with a revolver between them, entered one of the huts, and after intimidating the inmate, stole a basket of clothing and carried away two crates of poultry, but according to the victim, subsequently abandoned them on the hillside. The police are investigating to ascertain just how much truth, if any, there is in the report.

TRAFFIC OFFENDERS

BIG BATCH BEFORE COURT

THROUGH CROWD OF CHILDREN

A fine of $50 was imposed by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on Lau Mok-shing, driver of public car No. 64, summoned for having failed to drive with care in Morrison Road. The defendant pleaded not guilty.

Traffic Sergeant Youe gave evidence stating that the defendant tried to force his way through the ranks of children in a procession near the Civil Service Cricket Club, causing the children to be pushed on either side to avoid being knocked down.

Mr. Hamilton convicted, remarking that it was one of the most dangerous things defendant could have done to get through a crowd of children in that manner.
A collision between a lorry and a tram car in Shaokwan Road in September also had a Court sequel, when Tse To, driver of lorry No. 2251, was summoned for overtaking a moving tram car, and fined $30.

Traffic Inspector Nicol stated that the defendant overtook the tramcar on its near side and crashed into it, doing damage to the extent of $200.

SCHOOLBOY DRIVER.

Wong Cho-him, driver of private car No. 4130, summoned for dangerous driving was fined $30. As defendant was represented in Court Mr. Hamilton inquired where he was.
Chief Inspector Marks, the complainant, said defendant was a schoolboy, and was in school.

Mr. Hamilton—Then why is he allowed to drive?
Inspector Nicol remarked that as long as he was over 18 years he could drive.
Chief Inspector Marks said he was going up Garden Road about 7.30 p.m. one night, and when near St. Patrick's Club put out his right hand. The defendant came up from behind and rushed past without any warning. Past Government House defendant was doing about 30 miles an hour. He could not catch up defendant at that speed, but when defendant came to Arbuthnot Road the light was against him, and he stopped and turned into Arbuthnot Road. Witness then followed him.
Mr. Hamilton asked defendant's representative to tell defendant that if he appeared again for fast driving he would ask the I.G.P. to cancel his licence.

ANOTHER DRIVER WARNED.

Chan Hing, driver of a public car, summoned for dangerous driving and driving without an appropriate licence, was fined a total of $40 or six weeks' imprisonment or both charges, and warned that his licence would be cancelled on the next charge of dangerous driving.

Inspector Nicol stated that the defendant drove past a stationary tramcar in Causeway Bay when the passengers were alighting.

Defendant had several previous convictions for dangerous driving.

Wong Wan-sum, driver of private car No. 1761, was fined $10 for dangerous driving near Queen's College.

Sergeant Youe stated that defendant overtook another car. Witness was coming in the opposite direction and had to swerve to avoid a collision.

Defendant had a good record, and Mr. Hamilton remarked that but for this he would have been fined $25.

Two lorry drivers, Sze To Kam-fong and Kwan Ki-cheong, were each fined $15 or 14 days for overtaking a moving tramcar in Whitefield.

Sub-inspector Roger said the lorries were going at a pretty fast speed, and they overtook the tramcar in a very narrow part of Whitefield.

Mr. Hamilton remarked that it was a very dangerous thing to do in Whitefield.

Cheung Kuk-ki, driver of lorry No. 3704, was fined $15 for driving at 32 miles an hour in Queen's Road, East.

HOCKEY PLAYER CAUTIONED.
Kallwan Singh, well-known Radio Sports Club hockey player, was cautioned on a summons of having disobeyed a traffic signal in Garden Road.

Defendant pleaded guilty, saying the red light was turned against him almost at the last minute, and he stopped.

Sub-inspector A. V. Baker said he was given the green light to proceed up Garden Road. The defendant ignored the signal against him, and he had to clamp on his brakes to avoid a collision with defendant's car.

Defendant had a very good record, and Mr. Hamilton asked him to be more careful in future.

THE BOOKSHELF

WARD, LOCK'S NEW FICTION

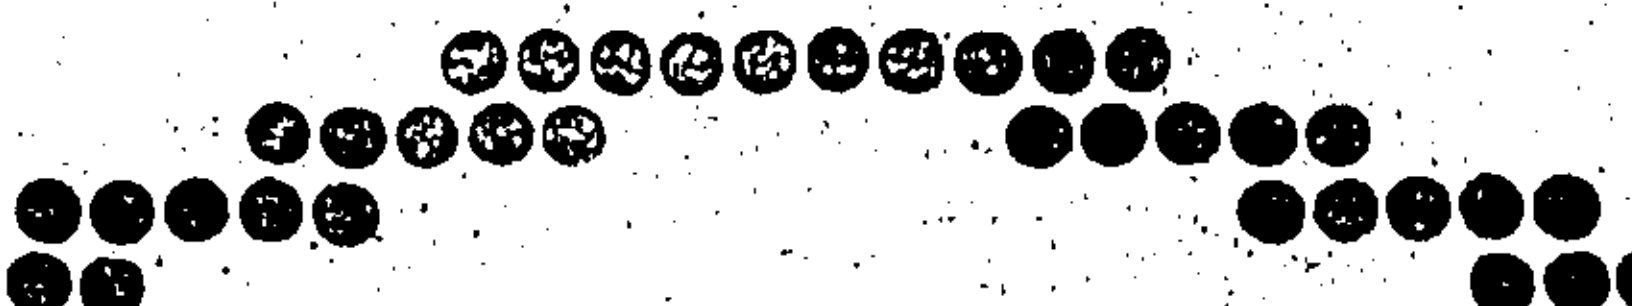

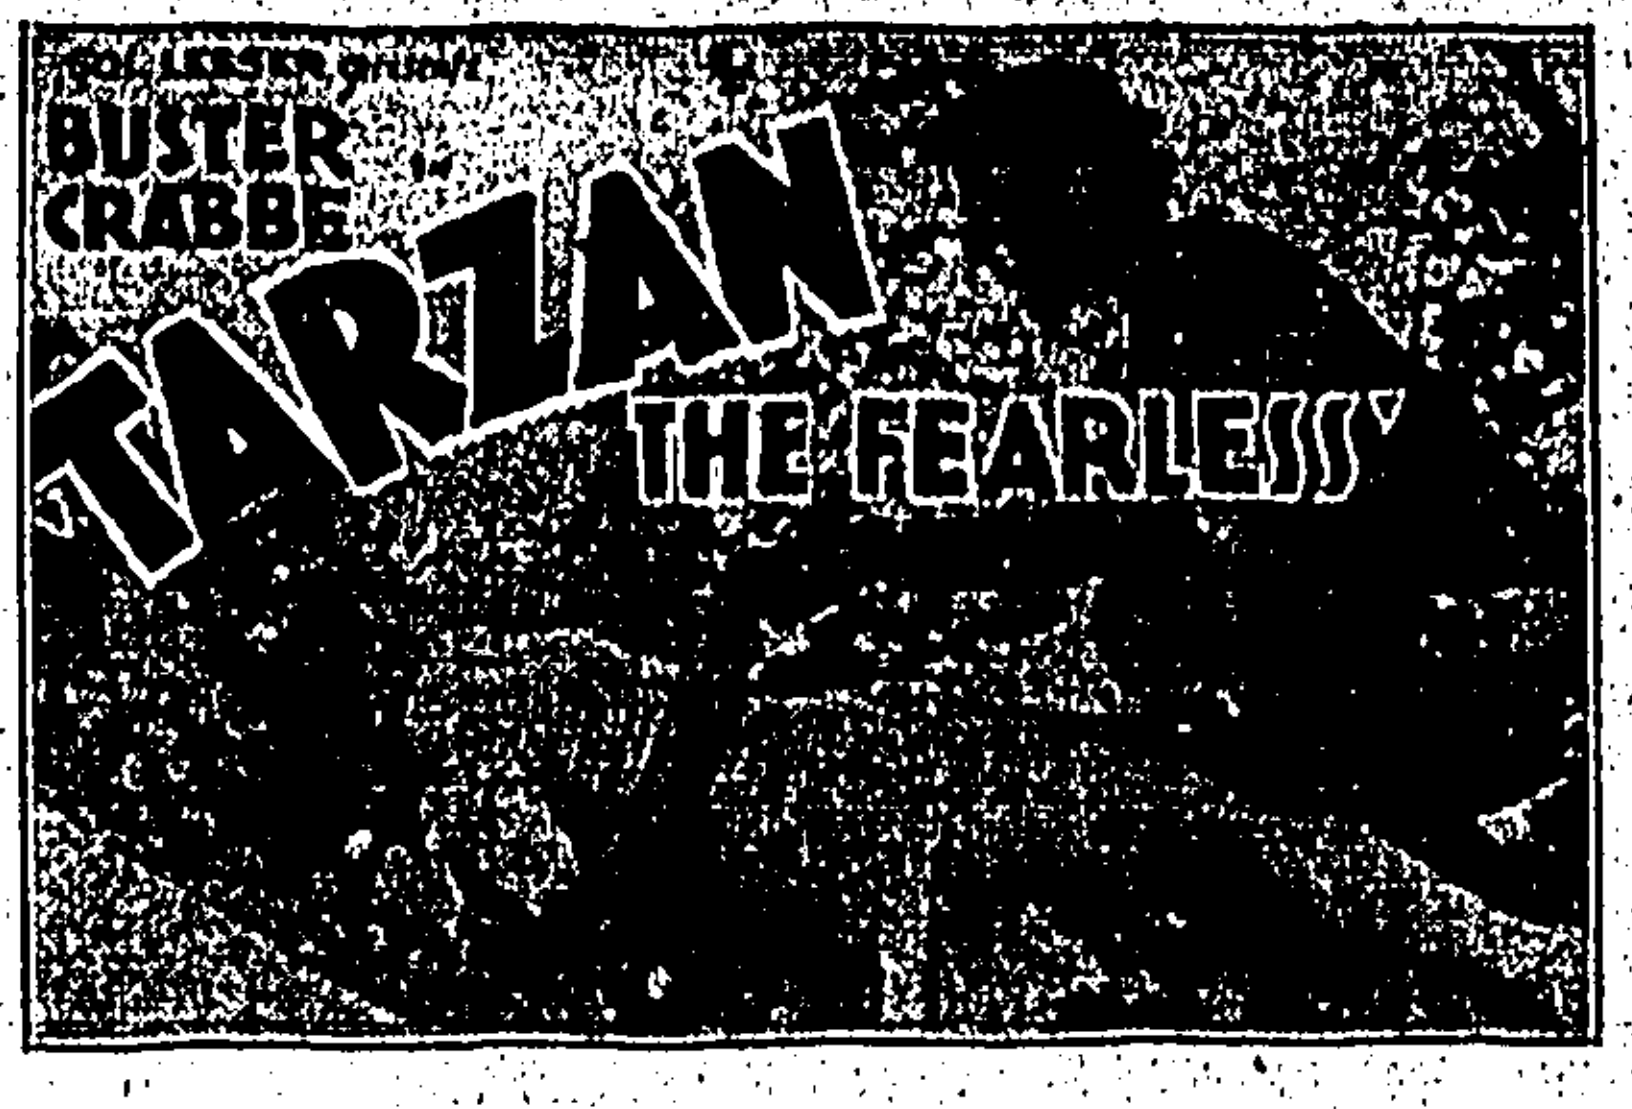

Light fiction of the most entertaining kind is included in the latest issues of Ward, Lock and Company's Colonial Library series. "Crumpled Lilies," by Carlton Dawe, is another of the "Leather-mouth" stories and deals chiefly with a kidnapping incident. Thrill follows thrill and there are many exciting episodes before the hero is eventually rescued. There is plenty of romance in the story, and we can thoroughly recommend this novel to those in search of a well-written story.

When one sees a novel by Charman Edwards one naturally expects something good and in "Drink No Deeper" there is no disappointment. It is an excellent character story of John Leroux who starts his career in the old shipping firm of Leroux, Standish & Co, but who eventually goes to sea. The reader must be left to learn for himself of the gruelling and tragic events which follow, and of the pathetic and wistful ending. There is only one woman character throughout the book, but that does not detract in any way from its interest. To lovers of Charman Edwards this novel should not be missed.

Another story of the sea is "Red Invader," by Harry Edmonds. It is the tale of a retired naval officer who is persuaded into joining an old shipmate on a cruise on a ten-ton sailing cutter. It is an excellent yarn, full of excitement and hair-breadth escapes, and very breezily told—a real man's story.

In "This Yellow Slave" by Lynn Durie, there is never a dull moment. It is an adventure novel set in Arabia, and grips the attention from start to finish. John Gray, a woman-hater, is the hero, and how he defies the schemes of some Arabs in a series of violent crimes perpetrated against society makes most thrilling reading. A shipwreck episode is very graphically described. Altogether a most on-

In such cases take only 'GARDAN'. The tormenting headache, the undesired consequences of the carousal last night will disappear rapidly and certainly. 'Gardan' can be taken even on an empty stomach without producing unpleasant by-effects.

The following good advice of one who knows will prove very useful to you in future: When you have spent happy hours with friends, take 'Gardan' even before going to bed! 'Gardan' will display its action whilst you sleep and next morning you will awake with a clear head, because 'Gardan' not only relieves pain, it also prevents it.

thrilling story.
To lovers of cattle country stories we advise "Tall Grass" by E. Murray Campbell. Rose Rand, the daughter of a former owner of a ranch out West, finds her former home in the hands of an unscrupulous villain, who she turns up in answer to an advertisement.

She is tricked into an odious marriage and flees to Kent Dayton on a neighbouring ranch for protection. Many dangerous adventures befall the pair before they are eventually married. The picturesque country settings help to make this thrilling tale a most enjoyable one.

SLOW WORK BY SUBSCRIPTIONS AND AUSTRALIANS

DERBY CANDIDATES
MORE IMPRESSIVESOLDIER OF CHINA PROVES TO
BE GENUINE STAYERHEM STABLE'S STRING OF PONIES
NOT YET UP TO FORMDERBY GRIFFINS DO MUCH STRONGER WORK

(By "Captain Foster")

I was hoping to confine myself this week entirely to the Subscription griffins and Australians but unfortunately their work, on the whole, has been on the slow side and uninteresting, and I fear that what little I have to say concerning them would have bored my readers intensely, not being in a position to enlighten them very much on the chances the various Stables have of winning at the Annual Meeting.

Suffice it to say that Chesterfield still continues to please, and that I was very much taken with the style in which he cantered a mile and a half last Tuesday afternoon. He came home nicely in a tick over 3/2 and the watch registered 3-35 4/5 for the entire distance.

Both Cavalcade and Young Chap came down the straight well within 31 4/5 in a gallop of three quarters of a mile which took 1-42 4/5. In Good Time showed up well by covering a mile in 2-16 3/5, last half in 1-06 3/5, and last quarter in 33 1/5.

A NON-STAYER.

Sarabande—a pony which I once rated highly—is, I fear revealing himself as a non-stayer, his finishing quarter's are always poor, and in no instance have I seen him come home in under 33 sec.

As regards the Derby griffins, much stronger work has been done, and the outstanding gallop of the week undoubtedly belongs to Soldier of Britain. The most critical cannot possibly cavil at his performance of Wednesday last when he faultlessly galloped a mile in 2-12 2/5; the last three quarters of a mile was accomplished in the very excellent time of 1-31 2/5; last half in 1-01 2/5 and final quarter in 30 2/5. He was unaccompanied. To me, the pony appears to possess "speed" and not "stamina"; and I think that time will eventually show him to be a "nailer" up to a mile—possibly a mile and a quarter.

On the other hand, Soldier of China can definitely be put down as a genuine stayer, and that he will be very, very dangerous when he strips for the Derby. He impresses me with each outing. In these animals, Mr. Li Shu-pang owns two high class ponies that will run prominently at the Meeting.

His Soldier of Germany, although eclipsed by the two greys, is no mean performer and will repay following.

KING'S WARDEN SHAPING WELL.

Mr. Dynasty's King's Warden is shaping well, and on his recent gallops will, I think, be dangerous wherever he starts, and Mrs. Pearce's Trowbridge is coming nicely to hand. Both these ponies went an easy three quarters last Wednesday in 1-38, and finished strongly. The last half mile was done in 1-03 2/5, and final quarter in 30 4/5.

Mr. Li Tso-fong galloped his Derby candidates last Sunday morning and, although High Speed returned a time of 3-24 for the mile and a half, the finish (35 sec.) was not impressive enough to rate him as being up to classic standard.

Messrs. HEM galloped their string of griffins last Saturday morning. I was unimpressed with their performances and feel that they will have to show very great improvement before they can be considered serious contenders for classic honours. Herod and Bayardo, in particular, undoubtedly allow quality but their gallops on the course, so far, are not in keeping with their looks. I am very much afraid that the accepted phrase "handsome is as handsome does" does not apply to them.

The Dunbar stable have done faster work during the past week. Oak Bay did not appear to me to have a finish as he took 33 sec. for the final quarter in a three quarter mile spin in 1-38 3/5. Chief Seattle did a fast gallop of a mile and the "riding boy" apparently was out to do time, as the first-quarter was done in 31 3/5 sec; the first half mile in 1-04; the first three quarters in 1-36 1/5, and the time for the full distance was 2-09 3/5.

MR. HARRIMAN SHOULD BE PLEASED.

Mr. Harriman has popped the question, and his Zoro's answer should please him immensely. "The

SUNDAY'S RACE MEETING
DEBUT OVER STICKSLIKELY WINNERS INCLUDE MARQUIS
HALL, CELERITY AND NO FEARMISS FEARON FAVOURITE FOR THE LADIES' RACE

(By "Captain Foster")

Sunday next should again see a very large number of enthusiastic race-goers wending their way to Kwanti to enjoy a pleasant afternoon's racing under National Hunt Rules.

An attractive card has been drawn up and racing, on the whole, should be keenly contested and well worth going to see.

Two local riders in Messrs. Deltz and Fung will be making their debut over "sticks" at Kwanti. The former, I understand, has ridden in many Steeplechases and Hurdle races in Shanghai, but the latter is making his first appearance over obstacles. Good luck to them both and, perhaps, they may encourage other local riders to emulate them in the near future. All will be made most welcome and I feel sure that once they experience the thrills of chasing they will become staunch supporters of the "lepping" game.

I fear I have somewhat wandered away from the path of weighing up the prospects of the ponies competing, but before dealing with them, I would take this opportunity of reminding owners and riders that they must have their nominations made out by 2 o'clock for the first race, and forty five minutes before each subsequent event. Forms for this purpose will be found in the Weighing Room, and when completed, should be handed in to the Official in Charge there.

At least ten ponies will face the Starter here, but I think Celerity, Gallant Fox, and The Quail will be concerned with the finish. On past performances, Celerity should win, but The Quail is also a fine hurdler. Gallant Fox, to my mind, has the legs of both of them but I am afraid he has not had enough schooling, and this very important factor may prove his undoing.

Here again the race is somewhat open and I pick Marquis Hall, Duke of Milan and Burgomaster to be the three placed ponies. In view of his last win Marquis Hall has incurred a penalty of 5 lbs. but I do not think this extra weight will stop him from winning were he fit and well. I gather, however, he has had a bad over-reach and his preparation has suffered in consequence.

SHA TAU KOK STEEPLECHASE.

Duke of Milan is a fine "lepper" and stayer. A real honest fighter in the bargain and, as he is meeting Marquis Hall with an advantage of 5 lbs. I shall not be in the least surprised to see him return as the winner. Burgomaster will run well but I think he requires a race over fences before actually scoring. All I can say is that he will indeed be a real good 'un to win first time out. The race he has had over hurdles will have opened his eyes but one must not forget that a good hurdler does not necessarily mean an equally good chaser.

SHEUNG SHIU HURDLE RACE.

Wisdom Star, I gather, will be a non-starter here, and I fully expect to see a splendid finish in this event. Backers will be hard put to it to pick the winner. The Gaden wall has a penalty of 5 lbs. and, good as he is over hurdles, I think the present opposition is stronger than the field he accounted for last month. Festival Eve has the speed but, apparently, he must be in the mood before he will give of his best. He ran most disappointingly the last time out, but a change in riders may make a difference. If he takes kindly to Mr. Deltz, who, I understand, will be his pilot in this instance, and puts his heart into the race, he is good enough to win.

Christmas Belle is a fine hurdler but I fear she will be out-classed in this field. Wemby Stag can gallop and will run well. The two ponies I like best are Orlando and Stickypast, and I think the issue will be between them. My fancy, however, is Orlando; he is very fast and, I gather, jumps well.

THE "DIANA" CUP.

The Ladies race is always a popular event and usually a good betting race. On his Happy Valley performances, No Fear, who will be ridden by Miss Lois Fearon, will, I imagine, carry the bulk of the money, and I think he will win. Golden Star, with Mrs. Peter Williams in the saddle, is dangerous and Glen Shee, who will be handled by Miss Pamela Scott Harston, will also be in the picture. I cannot see any of the three starters displacing these three ponies unless it is Tim, who will be ridden by Miss Beryl Fair. Her sister, Miss Betty, will be sadly missed from the field on account of illness, as she is a very keen rider, and I am very glad to hear that she is expected to leave the hospital very soon now.

THE JANUARY COUNTRY CUP.

I understand that both Winchester Stag and Tom Cobley will come under the Starter's order for this country event of approximately two miles and, although the latter will be carrying a penalty of 7 lbs. I expect to see a very fine finish between them. I have a leaning towards Winchester Stag who I think will win, but it is certain that the race will be very close and fast. Red Leaves should fill the third position.

My final selections will appear tomorrow.

TO-DAY'S BIG HOCKEY
TRIAL MATCHINTERPORT TEAM TO BE CHOSEN
FROM THE PLAYERSMY PEN PICTURES OF PROBABLES
AND POSSIBLES

(By "Bully-Off")

The final trial in preparation for the Interport tournament between Hongkong and Macao during the Chinese New Year holidays takes place on the H.K. Club ground at King's Park this afternoon, bully-off at 5 p.m. I am publishing below pen pictures of the two teams and have indicated who, in my opinion, should find themselves in the representative Colony side.

PEN PICTURES OF THE POSSIBLES.

R. H. Wong (St. Andrew's): A safe choice for goalkeeper and should be the final selection for the Hongkong team. Not by any means a spectacular custodian. He is safe though slightly slow in clearing. Uses his feet well with fast shots, and is never flustered.

Blackburn (Police): Played rather well at right back for the Colours in the first trial. He is not a hard hitter, and does not excel the qualities of Rodrigues. Sub. Taj Mohamed (Punjabis): Is not in the same class as Rodger or left back position. He is a mediocre player and is inclined to give sticks too often. The matches against the Macao eleven will probably be played on grass and here Taj Mohamed will be at a further disadvantage, being used to a sand or a mud field.

J. Rodger (Club): A definite left back for the Colony team. By far one of the best players in the defence category. Though slow in recovery his rock-like steadiness and anticipatory powers cover that fault. He should also make an able skipper of the eleven.

J. Gonzales (Recreio): A good tackler. Works hard, but is too out of clearing with scoop shots. He proved to be a "find" in the first trial when he kept Archer on the left-wing, in good check. I think, though, that he cannot displace W. Reed.

Lieut. Sinclair (H.M.S. Medway): A centre-half of mediocre calibre. His clearances are slow. I should have preferred to have seen Lowe instead in to-day's match.

N. Whitley (C.B.A.): A likely candidate for interport honours if he would only use his head a bit more when clearing. He tackles well. Was not too impressive, though, in the trials.

N. A. E. Mackay (St. Andrew's): Perhaps only the selectors know why he is being given another trial, I certainly don't. The answer probably is that there is a dearth of right wings. He failed at right wing and, as I have said before, he was out of place and invariably offside in that position on Sunday. He is definitely an inside forward.

T. S. D. Whitley (C. B. A.): A brilliant player who can claim inclusion. Possessing clever stick work, he follows up well. He impressed very much in the first trial. His form this afternoon may be a deciding factor.

Awtar Singh (Radio): Another player with good stick work. A splendid centre-forward but he is slightly below the standard of Gurbachan Singh—at least, as a goal-getter certainly. He combines well.

Kalwant Singh (Radio): His inclusion to partner Gurbachan Singh should be seriously considered. Their combination is of a high standard, and should prove a definite asset to the Colony attack. He is also a reliable forward.

Lal Singh (Punjabis): No better choice for a left wing. He is tricky, speedy and wields the reverse stick pass with no mean accuracy.

—AND THE PROBABLES.

Pte. Hollingsworth (Lincolns): Although he had little chance in the first trial to show the selectors his true worth the way he responded to the calls made on him secured his inclusion in the final trial. I have seen him playing in the Regimental team and the Army XI and although more spectacular than Wong will, I think, take second place to him. Wong is safer.

A. J. M. Rodrigues (University): One of the surprises of the trials. He commands a strong hit and covers well. I would place confidence in Rodrigues and Rodger as the two backs for the Colony against the Portuguese team.

W. A. Reed (Club): A certain choice. There is no right half in the Colony to touch him for class and constant form. As I have said before, he would probably secure a place in an International trial if not in an International side.

Halford (C.B.A.): A much better selection than Lieut. Sinclair for the pivotal position. I would rather see H. J. D. Lowe in the centre and Halford at left-half, but the selectors have, in their wisdom, seen fit to include Lowe only as a reserve half. Under the circumstances Halford should be the final selection.

E. V. Reed (C.): Will probably be favoured for the left half position to N. Whitley. He plays a good destructive game (and places his passes to the forwards with more accuracy than his rival. Has an extraordinary strong hit and seldom uses the flick shot.

The Donald-Eden wing (H.M.S. Medway): It is impossible to take these two players separately. Where the name of one appears in hockey the other is not far away. They are almost certain to constitute the right flank of the attack. Donald is the fastest forward in the Colony, and with Eden inside to him, is equal to any situation. Eden is also fast and a very pushy forward. I think the latter will get into the side in preference to T. Whitley.

G. Singh (Radio): Has been playing inside right for the Radio this season, but will get his place in the representative side at centre-forward. He is fast, commands good control of the ball and is deadly in the circle. He cannot be left out.

Lieut. C. C. Garthwaite (R.A.): The selectors made a big mistake in including him in the previous trial at right inner. He is essentially a left flank man. Plays a hard game, but I think Kalwant Singh will get into the side.

S. C. Archer (Club): Is a hard worker and gets in some useful centres. As was evidenced in the trials he is an easy man to cover. Tackling is however rather a weak point with him. I doubt if he will get a place.

Some Remarkable Riding Feats

FORDHAM CHAMPION FOURTEEN YEARS: THE GREAT
AMERICAN YEAR OF 1900

IT is not an easy matter to imagine a more colourful spell of a sporting journalist's career than when cooling his heels waiting for the Stewards' decision as to whether it is practicable for a race meeting to take place.

Some of us experienced this at Galwick and Esher, the other week, when "standing by" writes an English racing correspondent.

I was involved into numerous arguments connected with racing records and statistics, and as a result, I have spent many hours since looking up old issues of "Bell's Life," "Races Past," issued by Messrs. Wetherby, and more recent copies of "The Sporting Life."

FOUR-MILE HEATS.

MOST racing men were of the opinion that Gordon Richards had beaten all records when riding twelve consecutive winners—once at Nettingham and eleven at Chesham.

Gordon's feat stands so far as the record books show, but here and there I came across references to the famous George Heron.

George Heron, like Archer and Richards, was the rider of his day, but in his time races were run in a series of heats.

Heron rode as many as nineteen consecutive winners in heats, mostly of four miles.

Heron was killed when riding at Hull on July 26, 1700.

There is a footnote under the details of the race in the "Calendar," which reads:

"Gipsy threw her rider, George Heron, twice before the race, and again immediately after starting. We are concerned to state that the latter proved fatal to him."

Heron's death was responsible for races at Hull being abandoned for some considerable time.

THE LATE CAPTAIN
R. E. SASSOON.

NAME TO BE PERPETUATED.

His many friends here and in China, particularly in Shanghai, will be interested to hear that the name of Captain R. E. Sassoon is to be perpetuated at Hurst Park.

His mother, Mrs. Meyer Sassoon, has presented a Gold Cup to be competed for annually, commencing next month.

The race, worth £350 in addition to the Gold Cup, is to be known as The R. E. Sassoon Challenge Cup, confined to amateur riders, and run over three miles and one hundred and eighty yards.

The Cup is to be held by the owner of the winner of the race for one year, and the Hurst Park executive give a cup value £25 to the rider of the winner.

HAVING beaten one of Fred Archer's famous records, Richards will, no doubt, set about some others, but he has a long way to go.

Fordham was champion fourteen times between 1865 and 1871. Archer held the distinction for thirteen successive years from 1874, and Donoghue an unbroken run of ten years from 1914 to 1923.

It is remarkable that Donoghue completed his sequence when he divided the honours with E. C. Elliot in 1923; and exactly the same thing happened in 1871, when Fordham "dead-heated" with C. Maldment. The score in 1871 was 80 each, and 89 each in 1923.

Several English riders have won more races in their time than Gordon Richards. These include the still living ex-champions, M. Cannons, S. Donoghue, C. Wood, and O. Madden.

Fordham was champion five times, when the handicap minimum was down to 4st. All through Archer's career the minimum was 6st 7lb, and for the last eight years from 1879 Archer's weight was given in "Ruff's Guide" as 8st 7lb.

Archer rode upwards of 200 winners in eight different seasons, and although he made the record of winning 240 races in 1885, he had also won 241 races in 1884, when he had only 577 mounts.

OVER 8,000 MOUNTS.

DURING his riding career from 1870 to 1886, Archer had 8,084 mounts under Jockey Club Rules, and he rode 2,746 winners. In addition, he won many races in various countries in Europe.

Fordham won 2,510 races, and he with C. Maldment. The score in 1871 was 80 each, and 89 each in 1923.

CRICKET CLUB LACKS ENTERPRISE AGAINST ARMY

And Lose Opportunity of Winning A Very Good Game

(By R. Abbit)

The Club have only their own lack of enterprise to thank for the fact that they failed to win their match against the Army on Saturday last. They won the toss but did not put their opponents in.

It is generally held now that this is the best thing to do if one is all out to force a win. Still it may be arguable. But, after having agreed to draw stumps at 5.45 p.m.—five minutes before the proper time by the way—they did not declare until five minutes to four, and thus gave the Army a hundred minutes to get two hundred runs. When the strength of the Club bowling is considered this is of course ultra-cautious, especially in view of the fact that the only real quick scoring bat in the Army team is Captain Williams.

Had the Club declared a quarter of an hour or more before, say with a hundred and seventy on the board, it is most probable they would have won as the Army tail is very collapsible and the earlier batsmen with a more reasonable proposition to face would have gone all out for the runs—and most likely would not have got them.

Apart from the question of tactics however it was a good game to watch. Hayward opened very confidently and seems infinitely more at home this season. Last year his shots were very stiff and cramped. He looked like getting a lot until he finished one from Elvin—who still suffers from the Scorer's refusal to write him down with the correct spelling. He should recollect Mr. Weller Senior's advice and "put it down with a 'vee', My Lord."

Anyway Walker took a pretty hot one high above his head at mid-off. Up to this point Owen Hughes had not seemed comfortable but he settled down later and proceeded to score very fast except off Garthwaite. I thought however that with any luck Elvin might have had his wicket early on.

THE CLUB BAT TOO LONG.

Alec Pearce was bowled by a long hop which kept very low and T. E. did not stay very long. Harley however stopped in, though he is a wretched starter.

Then runs began to come very fast. Owen Hughes was at his best and executed his favourite square cuts and leg hitting to the full.

He was unfortunate to be run out when five short of his century. It looked a safe run but Whitley from fine third-man on the boundary threw the wicket down with a very fast and accurate return. There were incidentally some good bits of work in the field individually, but on the whole the ground fielding was poor—though so doubt the cold weather accounted for much of the fumbling.

After his dismissal the later Club batsmen laid about them. The curious feature of this portion of the game was the way in which Harley failed to get the bowling. He received one ball in five overs during one period. In the end a belated declaration found him thirty-nine not out.

A COMFORTABLE DRAW.

Set with two hundred to get in just under a hundred minutes the Army had little chance of a win. Michell and Bill Williams started soundly and looked as if they were there for keeps, when the latter got a nasty one on the glove from Beck, and the ball rolled on to the off stump before he could stop it.

Garthwaite settled down though the wicket was a beast and Beck was rather dangerous. He had Michell caught smartly at third slip by McInnes off one that kicked up, and then Captain Williams came in.

I had been looking forward to seeing the duel between these two. It did not last very long unfortunately as Beck was taken off but I think the bat win—that time any way! I now look forward to their next meeting in the United Services match.

There was no playing for a draw in the Army Skipper's knock. He hit the ball good and hard, and as usual his hooking was delightful.

As usual, too, he got out trying to do too often, and failing to remember the way the ball is apt to kick up suddenly. He thus skied one from Redmond very high to Owen Hughes at backward square leg. It was so high that Dunkley went for it also, each man assuring the other in loud tones that it was his catch.

Owen Hughes won, but frankly I expected to see them both laid out—as once happened when R. Hancock and Hooper went for a high one. Under the circumstances it was a marvel Owen Hughes held it. The game ended tamely in a draw.

I was interested to see Ballard batting. To be frank I don't think he has much defence, but he swings his bat very hard and will make a lot of runs against weak bowling. He is by the way a left hander.

I thought Redmond during his second spell bowled well—his first run consisted mostly of full-tosses. Beck was on the short side and bowled too much to leg. Pearce did not come off, though I expected the wicket to help him. Peter Williams hit him for a beautiful six, straight, but he bowled one perfect ball that completely beat Peter and did everything except hit the sticks.

THE UNIVERSITY'S FIRST GAME.

At Pokfulam the bat beat the ball. The home side in their first League encounter batted very well, though of course the absence of Omar weakened the Craigengower attack.

Rodrigues showed that his batting has in no way fallen off. He was good last year, and I hear that he played some good knocks in October last, though as I was out of the Colony, I did not see them.

The absence of Anderson throws a good deal of responsibility on his shoulders and this may do him good. If he remains in the Colony and sticks to cricket I am pretty sure he will develop into an Interport player before very long.

Craigengower made a gallant attempt to get the hundred and ninety-three required and, thanks to Ernie Zimmerman, largely got within fifteen runs of them. I feel more and more convinced that E. Zimmerman is an opening batsman. Both sides lost five wickets and honours were even.

THE SECOND DIVISION.

Recreio were again held to a draw, though they had the best of the game. A. P. Pereira had five for thirty-six, and Lawson for the Club second six for forty-seven. The latter is very variable and has a long way to go before he can attain the form of his father, Dr. Jim, who was in his day one of our best Interport bowlers. Some of my readers will recall that Dr. I. Lawson was one of the only two survivors of the Interport team which was lost in the wreck of the Bokharu.

The Civil Service second maintained their recent improvement when they had much the best of a draw with the Police—who were saved by Carey. Craigengower were all over University second. I have not the League figures before me but, subject to correction, I think that this puts them level with the I.R.C. second team at the head of the table. Recreio have dropped back.

TO-MORROW'S GAMES.

There is only one League fixture down for to-morrow. Craigengower are at home to the Army. It should be a good and even game with the odds slightly on the Army. Stocker makes his first appearance this season, and I fancy their batting will be strong enough to win, provided Garthwaite and Elvin are in reasonable form with the ball.

I don't know if Tinker Lee is going to bowl to Captain Williams with his usual leg-trap field. I trust not. I cannot afford any wreaths at the moment!

H.K.C.C. go to Pokfulam for a friendly game where they should win, and K.C.C. are at home to the Civil Service—unless there is snow lying on the ground.

In the Junior Division I fancy that I.R.C. II at home will be too much for the R.A.M.C. unless Bonavia comes off. It is impossible to say these days what sort of a team the Navy can turn out, but even though they are playing at home, they will have to have a good side to beat Recreio.

The Civil Service are lucky to find Whitley and (I think) Ballard playing for the Army. Even so I doubt if they can do more than draw with the R.A.S.C. The Club and Police are at home respectively to University second and K.C.C. second in friendly games.

WILLIE SMITH TO PLAY AT THE K.C.C.

Demonstration to be Given on Friday

Willie Smith, one of the world's leading billiards players, now in Hongkong in the course of his Far East tour, will make his first appearance this evening, when he will play in an exhibition match at the South China Athletic Association.

On Friday next, he will be at the Kowloon Cricket Club, where he will give a demonstration, and will meet the K.C.C. champion, Mr. N. Rakusan.

MAX SCHMELING.

Schmeling Says He Is A World-Beater

AFTER CARNERA AND BAER

New York, Jan. 20.

Herr Max Schmeling arrived today from his native Germany, full of a lot of hopes and big ideas about pugilistic prospects in the next few months.

The former world heavyweight champion said he was hopeful of fighting big Primo Carnera, present wearer of the world crown, and more hopeful of meeting Max Baer, of California. He can whip either one, said Herr Max.

Schmeling expressed the opinion that Tommy Loughran, though outweighed about 70 pounds, may knock the crown from the Italian Man Mountain's brow in the forthcoming battle of the palms Feb. 22 at Miami, Fla.

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

St. Andrew's Beat Kowloon Indians

Playing in a friendly hockey match yesterday, St. Andrew's defeated the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club by three goals to nil. The Saints fielded nine men, while the Indians had ten.

In the first half Guest gave the Saints the lead early in the game while Bliss added the second before the interval.

After the change over the Indians played well but could make no headway against the Saints' defence. Bliss eventually gave his side the third goal with a well directed shot. Guest for the Saints was outstanding both in attack and defence.

HINTS TO UMPIRES.

(By "Bully-Off")

NO. 9. Although the rules state that all players must be five yards from the ball when a free hit is taken do not deprive a player of the advantage of getting his hit in quickly even if there is an opponent standing too close to him. It may be that the opponent is loitering there until his own side have time to get back. In the circle however make all players keep their distance. If the striker mislaid remember that he can take no further part in the game until some other player has touched the ball. Penalise him if he baulks the opponent.

R.A.S.C. BEAT R.A.O.C. MUCH THE BETTER TEAM

The R.A.S.C. defeated the R.A.O.C. at Happy Valley yesterday by three goals to one and were full value for their victory.

Swain and Fuller (twice) scored for the Service Corps whilst Redlidge netted for the Ordnance from a melee in front of the Service Corps goal.

Alvis and Crayford were always conspicuous for the winners whilst Gormey and O'Brien were tireless workers for the losers.

FINISH LEVEL PEGGING WITH H.M.S. KENT

DEFEAT CUMBERLAND IN THEIR LAST ENCOUNTER

As a result of a smart win against the Cumberland yesterday, H.M.S. Berwick succeeded in finishing their programme in the first division of the China Fleet Football League on level terms with H.M.S. Kent at the top of the table.

The Berwick, however, enjoy a slight goal-average advantage, and in view of the absence of the Kent, are applying to the Sports Committee for recognition as champions. The Kent is now on her way home to England, and the usual play-off will be impossible.

Yesterday the Berwick won by three clear goals, and were fully deserving of the success. The Cumberland won the toss, and elected to play with the wind behind them. Tong and Skinner, both Navy League team players, were outstanding, and it is entirely due to the lack of support received that these two did not manage to find the net.

The play for the majority of the time was in the Cumberland's half, although occasionally the losers broke away, but Harman, the Cumberland's goalkeeper, played a splendid game, clearing every time.

The first goal came through Langmead, who took a pass from the wing to give Harman no chance. This was scored in the first minute of the game and for the rest of the first half, both goals remained intact.

After the change over, Morgan obtained possession and scored within thirty seconds of the restart. Play after this was even, but towards the end, the Berwick were awarded a penalty, and Hamby made no mistake with the kick.

Jenkins and James played well in defence for the Berwick.

The following lined up under C.P.O. Dibbs:

H.M.S. Berwick:—Funnell; Jenkins, James; Counsell, Thomas, Kennedy; Jones, Morgan, Langmead, Worthington, Hamby.

H.M.S. Cumberland:—Harman; Grant, Burdon; Welsh, Ward, Kelford; Spencer, Tong, Graham, Potts, Skinner.

PANDORA BEATEN IN A GOOD GAME

A good game was witnessed at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon between the Pandora and the Olympus in the Submarine Football League. From the kick off, the Olympus were on the attack and within two minutes were a goal up. Lt. Cheyne giving Bennett no chance with a good shot from within the penalty area. Exchanges were fairly even for a time, but after twenty minutes, Lt. Cheyne put the Olympus further ahead.

Upon resumption, the Olympus continued their attack, but an accident occurred to Warner of the Pandora within the next few minutes. In attempting to tackle Graham, he made a mistake and received the full force of the ball, which necessitated him leaving the field for about ten minutes.

During his absence, Lt. Cheyne broke through to pass to Lt. Comdr. Hill, who scored with a good shot into the corner of the net.

The end came with the Olympus winners by three goals to nil. Blair for the winners was outstanding, while Lt. Cheyne was in fine shooting form.

Warner played well for the losers, while Johnson played a staunch defensive game at back.

The following lined up under S. P. O. Douglas:—

H.M.S. Olympus:—Barber; Cardy; White; Lt. North, Blair, Graham; Lt. Comdr. Hill, Richardson, S/Lt. Cheyne, Norman and Davies.

H.M.S. Pandora:—Bennett; Frampton, Johnson; Brown, Warner, Robson, Thomas, Swann, Ford, Tupper, Thornhill.

EXCITING RUGBY

Berwick Beat Tamar and Small Ships

An exciting rugby match took place at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon between the Berwick and the Tamar and Small Ships, the Berwick emerging victors by nine points to nil.

Mudford, Corp and Nicholls scored, but Masters could not convert. The following represented the Berwick: Meek; Richards, Parker, Masters, Thomas; Mudford, Jones; Dunbloton, Corp, Stout, Cadywold, Martell, Nicholls, Jeffries, Croxson.

horsesmen established a wonderful record, as the Cannons won 3,800 races.

In 1873 H. Constable defeated F. Archer by three points for the Jockeys' championship. Then when Archer came into fame Constable was the runner-up in each of the five years up to 1878.

During the last eight years Archer was riding, from 1870, the still-living Charlie Wood was second seven times, and Fordham was second in 1880. In 1882, when Wood was runner-up he won 182 races, and rode 186 winners in 1883.

Charlie Wood won 1,350 races within ten years, and after the death of Archer he was on top of the list in 1887. Fred Barrett secured the laurels in 1888, when Wood was standing down; and for several years during this period George Barrett and John Watts finished in the first three.

J. Watts, who won the Epsom Derby four times, won 1,412 races in all, and with a shorter period in the saddle George Barrett rode 1,370 winners.

OTTO MADDEN'S REIGN.

TOM LOATES defeated G. Barrett for the leading position in 1889 and after standing down for a couple of seasons T. Loates defeated M. Cannon in 1893. In this year Loates had 827 mounts, and he rode 222 winners, and when he retired he had won 1,426 races.

Mornington Cannon won upwards of 1,800 races, and his record was only surpassed by F. Archer and G. Fordham. Having been head of the list in 1891 and 1892, he was again champion four times in succession from 1894, and in each of two seasons he won upwards of 180 races.

Otto Madden followed Cannon in 1898, but there were several breaks in his splendid career. He was champion again in 1901, 1903, and 1904, and he has ridden over 1,500 winners.

Sam Loates defeated Madden for the coveted position in 1899, and in the following year the American, Lester Reiff, displaced Sam Loates. This was the first American year, for five Yankee jockeys finished in the first ten. They were L. Reiff, J. Reiff, Sloan, Rigby, and J. H. Martin.

William Lane finished on top in 1902 to break the Madden spell, and in 1905 Madden was seen to the apprentice. E. Wheatley, William Higgin, and then champion twice, and he was succeeded by D. Maher in 1908.

It was in 1908 that Frank Wootton finished second with 129 wins, and Wootton was then a boy who reached his fifteenth birthday in the December.

Frank Wootton won the highest honours in four successive years from 1909, and he then finished second to Danny Maher in 1913.

BRILLIANT DANNY MAHER.

MAHER'S record was exceptional. He settled here in 1909, and in addition to leading twice he was "placed" nine times. He was top on percentages eight times, and he won 1,421 races in England.

Stephen Donoghue followed Maher as champion jockey in 1914, and was never beaten for ten seasons. Donoghue has won more than 1,000 races.

E. C. Elliott was first on the list in 1924, and Gordon Richards defeated all his rivals in 1925.

T. Weston was on top in 1926, and Richards secured the honours in 1927 and the two following years.

Fred Fox led in 1930, when he rode one more winner than Richards. Gordon was champion in 1931, 1932, and for the seventh time in the season recently closed.

Leaving the flat-race jockeys, the remarkable record of George Stevens is worthy of mention. Stevens rode in fifteen Grand Nationals between 1862 and 1871, and never came to grief.

He rode 15 winners in Freeholder in 1860, Emblem in 1863, Emblematic in 1864, and The Colonel twice in 1869 and 1870. He was also third on Emblematic in 1865, fourth on Maria Arnes in 1866, sixth on Orkosta in 1869, sixth on The Colonel in 1871, and eighth on Tennyson in 1867.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done, 2,270,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: The market closed irregular due to a late rally which brought out a long string of automobile issues at rising prices wherefore most of the last rise moderately from lows. The market trend was slightly downward due to mild profit-taking and more or less expected recession after the ten days of uninterrupted rise. There was some short selling noted on Wall Street but however Wall Street regards the undertone of a market as strong and predicts a further entry of the outside public. Bonds eased moderately excepting U.S. Government issues which were steady. Commodities were easier with the trend of wheat downward due to liberal receipts.

Brokers' loans were reported at $751,000,000 an increase of $21,000,000 over last week's figure of $730,000,000.

Time money was quoted at 1/4% for 60 days and 1 1/2% for 90 days. Stocks: There was fresh buying after a temporary halt which took the market higher with prospects favouring continued advance. Wheat The market was weak. The cold wave is less severe than predicted. Tired Longs liquidated. The market might ease to a price attractive to buyers. Cotton: There was some recovery from the low levels at which prices were at to-day on the probability of Senator Bankhead's legislation providing for compulsory winning restriction being pressed in Congress due to the apprehension regarding the success of the voluntary restriction plan. Buying was small and non-aggressive. Apparently there are further sales over the market. Silver: The market followed foreign prices on small volume while the majority of speculators assumed a waiting attitude. News and reports would indicate a defeat of the silver amendment however there is a growing sentiment in advised quarters that silver legislation would be passed in the near future covering purchases of all domestic silver and not only the newly mined metal.

"TELEGRAPH" ART
SUPPLEMENTInteresting Picture
Features

There will be numerous interesting pictures in tomorrow's issue of the Telegraph Pictorial Supplement, including, besides local photos, some effective snow scenes in Peking.

Groups will include the Browns' party aboard the s.s. Aeneas, the annual dinner of the Guards Association, R.A.O.B. children's party, and farewell dance to 27th Co. R.A.M.C.

The wedding of Mr. John Pau and Miss Florence Awal will be illustrated, and several pictures of the Rugby match between Hongkong and the Australian University XV will be given, as well as a snapshot of a party of local hikers on the summit of Taimoshan.

RUMOURS DENIED.

NO BATTLE SQUADRON FOR HONGKONG

London, Jan. 25. The persistent rumour, believed to have emanated from Hongkong, that a British battle squadron would leave for the Far East in the spring, and in addition that the whole of the Rainbow Class of submarines would take post on the China Station, is dismissed as baseless by official quarters.—Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The secret of many a child's success on the stage is revealed in "Tiger Shark," a drama of theatrical life recently filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, which is showing at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday. Adapted from an original story by Bradford Ropes, author of "42nd Street," the picture deals with a little known side of the theatre—the intense ambition that causes "stage mothers" to drive their children to success. The heartbreaks and laughs that are encountered by the youngsters, being vividly to the screen. Alice Brady scores even a greater triumph than in "When Ladies Meet" in her portrayal as the ambitious mother who will stop at nothing to further the career of her daughter. She is sensational in her pathos and comedy alike. Maureen O'Sullivan has the best role of her career to date and puts every effort into an outstanding performance. Franchot Tone adds more laurels to his notable portrayals in such pictures as "To-day We Live," "The Stranger's Return" and "Midnight Mary." He is seen as Miss O'Sullivan's youthful lover. Phillips Holmes as Lord Aylesworth, who wants to marry Miss O'Sullivan to save her from the designs of her mother, is convincing in a mature role. Ted Healy is the "surprise performance" of the picture, describing his hilarious brand of "sitcom" comedy to play several dramatic scenes. Supporting roles are capably filled by C. Henry Gordon, Alan Edwards and Ben Alexander. Charles Brabin, who scored recently with "Washington Masquerade" and "The Secret of Madame Blanche," handled the direction with a strong sense of scene values.

"Falling For You"
Jack Hulbert and Cicely Courtneidge lead in "Falling For You" coming on Sunday next at the King's Theatre, a full-length Gaiety picture, the others of the cast being Tamara Desai, Garry Marsh, Alfred Drayton, Toni Bruce, O. B. Clarence, Morton Selton, Ivor M'Claren and Leo Sheffield. The picture is full of the uproarious type of humour with which the Hulberts have made us so familiar. The original play by Jack Hulbert and Douglas Furber and Robert Stevenson; the lyrics by Douglas Furber, the music by Vivian Ellis and the scenario and dialogue by Claude Hulbert. Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of clowning, his fascinating, rhythmic dancing and his method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements essentially his own. When he is partnered by Cicely Courtneidge there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. In "Falling For You," they are rival reporters, and peculiar specimens, too.

"Cracked Nuts"

Nothing but a mythical kingdom background could have framed such a side-splitting, wholly delightful comedy as the Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey farce, "Cracked Nuts." The laugh-fest, produced by Radio Pictures will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Dorothy Lee, delectable little comedienne who has been seen with the team of film-comics in all of their vehicles—is featured opposite Wheeler. "The mythical kingdom background or some other setting equally fantastic, doubling the mirthful entertainment qualities of this comedy. If the spectators of a comedy have a sense of a too-great realism of backgrounds in talkies, they lose some of the enjoyment of the sheer healthful nonsense and hysterical fun of such a sound-celloid caricature of life. "With the sky the limit for realism, as it is in the mythical kingdom setting, there is also no limit to the amount of fun a comedy can contain." An unusually charming little love story between Wheeler and Miss Lee is woven in with the countless laughs of "Cracked Nuts." Others in the cast include such comedy favourites as Edna May Oliver, Leni Stengel, Stanley Fields and Harvey Clark.

"Tiger Shark"

Edward G. Robinson's record of consistent hits has been rewarded by his producers, Warner Bros., with another long-term contract, following the completion of "Tiger Shark," the epic of the "best dam" fishermen in Pacific Ocean," which is having its final showings to-day and to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre with Richard Arlen, Zita Johann, J. Carroll Nash and a strong supporting cast. In "Tiger Shark," Robinson is seen as a Portuguese fishing boat captain who is elemental and childlike in the tempestuous love, hate and other emotions he plays. Running to the gamut of human emotion, Robinson sums up in "Tiger Shark" all of the great talents which brought him the new contract with Warner Bros., and an assignment in "Silver Dollar," which will be his next picture after "Tiger Shark." The new Warner Bros.-Robinson contract is said to run for several years and under its terms the great actor will bring to the screen at least three pictures every year.

"I Was a Spy"

Mme. Martha McKenna, whose experiences as a nurse and a Secret Service agent in Belgium during the Great War are the basis of the film "I Was a Spy," saw the picture during its London run. "I am sorry," she said, "but the film is so beautiful, it has brought back to me all the sad days. There are many more things to tell, but the film has told all that could be told. It could not have been more wonderfully done. 'I think it is the most lovely film I have ever seen, and all the players are as true to life as it is possible to imagine.' 'I Was a Spy' is now showing at the King's Theatre. Don't miss it!"

"Gold Diggers of 1933"

Guy Kibbee was somewhat startled when Director Mervyn LeRoy ordered him to take Aline MacMahon in his arms and whisk her around to the strains of a lively dance for a night club scene in "Gold Diggers of 1933," the Warner Bros. musical and dramatic spectacle which will be the first attraction in the new Alhambra Theatre. "But I don't know how to dance," he exclaimed with a note of pathos in his voice. "If I've got to do anything like that, you'll have to hold up the production while I take a few dancing lessons!" "That's all right, Guy," said Mervyn. "We won't have to hold up the picture and you won't have to make any lessons. You're not supposed to know how to dance. You're an ultra-conservative Boston lawyer, who has never been in a night club in his life. Especially as you're supposed to be a bit light-headed with champagne." The portly Kibbee then demonstrated how much he didn't know about dancing by putting on a hilarious impersonation of a slightly inebriated gentleman on a crowded night club floor. "Gold Diggers of 1933" carries an all-star cast including Warren William, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Ginger Rogers and Ned Sparks. Busby Berkeley was in charge of the dance and choral ensembles, in which 200 beautiful show girls appear. The picture is an adaptation by David Boehm and James Seymour of a play by Avery Hopwood.

"The Silver Cord"

Starring Irene Dunne, "The Silver Cord," showing at the Central Theatre, unravels elemental emotions that rapidly accelerated the pulses of mothers, fathers, wives, sweethearts, sons and daughters in last night's audience. The theme courageously invades the heretofore sacred precincts of mother love. Here it discovers hiding in the pure white folds of affection the destructive elements of selfishness and hypocrisy. Irene Dunne is superb. Her role gives her magnificent opportunities for her dramatic gifts. Laura Hope Crews is splendid in her characterization of the mother, a difficult role which she plays with masterly confidence. Joel McCrea as David adds a new triumph to his ever-growing list of hits. Eric Linden and Frances Dee contribute excellent performance.

GIRL GUIDES' MEETING

LADY SOUTHERN'S SPEECH

APPEAL FOR HELPERS

Owing to indisposition, Lady Peel was unable to be present at the annual meeting of the Girl Guides' Association which was held in the presence of a large gathering at the Sandilands Hotel this morning.

After the minutes of the annual meeting were confirmed, Lady Southern, Commissioner of the Colony, said:—It is a matter of great regret to all of us that Lady Peel is unable to preside today as she has been kept indoors with a bad cold for some days. Lady Peel asks me to express her regrets and I know you will all join with me in sending her our good wishes and telling her how much we miss her to-day.

COMMISSIONER'S SPEECH.

Continuing, Lady Southern said:—We welcome all present warmly to our Headquarters and we thank you very much for your continued interest in Guiding in Hong Kong. We have a special debt of gratitude to His Excellency the Governor for a magnificent party given to the Guides and Scouts at Mountain Lodge. I was away at the time, so I missed it, but I heard glowing accounts of it on my return.

You have in your hands the annual report of Guide work in this Colony, so you do not require a long speech about it from me. But I have been in England since our last meeting and I feel I must just say a few words after being in touch with Headquarters.

First of all the Chief Guide—that large-hearted, wonderful friend, Lady Baden Powell—does take a real interest in us, although we are but a fragment of the vast number of Guides throughout the world. She was keen to hear of our progress and our ambitions and grateful to all those who help us to keep the Guide flag flying here. I know that every one here must sympathise with her in the Chief Scout's illness, and I am sure this meeting will join with us in wishing him a speedy recovery, so that he can return to his marvellous untiring work.

VALUE OF GUIDING.

I have returned still more convinced of the vital importance of Guiding and Scouting in this storm-wrecked world. Its full effects will not be seen in our day, but it is laying the foundations of international understanding and friendship in the hearts of the young. The Chiefs had just returned from their wonderful Guide cruise in the Baltic. They chartered the liner "Calgarie" and filled it with Scout and Guide folk and made a tour of the Baltic countries—a royal progress, where Guide and Scout efficiency and enthusiasm proved beyond their wildest dreams. They are following up this with a Mediterranean cruise, then they plan a world tour in order to take part in the great centenary celebrations at Melbourne. I only wish some of us could accept an invitation from the Commissioner of Melbourne to send Guides from here.

This is Guiding in its largest aspects, but I also saw its influence in smaller ways. While in Yorkshire I was fortunate enough to see some very interesting Guiding. The Commissioner for the West Riding (North), Mrs. Grotrian, and the District Commissioner for Harrogate, Dr. Laura Veale, gave us a real Guide welcome and took us to see two Camps. I was delighted to see girls from a large manufacturing town, revelling in the open-air life, enjoying every minute of the day and to realise the ingenuity, precision and skill with which the Camp was run.

MORE EXPERIENCES.

Then I was taken to an enrolment of "helped" Guides at Dr. Barnardo's Home in Harrogate. It was a moving scene when these children—some in bed, some able to sit up, but all severely handicapped—were enrolled and took their promise. It was obvious from the joy on their faces that Guiding had opened a new window from which they could see and enjoy all kinds of delightful things. I was asked to tell them about Hongkong, and they loved seeing photographs of our Guides and Brownies. Mrs. Kemble has sent them picture postcards from here.

Finally, a personal experience of the value of Guiding. I wanted to find someone to read to a poor old woman living on a small

TWO JAPANESE BANISHEES

CHARGED AT POLICE COURT

Yorio Hisamatsu, unemployed, and Tamato Hisamatsu, married woman, residing at No. 180, Lockhart Road, ground floor, were produced before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with having returned from banishment.

Sub-Inspector Baker asked for a remand, as the Japanese Interpreter was sick, and defendants were remanded in police custody until to-morrow.

Sub-Inspector Baker said they were banished under a confidential C. S. O. order for keeping a bogus massage shop and being connected with the bringing of girls into Hongkong for immoral purposes.

Pension by the seaside. Her sight is failing. I knew no-one in the town and I wondered what I should do when I suddenly thought of the Guides. I applied to Headquarters and the Secretary immediately got in touch with the local Commissioner—last mail I had a letter from the poor woman saying that a guide comes to read to her and also pilots her through the streets if she has to go out when it is dark. She wrote:—"It is most cheering."

But I must not trespass further on your patience. I have not referred to our local Guiding which runs in its humble way I hope along these lines which lead to service for others and international friendship. I am grateful to all those who have helped us in the past year, but I do make an earnest appeal for more help in running our work. We could consolidate our work and open out more Companies and Packs if only helpers would come forward. We want those who have been Guides to help us and we want those who have not been Guides to be trained.

APPEAL FOR HELPERS.

Surely there must be many women and girls in a place like Hongkong where domestic work does not fill their horizons, who can spare a little time and a little thought for this great movement. I shall be so glad to receive the names of those who will help us in our work and in our play.

I wish all those Guides going on leave a very happy well-earned holiday and I must make special mention of Mrs. J. Anderson, who has done splendid work as District Commissioner. Certain of the Officers' Training Corps and Acting Commissioner while I was away. She is a great example of the truth that busy people can always find time.

THE FINANCES.

In presenting the financial statement, Mrs. C. E. L. Grist said that during the past year the Association had received $2,705.12 and had expended only $2,637, leaving a credit balance of $168. Whilst home on leave, Mrs. Grist added, she had discussed the question of changing the Guide badges and uniforms with the Overseas Secretary, and the question was now under consideration. The adoption of the report and balance sheet was carried unanimously on the motion of Mrs. C. G. Alabaster, M.B.E., seconded by Miss Woo, M.B.E.

Office-bearers of the Guides present at the meeting were:—Lady Southern (Colony Commissioner), Miss H. D. Sawyer, Mrs. R. Vaughan Fowler (District Captain for Kowloon), Mrs. J. D. Danby, Mrs. C. E. L. Grist (Deputy Colony Commissioner), Mrs. G. A. C. Herkots (District Commissioner), Mrs. W. J. Anderson, Mrs. W. B. A. Moore and Mrs. T. P. K. Kemble (Secretary).

Members present were:—Mrs. J. A. R. Selby, Mrs. Gordon Macleod, Miss King, Mrs. C. G. Alabaster, M.B.E., Miss Chou, Mrs. Glittin, Mrs. R. O. Hall, Mrs. E. D. C. Wolfe, M.B.E., Mrs. P. Jacks, Mrs. G. NEW ZEALAND'S COMPLAINTS

London, Jan. 25. The Dominions are increasingly feeling the menace of Japanese competition, according to the New Zealand High Commissioner in London, who indicated that action had to be taken.

Mr. Parr, in an interview with Reuter, said that the Japanese threat to New Zealand's trade was extremely serious.

Japanese goods were pouring into the country at prices which made it impossible for New Zealand to meet on a competitive basis, and that in spite of the high tariff.

He said that the New Zealand Government was now in close touch with the British Government on the matter.

COTTON NEGOTIATIONS.

Meanwhile, the Japanese cotton delegation in London has received its long-awaited instructions from Tokyo to open negotiations with Lancashire.

The next step will be for the Japanese delegates to get into touch with the Lancashire committee, after which the two sides will meet to frame the agenda.—Reuter.

PERSIA TO TAKE UP COTTON SPINNING

Orders for Plant Placed in England

London, Jan. 25. In connexion with the decision of the Persian Government to make the country as far as possible independent of foreign produce, specifications have been sent from Teheran to British engineering firms for the supply of plant, particularly for the manufacture of textile piece-goods.

Apart from government schemes orders have already been booked in Lancashire for equipping cotton spinning mills at Shiraz, Isfahan and Yazd.—Reuter.

NOTHING LESS THAN FAIR PLAY

MR. RUNCIMAN ON COTTON TRADE

London, Jan. 25. The President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman to-day began his short tour of the Lancashire cotton centres.

This morning, he had a lengthy meeting with the special committee of the Lancashire cotton trade dealing with Japanese competition.

When the Committee laid before the Minister the difficulties faced during the negotiations undertaken, at the instance of the Government, with representatives of the Japanese textile industry, various suggestions were made whereby it was thought the actions and recommendations of the special committee would be rendered more effective and the maximum benefit obtained for the cotton trade in the shortest possible time.

The latest information from the principal world markets was presented to Mr. Runciman and a frank and helpful discussion took place.

Speaking at a luncheon in his honour given by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Runciman said the cotton trade could be assured of the full support of the Government which realised that the time factor was of the first importance. Nothing less than fair play in the world market would satisfy the Board of Trade.—British Wireless.

BUILDING SOCIETIES.

BRITISH GROUPS TO ASSIST IN HUGE PLAN

London, Jan. 25. Since the War, Building Societies in Great Britain have advanced no less than £72,000,000 to builders. About half of the 2,000,000 houses erected have received financial assistance from them.

The Building Societies have now promised their co-operation in a scheme designed to facilitate the building of houses for letting to lower paid wage earners. A substantial volume of the business under this scheme is in process of negotiation.—British Wireless.

Much interest was evinced in Shanghai, in the wedding which took place at the Ohel Rachel Synagogue, of Miss Hsana Rabinovitch and Mr. Samuel M. Perry, both of whom are well known in the Shanghai Jewish community.

ON ALIBIS

THOUGHTS ON A.D.C. PRODUCTION

There is much magic in an alibi. It is such a simple and yet so potent a weapon if effectively wielded. To the untutored mind of the ordinary malsfactor it is almost a necessity. His first idea in nine cases out of ten when gripped by the arm of the law is to cry aloud "I didn't do it. I couldn't have done it. I wasn't there." "Well," said Mr. Weller to his son Sam, "Now I suppose Mr. Pickwick will want some witnesses to speak to his character or perhaps to prove an alibi. I've got some friends who'll do either for him but my advice 'ud be this here—never mind the character but stick to the alibi. Nothing like an alibi, Sammy, nothing." This advice was given before the famous breach of promise action "Bardell v. Pickwick" which ended in judgment for the plaintiff with £700 damages. On hearing the news Mr. Weller asks sadly of his son "Oh, Sammy, Sammy, why weren't there an alibi?"

The weak point about Mr. Weller's idea of an alibi was his apparent conviction that it could only be established by the evidence of witnesses who would be ready to swear falsely that the defendant was elsewhere at the time of the wrong-doing. The greater subtlety of an alibi manufactured by the wrong-doer himself was beyond his ken. Witnesses who lie may be caught out, but circumstances, says the old legal adage, cannot lie. Hence the really perfect though false alibi is one which every circumstance of the case seems to establish and which is at the same time supported by the evidence of unimpeachable witnesses who have been themselves misled by the apparent circumstances.

It is such an alibi that Colin Derwent manufactured for himself in "Ten Minute Alibi" which the A.D.C. is playing at the Naval Canteen Theatre between February 17th and 24th. He is the one person who must inevitably be suspected of the morally justifiable murder which he has committed; yet he is able to make it appear by circumstantial and by direct evidence that he could not have been present at the time of the murder. And he gets away with it, and carries the sympathies of the audience with him. Booking opens at the Anderson Music Co. on February 7th.

BRITAIN CONCERNED AT ACCIDENT TOTAL

London, Jan. 25. The Home Secretary is searching for a possible measure for lessening the number of deaths and injuries caused by motor accidents. Invites the opinion of magistrates on the suggestion that power should be available to suspend driving licences on first conviction not only for reckless or dangerous driving, or for driving under the influence of drink or drugs, but for careless driving and for exceeding the speed limit.—British Wireless.

travelling on foot right across China into Russia; and having enlisted the sympathies of another youngster, he began to make preparations for this truly remarkable journey, when his friend, either through fear or some other cause, backed out, and the scheme fell to the ground.

He returned to England, and having received an invitation from a journalistic friend in Melbourne, he went out and joined the staff of a new paper which his friend had just started. The thirst for roving, however, not having been quenched, he soon packed up his luggage, which consisted of little more than a bag and a toothbrush, and made his way to Sydney, where unexpectedly falling in with an old school companion who had run away from his ship and was penniless, while he was the possessor of the magnificent sum of £4, he agreed to share it with him, and they set off in search of more gold. After tramping through many parts of Australia, including the Blue Mountain range and many other districts, during which he was stock-driver, gold-digger, lumpor, and many other things, he came back to Sydney with £150 in his pocket.

IN A TYPHOON.

To China again in a coal barge, which was dismasted in a typhoon in the China Sea. He saw the rising in New York, he was in Washington when President Lincoln was assassinated. He was once accused by the editor of a paper of being an armchair traveller. He ventured to remind him that his wanderings

HAT THEFT FROM SHOP

TEMPTATION TO POOR PEOPLE

A fine of $30 or one month's prison was imposed in Wong Chin, un-arranged, by Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning, for stealing a felt hat from a shop. It was stated the hat was with other hats near the front of the shop. Defendant was deaf.

Inspector Andrew:—It is a pity that temptation in the way of the poor people, especially when there is so much poverty about just now. A similar penalty was given to Tanny Vin, also unemployed, for the theft of a pair of shoes from 26, Connaught Road West.

and led him over many of the beaten tracks of the globe and not a few of the unfrequented ones; that a man who had doubled the Cape twelve times, had been twice round the Horn, had sailed nearly every known sea, and had hobbled with cannibals in the Pacific Ocean, been nearly frozen to death in Polar cold, had been four days without water in the Australian desert, suffering the unspeakable agonies of thirst under a broiling sun, could scarcely, with any regard for veracity, be described as an "arm-chair traveller." He bought a paper, which he edited for some years, in South London. Finding journalistic work not sufficiently remunerative, he essayed a serial story which attracted the attention of William Tinsley in 1873. It gave him his start in novel-writing and they came out in steady quantity afterwards.—Reuter and Special.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

In my estimation, distribution plays a more important part in contract than high cards. Of course, at slam contract suit controls are necessary to prevent the opponents from running off winning tricks immediately. But you can take a handful of high cards and, unless you have good distribution, you will find it difficult even to make game. An unusually interesting squeeze that developed out of good distribution is given in to-day's hand.

I believe the bidding to be rather optimistic, especially North's two no trump response. South was justified in jumping to four clubs after this bid, and again North was over optimistic in jumping to six clubs. However, the declarer played the hand well to make his contract.

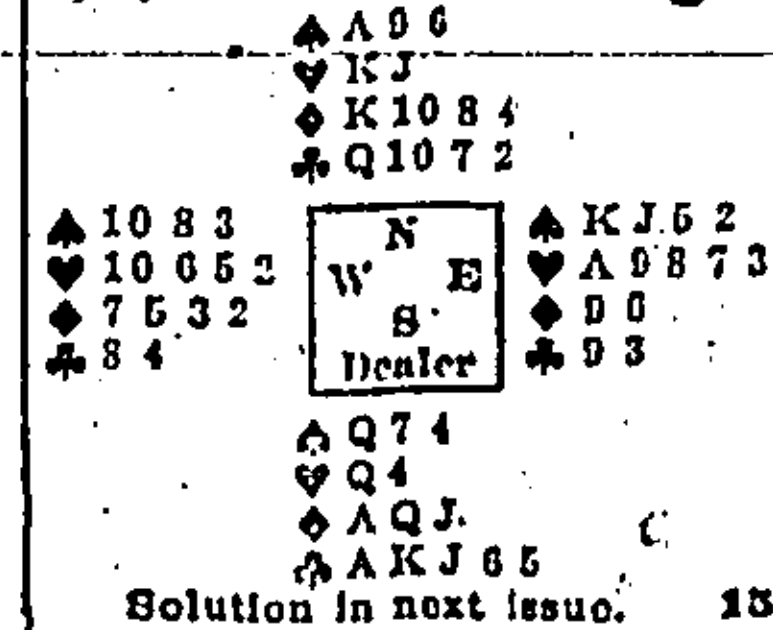

West opened the jack of spades, which East won with the ace. East returned a small heart, which declarer won with the king. The declarer now ran six rounds of clubs, retaining in dummy the three and deuce of spades, the ace and nine of hearts, and the ace of diamonds.

It is immaterial what East retains, except to protect the king of diamonds. West discarded a spade and three diamonds, as East by his discards had shown the king of diamonds.

Declarer now led the five of diamonds and West was helpless. If he let go a heart, dummy's ace and nine would be good, while if he dropped a spade, declarer would win the last three tricks with the king, queen, and eight of spades.

Today's Contract Problem

North has the contract for six no trump. East opens the fourth best heart, which is the play that enables the declarer to make his contract. How should the hand be played?

Solution in next issue.

H.K. CLUB SECRETARY.

COL. ROBERTSON RECOVERING FROM ILLNESS

The many friends of Col. T. A. Robertson, Secretary of the Hongkong Club, will be pleased to hear that he has now completely recovered from his recent illness.

It will be recalled that Col. Robertson, who has been Secretary of the Hongkong Club for many years, is leaving for home on retirement shortly.

It is now stated that he will depart from Hongkong shortly before the end of March.

M.C.C. RECOVER

KEEN CRICKET AT SECUNDERABAD

Secunderabad, Jan. 25.
The three-day match between the M.C.C. and the Moinud Dowlah XI was drawn, with the Indian team requiring 33 runs to win with one wicket to fall.

The M.C.C. fought back strongly after being 82 runs in arrears on the first innings.

Jardine's team batted first and could do practically nothing with the bowling of Mushtaq Ali and Amar Singh, the whole side being skittled out for 112. Ali took five wickets for 37 runs and Amar
Singh four for 33.

Amar Singh contributed 58 runs to the total of 194, compiled by the Moinud Dowlah XI, while Verity claimed five wickets at a cost of 68 runs.

In their second innings, the M.C.C. scored 303, Nichols making 55, while Amar Singh took 5 wickets for 82 runs.
C. K. Naidu saved the Moinud Dowlah team from defeat with a masterly 79. Nine wickets had fallen for 188 runs when stumps were drawn. Townsend took four wickets for 76 runs.—Reuter.

Remanded from last week for his father to appear in Court, Lai Shue-fong, a student, charged with possession of a 32 revolver without a licence in Gloucester Road, made his appearance before Mr. Hamilton, at the Magistrate's Court this morning. Upon his father agreeing Mr. Hamilton asked him to stand surety in $100 to bring his son up for judgment when called upon within six months. Mr.
Hamilton also asked defendant to sign a bond for $100.

INDIAN CONSTABLE FOUND DRUNK

Disorder in Cells at Central

An Indian constable's meanderings through the city in a state of intoxication, culminating in his losing a tunic and a pair of trousers drawn from the Police Stores, were related by Mr. L. H. C. Cal-throp, A.S.P. in the Central Police Court this morning.

Karam Singh, aged 33, stationed at Tai-po, was charged before Mr.
Balfour with misconduct by being drunk and with neglect by losing a tunic.

Mr. Calthrop said on Tuesday defendant was sent to town from Tai-po Station by the officer in charge to do one or two errands, including a visit to the Import and Export Office and in particular to the Police Stores to draw a tunic for himself and a pair of trousers for P.C. B 93. He was seen at the Stores at 4.30 p.m. and Sergeant Clark observed him to leave with the tunic shortly after 5 o'clock.
At 7.30 p.m. Sergeant Winfield, who was passing the King's Theatre on motor-cycle patrol, had his attention drawn to the defendant by a member of the public.
The Sergeant kept him under observation and saw him wandering about the road, peering at people and looking in a very aggressive manner at a party of sailors, as if to provoke a fight.

BURST INTO TEARS.

When approached by the Sergeant, the defendant was found to be in a bad state of drunkenness, and he then suddenly burst into tears. He was taken to the Central Police Station, where the Inspector on duty put him in the cells.
He created much disorder from about 3 o'clock until ten minutes after midnight when Divisional Inspector Shannon saw him and managed to quieten him down. He had lost the tunic and trousers

U.S. GOVERNMENT APPROACHED

COMMERCIAL FACT

Washington, Jan. 25.
Early negotiations between the United States and China for the conclusion of a new commercial agreement are expected to develop from approaches made by the Nanking Government.

The Secretary of State, Mr.
Cordell Hull, who has just returned from the Pan-American Conference at Montevideo, told pressmen to-day that the Nanking authorities had made representations to the United States Minister in China, Mr. Nelson Johnson, seeking the revision of the existing commercial treaty.

He added that the United States is ready to discuss the matter as soon as definite suggestions are made by the Chinese Government.

and was unable to account for them. It was only by accident that they were found by a Chinese woman hawk last night and brought to Inspector Shannon who was on patrol.

Asked for defendant's record,
Mr. Calthrop replied that it could only be described as "a very bad one indeed." He joined the Force on June 21, 1927, and had three times been dealt with for being drunk and unfit for duty. Twice he had been cautioned for dismission and the last time he was reduced in class. He had taken on oath at the Sikh Temple against drinking, but that had had no effect on him.

His Worship imposed a fine of $60, or six weeks' hard labour.

STRICKEN BY QUAKE. scores have been injured, some seriously.
Most of the casualties occurred when straw-thatched dwellings collapsed in the Wuyuan district, leaving the inmates exposed to the rigours of the bitter winter. Earlier reports stated that many deaths had occurred as a result of the earthquake, and it may be some time before the correct position is known.—Reuter.
